SMEARERS RELY ON NEW DEAL TO PROTECT THEM

Pressure Exerted to Avert Probe.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 24.—Architects of the smear and the purge of prewar noninterventionists have been exposed, but are relying upon the power of the administration to shield them from public reprobation.

Sen. David I. Walsh.

All was going according to prearranged plan with the smear and the purge until some of the more zealous of the smearers and the purgers overreached themselves. President Roosevelt, thru his political mouthpiece, Charles Michelson, had called for the purging of congress of all prewar noninterventionists in the elections this year.

Something Happens.

The left wing New Republic and the Communistically affiliated Union for Democratic Action had named three prewar noninterventionist senators and 44 representatives for political liquidation. The Henry Luce and Marshall Field press were in full cry against the prewar noninterventionist legislators and press.

Then something happened that threw the smearers and purgers into a state bordering upon panic. The New York Post, one of the most ardent administration organs, had published accusations that Sen. David I. Walsh [D., Mass.], a prewar noninterventionist, frequented a Brooklyn "house of degradation" in which Nazi spies obtained American war secrets.

Exonerated in Senate.

So utterly false was this charge that Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley [D., Ky.] was compelled to arise in the senate last Wednesday and present the results of an investigation by the department of justice exonerating the senator "from any suspicion of ever having been to the place referred to or anywhere near it, or ever having engaged in any activity which could have justified any honest man in making the assertion that he ever was there."

With that revelation the smear and the purge were forced upon the defensive. From every side in the senate arose the demands, voiced by Senators Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.], Bennett Champ Clark [D., Mo.], and Gerald P. Nye [R., N. D.], for an investigation of the entire conspiracy to smear Sen. Walsh.

The threat of such investigation struck consternation to the hearts of the authors of the smear and purge. A senate investigation would open unlimited avenues of probing into the most secret recesses of the plot fostered by the administration, the Communists, and the prewar interventionist groups to liquidate the prewar noninterventionists.

The Pressure Is Applied.

Every ounce of influence the administration possesses is being exerted this week-end to stave off the threatened investigation. Much depends on whether Sen. Walsh himself gives his consent to such an inquiry. Personally he shrinks from any further publicity involving the association of his name with the loath-

LITHS MOBILIZE 100,000 STRONG IN CHICAGOLAND

This is the fifth in a series of articles on win the war activities by groups of foreign birth or extraction in the Chicago area.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

American Lithuanians often refer to Chicago as the second capital of Lithuania, the Baltic sea republic now occupied by the Nazis. About 100,000 persons of Lithuanian stock live in the city and environs, making this the nation's largest Lithuanian center.

The Liths are highly organized with societies of various types and no group appears more diligent in America's war activities. Here are a few of the highlights:

From Chicago and suburbs some 1,500 men of Lithuanian origin have entered the fighting forces of the United States.

More than $3,000,000 worth of war bonds and stamps have been purchased by Liths in Cook county.

Concentrate on Victory.

In the Lithuanian press, in all church parishes, in more than 400 organizations, and in seven regular radio programs intensive campaigning is done to advance the war effort.

Lithuanians are an Indo-European race, distinct from the Slavic and Germanic peoples. Their language is one of the oldest living tongues and one of the most musical. Philologists say it has a certain affinity with Latin and Greek, but more closely resembles the Sanskrit from which it springs. Liths are predominately blond with blue eyes.

After 22 years of independent statehood, Lithuania was occupied two years ago by the Russian army. Then a year ago it was occupied by Hitler's Nazis. American Lithuanians are hoping for the liberation of their homeland after America wins the war.

Victory Is Their Goal.

Determined to do their part in helping achieve victory, Chicago area Liths have turned the full power of their many organizations into the home front battle.

An example of this action is furnished by the campaign by radio and page advertisments in the Lith press for war bond purchase pledges by the Lithuanian Building and Loan Association League of Illinois. Building and loan associations are an important force in the economic life of the Liths who largely are home owners. Joseph P. Varkala, secretary of the league, is among the radio speakers in this drive.

The Lithuanian Roman Catholic alliance, national in scope, bought $50,000 in bonds last year and has subscribed for $50,000 more. President of the alliance is Leonard Simutis, editor of the Lith daily, Draugas, or the Daily Friend. The alliance, founded in 1886, has some 2,000 members in Cook county.

Catholic Alliance Active.

The American Lithuanian Roman Catholic alliance, of which Mrs. Mary Vaicunas of Cicero is national secretary, is active in war drives.

The Lithuanian Alliance of America, a national body which promotes Lith culture and preserves contact with the old country, has headquar-

NAZI OFFICERS ON DECK SALUTE VICTIMS IN SEA

28 Survivors Reach Key West, Fla.

The sinking of three more ships by enemy torpedoes in American waters was disclosed yesterday.

188 A German submarine was responsible for at least one of the new sea tragedies. Survivors of an American cargo vessel who reached Key West, Fla., related that members of the crew of an attacking U-boat had given them a Nazi salute and raised a Nazi flag. The captain of the American ship was lost in the action and five other persons are missing. The victim of a second attack was an allied ship whose survivors reached an eastern Canadian port. Survivors from the third torpedoed vessel, of undisclosed nationality, reached the Island of Barbados. They included 15 men and a kitten.

The new sinkings raised to 188 the number of vessels lost in American waters since Pearl Harbor, with 1,230 known dead, 1,393 missing and believed lost, and 5,917 rescued. A total of 145 American merchant ships was lost thru enemy action during the entire World war, and 775 persons were killed.

28 SURVIVORS LAND

Key West, Fla., May 24.—A man on the deck of a submarine gave the Nazi salute to survivors of an American ship which had been torpedoed and sunk in the Caribbean sea, the navy announced today.

Twenty-eight survivors of the sinking, which occurred last Monday off the tip of Cuba, reached safety here. Capt. Charles D. Bryant of Houston, Tex., the skipper of the ship, lost his life during the attack, and five others are missing.

The American ship, a cargo vessel, was blasted by one torpedo, fired into her starboard side early in the afternoon. She sank in two minutes. The submarine came to the surface as soon as the freighter sank.

Five Officers Appear.

John H. Benson of New Orleans, La., second officer on the freighter, said five men wearing officers' caps and shorts appeared on the deck of the submarine, which cruised about for 5 minutes and then departed.

"They wanted to make sure we knew their identity," said Leonard Shearer of Newcastle, Pa., third assistant engineer. "A member of the crew raised the Nazi flag on a staff at the stern immediately after the submarine broke the surface. Then he turned and gave the Nazi salute to some of us who were swimming nearby."

Shearer said he knew that Capt. Bryant had lost his life.

"He and I were cutting away the No. 1 lifeboat when it fouled in the davits and fell into the sea, bottom side up," Shearer said. "I dived from under the boat, but Capt. Bryant was caught under tons of débris from our cargo and carried under."

Lifeboats containing the 28 survivors were picked up by a Latvian steamer the next day.

3 DAYS IN LIFEBOATS

AN EAST CANADIAN PORT, May 24 (AP).—Survivors from an allied ship torpedoed in the western Atlantic were landed here today. They said 12 crew members lost their lives when the torpedo struck and another jumped overboard from a lifeboat and was lost. The men spent three days in lifeboats, a survivor said.

15 MEN AND A KITTEN

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados, B. W. I., May 24 (AP).—Fifteen men and a kitten landed in two lifeboats of Barbados today with the report that their ship was torpedoed "many days ago," carrying down 10 out of the crew of 40, and that eight other survivors, including two wounded, could be expected soon. Seven others, accounting for all the 30 survivors, were reported to have reached Trinidad.

John Heller of Milwaukee, Wis., said their ship was attacked at 4:30 a. m., and sank within seven minutes.

53 SAVED AT SEA; SAID TO BE YANKS

From U. S. Warship, Press of Argentina Claims.

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, May 24 (AP).—The state merchant fleet said today the small Argentine steamer Rio Iguazu had picked up 53 persons at sea, and newspaper reports declared the rescued were sailors from a United States warship.

Merchant fleet officials declined to say what sort of ship the survivors came from. They told of the rescue in response to inquiries after the Italians had renewed their claims of having sunk a United States battleship with a submarine in the Atlantic off Brazil.

The German radio, quoting an official Italian announcement, said the Argentine ship had picked up 55 survivors from the battleship.

Two Lifeboats Picked Up.

The newspaper Noticias Graficas, quoting a merchant fleet source, said the Rio Iguazu two or three days ago picked up two lifeboat loads of sailors from a North American warship, but could not say whether it was a battleship, cruiser, or destroyer.

The state merchant fleet made public part of the text of a wireless report from the captain of the Rio Iguazu, saying:

"I picked up 53 survivors on the high seas."

Fleet headquarters emphasized that it would not make public any information on the date or location of the rescue or other details because of "war conditions."

Due Next Week.

The Rio Iguazu left New York May 9 and maritime sources figured it would now be between Bahia and Rio de Janeiro. It is due here June 1 or 2.

However, maritime sources said the Rio Iguazu had asked Brazilian authorities for permission to land the survivors at Recife. The captain said he was sending a full report by airmail.

The Italians announced in a special communique Friday that the submarine Barbarigo had sunk an American battleship of the "Maryland class" of 31,800 to 33,900 tons. [There has been no confirmation of this enemy claim from any other source.] The Italian announcement said the battleship was hit by two torpedoes just off the bulge of the Brazilian coast.

Implying that the submarine remained near enough to the surface to observe the results, the Fascists asserted the battleship's destroyer escort failed to "react" to the torpedoing.

The 3,177 ton rescue vessel, the former Danish Bretagne, recently acquired by the state merchant fleet, was considered too small to accommodate 53 extra persons aboard on a long trip.

$400,000 Worth of Psychology Going Out to Battle the Axis

Washington, D. C., May 24 [Special].—The far-flung battle lines of "psychological warfare" opened up a few new fronts in the capital this week. In fact, the love life of the orchid and the romantic tale of early American jade have now become a definite part of the nation's war effort and the bureau of the budget is pondering how much should be spent to pay for distribution of color movies of these and related war subjects by way of stiffening the solidarity of the western hemisphere to resist Japanese and Nazi assaults.

A cool $400,000 is the amount set by the motion picture division of Nelson Rockefeller's Office of Coördination of Inter-American Affairs as the sum it requires to distribute films which it has decided will cement the good neighbor policy among the republics of the Americas. Some interesting facts are disclosed in the budget report now under consideration.

The Rockefeller outfit, one of the administration's chief propaganda mills, was in bad grace with the state department a year ago after a disastrous advertising adventure in South America. Its $600,000 campaign to spread good will thru advertisments in 350 Latin American papers was halted by the state department when it was discovered many of the ads had been placed in pro-Nazi papers and consular officials protested that the propaganda was doing more harm than good.

Plan Launched in 1940.

In its request for more cash, the Rockefeller organization points out that 14 months before Pearl Harbor [in October, 1940], it launched its basic plan which even then "comprehended operations" which in its final steps called for "direct action wherein military defense and propaganda films would be stressed."

To bring the story of the United States to the citizens of Latin America, the Rockefeller organization is now paying for the distribution of these nontheatrical films:

"Good Health and Good Looks," by the Dental Supply company; "This Amazing America," by the Greyhound Bus company; "Give Us This Day"—the story of bread by the American Institute of Baking; "Basketball Technique," by MGM; "California Fashion"—clothes for women as conceived by Hollywood designers.

How to Control Grasshoppers.

Other films for movie audiences in the neighboring republics as described by the coördinator of inter-American affairs, with their distribution costs, include:

"The Home Place"—Two reels, farm dwellings in the United States from our earliest history to the 20th century; $750.

"Grasshoppers — Their Control," $750.

"Skiers from South America"—A visit of the Chilean ski team to the United States, $250.

"Better Dresses — Fifth Floor"—Two reel comedy about the life of an American salesgirl; $9,750.

"High Over the Borders"—How bird migrations link the Americas; $9,384.

"Willie and the Mouse"—Scientific studies of mice.

"Does Nature Prefer Blondes?"—One reel, the Nazi race theory exposed by Prof. Ernest A. Hooton.

Disney Is Advanced $70,000.

The Rockefeller outfit told the budget office that it has advanced $70,000 to Walt Disney for a South American tour and put up a guarantee of $150,000 against any loss that the inspired creator of Mickey Mouse and Donald Duck might incur on a proposed production schedule.

For domestic consumption, the Rockefeller office is asking for money for its one reel in color entitled "Orchids" and a three reeler "The Treasure Trove of Jade," dealing, it promises, with "archaeological discoveries in Mexico, including the revelation of the largest cache of early American jade ever discovered."

To distribute the "Treasure Trove of Jade" the Rockefeller office wants $3,288. An identical amount is asked for the "Quest of the Great Stone Heads." The orchid film will cost the taxpayers $1,092.

ROUNDUP OF WAR DEVELOPMENTS ON MAIN FRONTS

Latest war developments:

Allied air forces inflicted severe losses on a group of Japanese heavy bombers parked on an airdrome 20 miles from Rabaul, New Britain Island, Gen. MacArthur's headquarters announced in a communique. A building also was set afire. One allied plane failed to return. An earlier communique also told of a 1,200 mile round trip raid by Australian bombers on the Dutch island of Amboina during which three Japanese navy Zero fighter planes were shot down in a fierce 25 minute battle on Saturday.

Bombing of Paoshan, next objective of Japanese invaders pushing into China along the Burma road, and a fierce drive by 100,000 Japs in Chekiang province, far to the east, were reported by the Chinese. Battles were raging at three towns 25 to 35 miles from Kinhwa, capital of the province and most important center in eastern China still in Chinese hands. The Chinese admitted enemy successes in this area.

Renewal of the Russian drive on Kharkov following a temporary halt caused by a heavy German counterattack, was reported by Moscow. Red troops were said to be advancing again. On the southern flank of the soviet wedge driven into the German lines before the Ukraine stronghold, the Russians said they were waging defensive battles against strong Nazi attacks. Germany reported the encirclement of strong Russian forces south of Kharkov.

Predict Early Move to Draft 19 Year Olds

Washington, D. C., May 24 (AP).—A proposal to lower the minimum age for compulsory service in the armed forces to 19 years—and possibly to 18—will be placed before congress soon, an informed source reported today.

Altho saying the war department was convinced the draft age should be lowered, this informant, who asked not to be named, said he did not know the form the request would take.

He said it might be made in a message from President Roosevelt, or letter from Secretary of War Stimson to congressional leaders, or by war department witnesses at congressional hearings on some pending legislation affecting the army.

Law Bars Drafting.

President Roosevelt has ordered a selective service registration June 30 of young men 18 and 19. Under present law, however, they cannot be drafted into the armed services. It is estimated there are approximately 1 million 200,000 persons in each age group.

When congress revised the draft act in the first month after Pearl Harbor, the war department recommended making 19 year olds subject to the draft. The senate agreed, but the house voted to put the minimum age at 21. A compromise was worked out permitting 20 year olds to be drafted.

Rep. May Expects Action.

Rep. Andrew J. May [D., Ky.], chairman of the house military affairs committee, said he believed the house might be willing to lower the age minimum, adding: "I would not be surprised if that is in the offing."

On the other hand, Sen. Lister Hill [D., Ala.], the Democratic whip, said he did not expect any immediate draft of boys 18 and 19.

RUSSO-GERMAN FRONT.

In all issues of tomorrow's Tribune will appear a full page color map of portions of Europe, Asia, and Africa, with particular emphasis on the details of the Russo-German war front. On this map are shown the line of the deepest penetration of the Germans into Russia and the battleline as it was at the beginning of the present [1942] offensive.

REDS BREAK UP NAZI ATTACKS, MOSCOW CLAIMS

Reports Army Again Is Advancing.

MOSCOW, May 24 [Monday]—(AP).—Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's armies of the Ukraine have wrested the initiative from the Germans on the Kharkov front and again are advancing, while in the Izyum-Barvenkova sector to the south fierce defensive battles are being waged against Nazi tank and infantry attacks, the Russians announced officially at midnight.

Resumption of the advance upon the industrial city and stronghold of Kharkov was announced in the soviet midnight communique following a temporary halt in which the Germans threw huge forces of men and machines into a counterattack.

Inflict Heavy Losses.

In the Izyum-Barvenkova sector the Russians said their forces were inflicting enormous losses upon German infantry and tank units trying desperately to flank the Russians' Kharkov wedge. Frontline dispatches said the Ukrainian hills in that area were strewn with Nazi dead.

The soviet communique gave this brief picture of the fighting on the southern front:

"During May 24 our troops in the Kharkov direction [area] waged offensive battles and advanced.

Destroy 75 Nazi Tanks.

The Russians reported destruction or damaging of 75 German tanks, 40 of them in two days of fighting on the Izyum-Barvenkova front and 35 by soviet planes in various sectors on Saturday. The communique listed 24 German planes destroyed Saturday to 11 Russian losses.

On one sector of the Kharkov front, the communique said, a soviet force on the same day smashed a German attack and occupied an important populated place. In this one engagement more than 400 German dead were reported left on the battlefield.

Elsewhere on the long front the Russians said there had been no important action. The soviet drive on Kharkov is now in its 14th day.

Knock Out 110 Tanks.

A Pravda war correspondent reported in an eyewitness account that in a three day battle before the city the Russians knocked out 110 of 150 tanks thrown into a massive charge by the Germans.

"This fierce combat ended in a brilliant victory for soviet artillery," he wrote. "They burned down and disabled about 100 tanks. In addition 10 more tanks were put out of action by anti-tank rifles and reduced to infernos with incendiary bottles."

Another front line dispatch said the soviet air force was "battering enemy land concentrations as well as his airdromes."

[Now that the Russians have withdrawn from the Kerch peninsula, London reports said the Russians were heavily reënforcing defenses on the Caucasus shore, just across the narrow strait from the peninsula which forms the eastern tip of the Crimea. The soviet Black sea fleet was pictured as the biggest obstacle to any attempt by Hitler to jump the Kerch strait to get at the oil treasure of the Caucasus.]

Roll Back Nazi Line.

Dispatches yesterday from the Izyum-Barvenkova front said that the Germans' week-long diversion offensive there had been fought to a standstill and that in the seesaw fighting the enemy line had been rolled back a considerable distance.

At the extreme northern end of the front, in Karelia, dispatches reported four German battalions sought to regain the initiative but were thrown back with a loss of 500 dead.

Claim Reds Circled at Kharkov.

BERLIN, May 24 [from German broadcasts] (AP).—Strong Red army forces have been encircled south of Kharkov as the result of a German thrust deep into the Russian flank succeeded by a general counterattack, the German war report said today.

The German command said the Nazi troops thrown about the trapped men held despite the combined efforts of forces within and without to cut thru.

AIR POWER TURNS NAVY BUILDING TO PLANE CARRIERS

Big Battleship Now Seen in a Minor Role.

BY HANSON BALDWIN.

[Copyright: 1942: By New York Times.]

New York, May 24.—The influence of air power upon sea power has completely changed the naval program of the United States in six months of war, has hastened the adoption of an aircraft carrier construction program of very great size, and has forced the navy to shift its emphasis from a traditional dependence upon flying boats to land based bombers and reconnaissance planes.

Details of changes in our navy's program are closely guarded secrets, but some ships planned and contracted for on Dec. 7 will never be built; others are being modified or converted. The cruiser program has been increased and the present submarine construction program calls for the building of some 200 to 230 submarines.

Many Types of Carriers.

But the major emphasis is upon carriers; the carrier, insofar as naval types are concerned, has No. 1 priority. Battleships will not be abandoned; new 35,000 ton and 45,000 ton leviathans of considerable speed, great armament and gun power will soon be joining the fleet, but the carrier is now recognized as the most urgently needed type. Carriers of every class are being planned, built, or converted—built from the blueprint up as carriers, converted from merchant hulls, tanker hulls, and naval hulls.

The ultimate navy probably will comprise a considerable number of very powerful task forces, each made up of one or two big, powerful and speedy carriers; one or two big, very fast battleships; three to six cruisers, and several divisions of the new 2,000 ton destroyers ordered long before the war.

Favor Army Type Planes.

The ultimate navy also will include considerable numbers of land-based planes. The navy for some time has been flying "army type" planes. The vulnerability of the naval patrol flying boat, such as the Consolidated Catalina, to enemy pursuit planes was graphically demonstrated in the fighting in the far east.

Land based planes of the Lockheed-Hudson type, long used so successfully by the coastal command of the British royal air force, and the B-24 Consolidated land based bomber, are not only far more defensible, but are much faster and more maneuverable.

The flying boat patrol plane will by no means be abandoned; its great range and ability to land upon water make it important for overwater reconnaissance, but it is being supplemented by land based bombers and reconnoissance planes.

Thus, in composition, tactics, and building program the United States navy has undergone what amounts to a virtual naval revolution since Dec. 7. Its strength also has been modified by losses, as has the strength of other navies.

The published losses, which take no account of damaged ships, are probably not complete.

41 Ships Reported Lost.

Published announcements indicate we have lost a total of 41 commissioned naval vessels of various types, many of them auxiliaries or small units. These announcements have listed nine destroyers, four submarines, two battleships [the Arizona and the capsized Oklahoma] and one cruiser among the ships lost.

Unquestionably many ships have been damaged, and our ultimate navy —no matter how big our building program—is not ready now. So in the immediate months to come we will be very hardpressed at sea.

REDS BOMBARD ALLIED TROOPS WITH GIFT BOOKS

N.Y. Workers Also Send 'Solidarity Greetings.'

New York, May 24 [Special].—The International Workers order, a recognized communist organization, was revealed in dispatches from Jerusalem today as having sent more than a million "gift packages" to soldiers of the united nations all over the world. Included in each package was a card bearing "solidarity greetings."

The workers order, claiming a membership of 165,000 and assets of 2 million dollars, is one of the organizations denounced by the Dies committee investigating un-American activities. The last recorded president of the outfit is Robert Weiner, also known as Welwel Warszower, who is free on bail from a passport fraud conviction. Weiner, or Warszower, is financial secretary of the Communist party in the United States.

Before America's entry into the war the organization sent packages to British, Russian, Polish and Czecho-Slovak troops. Since Dec. 7, however, American troops have been put on the mailing list and, according to Herbert Benjamin, secretary of the IWO, have received 500,000 packages —either a carton of cigarets or a book.

The first book sent was "The Copperheads," by William Blake, a novel depicting the northern opposition to the Civil war.

Another novel, "Dawn Breaks," by F. C. Weiskopf, also has been sent to the American armed forces. Benjamin described it as a "story of the underground movement" in Czecho-Slovakia.

Benjamin also disclosed that plans are being made for a special edition of "Mission to Moscow," by Joseph E. Davies, former ambassador to the soviet.

LT. COL. GIMBEL, 4 OTHERS KILLED IN PLANE CRASH

Army Craft Wrecked on Hillside in Maine.

Washington, D. C., May 24 (AP).—The war department announced tonight an army plane crashed on a "routine" flight near Houlton, Me., today, killing five officers and an unidentified noncommissioned officer. The craft was described in reports from Houlton as a multimotored plane.

The war department said the men were killed instantly when the plane crashed into a hillside near the Houlton air base at 11:35 a. m. The plane did not burn and all the bodies were recovered and taken to Houlton.

The dead: Lieut. Col. Louis Gimbel, Lieut. Col. C. A. Wright, First Lieut. J. D. Franciscus, First Lieut. Herback, Second Lieut. E. R. Wilkinson, and the noncommissioned officer.

Lieut. Col. Gimbel was a nephew of Ellis A. Gimbel, Philadelphia department store head and a cousin of Bernard F. Gimbel, of New York, president of Gimbel Brothers, Inc. In Philadelphia Ellis Gimbel said he had received notification of his nephew's death.

[Lieut. Col. Gimbel once was connected in an executive capacity with Saks Fifth Avenue store and Gimbel brothers. A graduate of Yale, he entered the United States ferry service about six months before entering the army air corps.]

Lieut. Lewis Bowen (left) of Champaign, Ill., and Lieut. M. M. Brown of Louisville, Ky., after parachuting to safety when their planes collided over Teaneck, N. J.

2 CRASH AMONG HOMES

Teaneck, N. J., May 24 [Special].—Two army planes collided today 12,000 feet over Teaneck, their two pilots parachuted to safety, and the planes crashed in a residential area, throwing the neighborhood into consternation. No one was injured seriously.

One plane sheared off the roof of Joseph Tracey's two car garage, setting fire to the garage and to the new home of Dr. F. A. Macauley. The other plane buried its nose in a street.

One pilot, Lieut. M. M. Brown of Louisville, Ky., came down in a swamp and the other, Lieut. Lewis Bowen, 21, of Champaign, Ill., landed on the lawn in front of Earl Duncanson's home. Bowen went in for coffee and for treatment of minor cuts on the right leg.

[Lieut. Bowen, a graduate of Mount Sterling, Ill., High school, entered the University of Illinois in 1939 and in November, 1940, entered the army air corps. His mother is Mrs. Naomi Bowen, supervisor of the Illini Union cafeteria. His father, Lewis Bowen, an air mail flyer, was killed in a plane crash at Columbus, O., in 1934.]

Hilda Bjorne, a maid, was hanging drapes on a line in a yard when she heard the plane crash into the garage.

She dashed into a driveway to look, and the tail of the plane thudded to earth thru the drapes.

Curtains and a mattress in one bedroom of Dr. Macauley's home were set on fire by the crash.

ARMY BEATS OFF COMMANDO RAID IN N. J. GAMES

Along the New Jersey Coast, May 24 (AP).—An invasion of the New Jersey shore by a theoretical enemy force operating in commando fashion was repelled by American troops today while thousands of shore residents were shunted off streets and into homes by 5,000 air raid wardens and civil defense workers.

Superior American artillery fire and beach defenses, coupled with superior American automatic weapon fire, enabled defending forces to frustrate the invading groups in a two-and-a-half hour battle, but not before the enemy had "destroyed" the Asbury Park convention hall, a theater, a large department store, an apartment building, while fifth columnists blew up a highway bridge.

All nonmilitary traffic in the area was brought to an abrupt halt. Bus passengers and pedestrians were ordered into stores or other establishments at all points but one. That spot was the Asbury Park boardwalk where thousands of vacationists simply stood, sat or stared at the maneuvering forces.

DETROIT STAGES BLACKOUT; WAR PLANTS EXEMPT

Detroit, Mich., May 24 (AP).—Preparing for the time when enemy raiders may arrive, Detroit staged a 15 minute practice blackout tonight on the biggest scale thus far tried in the middle west.

Factory whistles and sirens sounded the start of the test at 10 o'clock and lights began to blink out. Street lights and traffic signals were turned out and Detroit was in darkness except for airplane warning lights and war plants. Pontiac and nearby Michigan communities joined in the rehearsal, as did Windsor, Ont., and other Canadian border cities.

MYSTERY GROWS IN PROBE ON JOB PAY-OFF SCANDAL

Sen. Lucas Tells How He Rebuffed Ziller.

Springfield, Ill., May 24 [Special].—Mystery deepened tonight as to why union officials in Illinois government munitions plant districts kept George W. Ziller of Weston, Ill., as job dispenser after reputable national and state union chiefs had exposed him.

Attorney General George F. Barrett and Clifford N. Coolidge, state's attorney of McLean county, say their investigations have revealed that Ziller, who because he weighs over 400 pounds is jocularly known as "Slim," collected $63 union fees from many truck owners engaged on construction work at the Wilmington and Kankakee plants. The collection was made for local 179 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters of Joliet. In addition, Barrett says truck owners charge that Ziller exacted a "$300 split" for putting each truck to work and charged each owner $50 a week tribute to keep the truck working.

Charge Other Collections.

Barrett and Coolidge also charge that evidence shows that Ziller collected $21 apiece from hundreds of laborers at the two plants on behalf of local 75 of the Hod Carriers, Building Construction and Common Laborers' union of Joliet, and forced successful job seekers to join the Democratic club of his home town, which had an initiation fee of $25.

Another bit of evidence they exhibited consisted of red, white, and blue buttons with the word "Defense" stamped upon them. These, they said, were sold, purportedly on behalf of the union, to workers in the munitions plants for $1 each, the workers being required to purchase a new one each month.

Sen. Scott W. Lucas said in Washington tonight that he had asked an investigation of Ziller by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and that Green's inquiry had halted Ziller's operations for a time. However, Ziller was never repudiated by Virgil Floyd, teamsters' union treasurer, and John Graff, business agent of the hod carriers.

Sen. Lucas said that Ziller accosted him about a year ago during a meeting of the Democratic state central committee at Springfield. Lucas said Ziller demanded a job as Lucas' patronage dispenser for the state, representing that he could furnish Lucas powerful political support. Lucas asserted he was angered by the demands and manner of the 400 pound giant, and added:

"I practically told him to go to hell."

Reports New Ziller Demand.

Despite the rebuff, Lucas went on, Ziller later demanded appointment as the senator's patronage dispenser in the 17th district which includes Bloomington and Weston in McLean county. Lucas asked the AFL head to investigate Ziller.

Lucas was one of the political figures to whom voluminous records seized by the investigators indicate Ziller had telephoned. The senator said he never had talked with Ziller by telephone, but recalled refusing to accept calls from Ziller.

Despite Ziller's condemnation by both the national and state AFL organizations, the telephone records show calls to Henry Burger, international representative of the teamsters' union. And Mack Ray of Decatur, president of the teamsters' joint council in the territory around the Illiopolis ordnance plants, says that Burger has transferred most of the union jurisdiction there to Guy Long, head of the Springfield local. Investigators are looking into the possibility of job sales at Illiopolis.

The investigators planned to talk with every person listed by the Weston Independent Telephone company as having received a telephone call from Ziller in 1941. The list showed that Ziller's toll bill for that year was more than $800.

The list indicated that Ziller had telephoned one Bill Worthey of Springfield eight times. The telephone number was that of William G. Worthey, a clerk in the office of Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes of Springfield.

"I remember only one call from Ziller," Worthey said. "It was about the charter for the Democratic club of Weston. He came to the office one time, tho, and asked if he could make some long distance calls and charge them to his own phone. That might account for the other 7."

The telephone list indicates that all the calls were from Ziller in Weston to Worthey's number.

Record of Phone Calls.

Here is an official telephone company record of long distance calls made by Ziller to W. D. Forsyth, regular Democratic nominee for state treasurer. The calls were made during the construction of the government arms plants at Wilmington and Kankakee:

Forsyth, who during the period of these long distance calls was one of the heads of the automobile department in the office of Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes, explained them by saying that Ziller was trying to obtain a low automobile license number.

The inside story of how Ziller was able to exact tribute from his neighbors at the Wilmington and Kankakee plants was told tonight by Roy Herbert, one of the subcontractors in the hauling of crushed stone to the Wilmington plant.

"I had 12 trucks," Herbert said. "When the government had a lot of stone to be hauled immediately, I would call the teamsters' union in Joliet to get more trucks. It wasn't long until I began getting calls from Ziller. He'd tell me he had friends who needed jobs trucking.

"I know now that he was using me—calling to find out where the jobs were. If I needed trucks and drivers, I would tell him to send some over. Sometimes I called him on rush jobs.

"Some of the drivers he sent complained that the pay wasn't what he promised. I told them he didn't have any business making them promises. I never took a nickel from Ziller."

Owner Tells of Payments.

Herschel Dobson of Watseka, owner of three trucks, told of payments to Ziller. Dobson is one of those on a list compiled from license numbers of automobiles seen frequently at the Ziller home.

"To get work at the Wilmington plant," Dobson said, "I had to join the teamsters' union and raise the pay of my drivers to union scale. Then I had to give them back pay for 25 cents an hour less than the union scale which I had been paying them. And I was fined $109. It cost me about $500 to get my three trucks on the job. Five months later they were all kicked off."

SCORE OF FLYERS LEFT OUT OF RAID, DOOLITTLE SAYS

San Diego, Cal., May 24 (AP).—Brig. Gen. James H. Doolittle, commander of the United States air fleet which bombed Tokio April 18, told today how more than a score of disappointed flyers were forced to stay home while their squadron mates struck America's first mighty blow at the Japanese mainland.

"Nearly one-third of the volunteers who trained secretly for the Tokio mission were left behind at the last minute because of a limit placed upon the number of planes," Doolittle said in an interview. "They were heartbroken."

Earlier in the day Gen. Doolittle promised more raids on Japanese and German objectives in a radio address over a nation-wide hookup as a part of the army hour. He praised American airplane workers and manufacturers, calling their planes the best in the world. He asserted that Japanese pursuit planes "never had a chance."

BOMBER CRASHES ON ALLIED SHIP, SETS IT ABLAZE

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Monday, May 25 (AP).—An allied ship under attack by Japanese planes several hundred miles off Australia caught fire when an enemy plane, winged by anti-aircraft fire, crashed amidships, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

An allied destroyer rescued 100 survivors, many of them injured. Practically all men on the deck of the attacked ship were injured and many below suffered steam scalds and burns.

The planes attacked the vessel from three sides. Decks were machine gunned and three bomb hits were scored before the Japanese bomber struck the ship's funnel.

Crewmen Take to Boats.

The ship began to list and some of the crew were lowered in lifeboats. Others stayed with the ship and had the flames subdued by the next day. An allied destroyer came alongside, removed survivors, and sank the disabled vessel.

"They hit us 10 times with 250 pound bombs," said a convalescing crewman. "Near-misses blew holes in our sides and riddled our single stack. We listed over.

"We could have made out if that plane hadn't crashed on the deck. It sent a sheet of flame and metal across the deck.

Got 9 Jap Planes.

"Our fellows stuck it out and got nine planes. I saw at least four Japanese bombers go down."

A young engineer recovering from a fractured pelvis and burns said "they strafed us in the water but failed to hit us. We had drifted nearly a day on a raft when a lifeboat took us aboard. We then drifted for five days and nights."

There were nearly 30 crewmen in this lifeboat, the engineer said, and only one died before the allied warship came to the rescue.

BURMA ROAD CITY IN CHINA BOMBED BY 8 JAP PLANES

100,000 Nipponese Start Chekiang Drive.

CHUNGKING, China, May 24 (AP).—Japanese bombers based on Burma raided the heart of the important Burma road city of Paoshan and other points in western Yunnan province today while, far to the east, Chinese and Japanese soldiers fought savagely in Chekiang province.

Chinese dispatches said eight bombers escorted by six fighters bombed Paoshan. The results of the raids there and in other Yunnan points were not stated.

Paoshan is the next objective of Japanese forces fighting on the Burma road in Yunnan province.

The Japanese columns in Chekiang province are aiming at Kinhwa, provisional capital of the province, and Lanchi, on the south side of the Chientang river 12 miles northwest of Kinhwa.

Japs Number 100,000.

The bloody battles at three towns 25 to 35 miles northeast and east of Kinhwa, where the armies last were reported locked in combat, all have ended in Japanese successes, a Chinese communique indicated.

It said "Japanese troops, which with reënforcements now number almost 100,000, have launched a ferocious drive in Kinhwa from Tungyang, Yiwu [Iwu], and Pukiang."

The Chinese were battling desperately in front of Kinhwa, the most important military, economic, and communications center in eastern China remaining in Chinese hands. Japanese planes were bombing Kinhwa, already badly damaged, and other towns almost continuously.

Hot fighting also was in progress around Kienteh, 35 miles north of Kinhwa.

Japs Progress in Burma.

On the Burma front, between the Mekong and Salween rivers, the Japanese also scored a success after many days of hard fighting in which casualties mounted on both sides. The communique said the Japanese had made "some progress," but made no mention of the Burma road sector 250 miles north.

[The Tokio radio broadcast a Domei news agency report that the Japanese operations in eastern Chekiang province are near a successful conclusion. The radio said the Japanese were pressing on two important bases in the Tungyang river valley, east of Kinhwa and Lanchi, after occupying Tungyang, 37 miles from Kinhwa. The broadcast did not identify the enemy bases.]

Chinese dispatches said Chinese troops carried out a series of attacks against Japanese points around Nanchang, occupied capital of Kiangsi. Heavy casualties were inflicted and sections of a highway and a railway were destroyed.

CORP. NORTON'S REWARD: HIS GIRL SAYS HE'S BRAVE

St. Louis, Mo., May 24 (AP).—A pretty blue-eyed blonde was "thrilled to death" today at the latest exploit of her fiancé, Corp. Pat Norton, 20, bomber crew member in Australia.

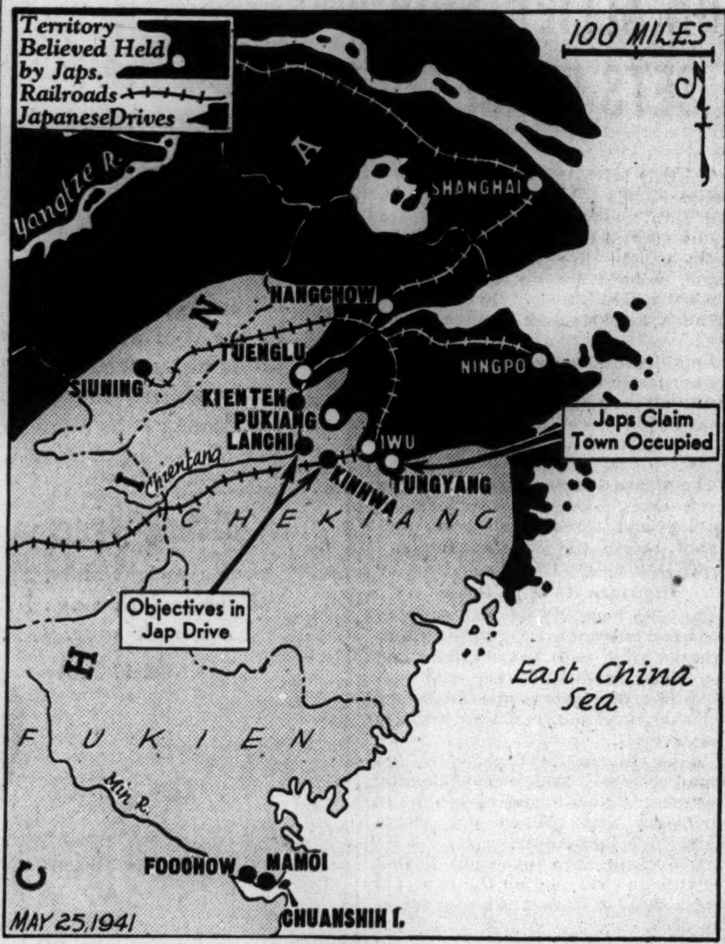
"I know he's so brave," breathed Miss Laverne Blocker, 19 year old insurance clerk. "And I'm terribly happy to hear he is safe."

News dispatches from Australia related how Corp. Norton and Sgt. John Engleman of Indiana, dangling heads down from a United States bomber, closed the plane's bomb bay doors at great personal risk.

Norton in April wrote Miss Blocker's name on a bomb that blasted a Japanese transport. "This is just one more reason why I'm so proud of Pat," the girl said happily.

The War in Eastern China .. ..

(Story in adjoining column.)



War developments reported yesterday from the fighting zones in eastern China are told in captions on the map. The defenders were seeking to prevent extension of Japanese gains in that sector.

TWO YANKS RISK LIVES IN MIDAIR TO FIX A BOMBER

Hang Heads Down and Close Doors.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, May 25 [Monday]—(AP).—Dangling heads down from a big United States bomber at 2,000 feet, with the earth and death waiting below if the ropes which held them broke, two bomber crewmen closed the jammed bomb bay doors of their ship after raiding Japanese bases in New Britain Friday, and came back smiling.

The two flyers were Sergt. John Engleman, 20, of Indiana, and Corp. Pat Norton, 20, of St. Louis.

The bomber was heading for its base from the target area when the trouble started. A Japanese Zero fighter, guns blazing, came diving down out of the clouds straight for the bomber.

Bomb Doors Jam.

The big bomber pulled up and headed directly for the Japanese plane. Sgt. Walter Darden, 20, of Mississippi turned the plane's nose gun on the Zero and held it there until the ammunition was gone.

The Zero burst into flames and, out of control, began to swerve wildly above the bomber. The bomber pilot sent his plane into a dive to escape the plunging Zero and watched it dive earthward.

The bomber pilot then discovered that his bomb bay doors had jammed, and called for volunteers to try to close them. Sergt. Engleman and Corp. Norton spoke up immediately and ropes were fastened about their waists.

Pulled to Safety.

As the wind tore past them and threatened to snap the ropes holding them to the plane, they were lowered down to where they could work on the doors. They were unable to wear parachutes because of the cramped space.

Dangling above the earth, 2,000 feet below, they succeeded in closing the doors and were pulled to safety by their crew companions.

New Britain Airdrome Blasted.

Allied bombers inflicted heavy losses among Japanese planes on the ground at a New Britain airdrome, Gen. MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

The raided base was Vunakanau, the main New Britain airport 12 miles southeast of Rabaul on Blanche bay. It has figured in many raids, but was mentioned by name for the first time today.

Twenty bombs were dropped on one group of 20 enemy aircraft on the airdrome and all landed in the target area, setting many of the planes afire, a communique said. One airdrome building was left ablaze. One allied plane was lost.

The raiders reported considerable anti-aircraft fire from Japanese batteries but that not a single enemy fighter rose to challenge them.

A terrific 25 minute air battle between an equal number of Australian bombers and Japanese navy Zero fighting planes was fought out over the sea near the Dutch island of Amboina in the East Indies Saturday night.

The bombers made a 1,200 mile round trip bombing raid and shot down three Zero fighters in flames after blasting enemy shipping in the harbor, a communique said yesterday.

It was the second raid in 10 days on the jungle-clothed island which lies about halfway between New Guinea and Celebes.

Zeros Kept at Bay.

A withering fire from the bombers kept the Zeros at bay. One Japanese plane was shot down into the sea and two others, disabled, left trails of smoke toward the sea 50 miles from their base. It was believed the Japanese lost these two also.

As the allied planes dived over the harbor they met a heavy concentration of anti-aircraft fire. They dived thru it, dropping bombs.

Pilots of the allied craft praised their gunners for keeping the Zeros at a respectable distance.

SLANG, PATHOS FILL AIR AS U. S. FLYERS RIP JAPS

BY WENDELL WEBB.

WITH UNITED STATES PACIFIC FLEET, May 24 (AP).—Not even the grim business of dropping bombs on their enemies can squelch the slangy humor of these American navy pilots.

Here are some of the comments of the airmen as heard coming from the radios of the various planes which participated in a recent major engagement:

"How do you like that?"

"Very good shot, my boy."

"Okay, let's go get it."

"Looks like good pickings."

"O boy! When are you going to let me get that big transport?"

"I'm heading for it now."

"Steady, steady. I'm heading for the oil tanker."

"Is anybody going to get that guy? I haven't any bombs left."

"I'll get that one."

"I'm attacking a cruiser."

"Eddie, go ahead and take to that kid ahead. It may be a carrier."

"You have one wheel. I believe you should land last."

"How much damage did we do?"

"There were 23 direct hits with bombs."

One note of pathos came in a radioed report from returning planes. It told us:

"Jimmy was left behind."

NEW ATTEMPTS TO GAG BRITISH PRESS CHARGED

News Curb and Enforced Merger Plan Bared.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 24.—News that the government intends to increase its restrictions on the distribution of news from official quarters to the press and has employed experts to study a proposed scheme for compulsory merging of many newspapers in the country is causing considerable concern among editors and newspaper owners. The World's Press News charges that orders to take these steps came from the highest authority of the government and sees in them an effort to gag critics.

It mentions a memorandum circulated by the prime minister to all government departments instructing civil servants to say nothing to the press, cautioning higher civil servants in responsible executive posts to pass on no more information that absolutely necessary to subordinates, admonishing all ministries not to inform their public relations departments of plans in advance, and further directing that the utmost care be exercised in preparing all publicity releases.

See "Handout Only" Policy.

"In this memorandum the government wishes to reduce news gathering from official quarters to a mere collection of handouts," the World's Press News says. "The government is against the democratic policy of taking the press into its confidence, which is of great importance if the press is to discharge its duty to the public and the government."

In a warning against the threat of enforced mergers, the World's Press News says: "Unless the newspaper industry as a whole stands united in the public interest, the British people may wake up one day to find that a great number of papers have been 'rolled together,' or even that they are all rolled into one under a 'patriotic' and all-embracing title of the 'British Gazette.'

"If this were to win the war more quickly it could be endured. But if it merely saves the skins of supersensitive politicians, it cannot be endured without shaking the roots of democracy."

Criticism "Well Founded."

The World's Press News, discussing the "suppression trend of thought" among government members, says it already has led to "1. Suppression of the Daily Worker [the communist party newspaper]. 2. A strong attempt to impose compulsory censorship some time ago. 3. Threats issued against the Daily Mirror. 4. 'Friendly warnings' which were quietly given other newspapers. 5. Censorship of opinion recently introduced by Brendan Bracken, minister of information, to control the tone of outgoing press cables. 6. Acquisition of control by the ministry of information and the foreign office of the British Broadcasting corporation."

"Freedom of the press" rallies, mostly under the auspices of the National Council of Civil Liberties, are being arranged all over the country.

JAP PARLIAMENT MEETS TO SPEED UP SHIPBUILDING

TOKIO, May 25 [Monday]—[from Japanese broadcasts]—(AP).—An extraordinary session of the diet [parliament] opened today "to further intensify the nation's material as well as spiritual mobilization." Domei news agency reported parliament would be asked to approve a government shipbuilding plan as well as a supplementary budget.

Premier Gen. Hideki Tojo, Foreign Minister Shigenori Togo and Finance Minister Okinori will speak this afternoon. Tojo, as war minister, and Adm. Shigetaro Shimada, navy minister, are to deliver reports on the war situation.

[The emphasis on shipbuilding indicated Japan was feeling a shipping pinch caused by extensive sinkings of her vessels by allied submarines, planes, and warships.]

Sponsored by the Veterans Poppy Day association, the sale of thousands of little red flowers will help disabled and discharged service men of the present conflict, as well as those of the last World war, C. Wives, daughters, mothers, and friends are the volunteer workers on street corners of the city this morning.

U. S. WATCHDOGS KEEP AXIS VIGIL ON BRITISH ISLE

St. Lucia's Bases Closest to French West Indies.

BY CLAY GOWRAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PORT CASTRIES, ST. LUCIA, British West Indies, May 24.—This lush tropical island, which in centuries past has seen more blood shed for its possession than any other small island anywhere in the world, has assumed a new importance in the war torn world today. St. Lucia now is the watchdog of the united nations on the Vichy French islands of Martinique and Guadeloupe.

Only 20 miles to the north across St. Lucia channel—a misty shape on the horizon—is Martinique, the seat of Adm. Georges Robert's colonial government and the site of present negotiations between Robert and the United States over the immobilization of French war vessels in the islands and other matters. Seventy-five miles farther north is Guadeloupe, the larger but less important of these two French possessions in the West Indies.

A Sleepy Isle Wakes Up.

Fourteen months ago St. Lucia was a peaceful, sleepy little island, whose 69,000 Negroes and 100 whites were principally concerned with one thing—the price of cane sugar, which is the island's only source of income. The war changed all that.

North of Castries, at Gros Islet bay, is the St. Lucia naval station, manned by marines and the United States navy. It was here, on March 22, 1941, that the first American service man to set foot on the island—a marine—landed.

On Vieux Fort bay, at the southern tip of this 233 square mile island, the United States army base and the army air corps' Beane field, are being rushed to completion. Here is a large force of troops commanded by Col. Ronald Ring, veteran regular army man. Here also are the fighter and bomber aircraft which make a daily patrol of the seas within 100 miles of the vicinity of St. Lucia.

These are not pleasure trips, for in the harbor of Fort de France on Martinique lie the big French aircraft carrier Bearn, the modern and powerful medium cruiser Emile Bertin, the light cruiser Barfleur, other war vessels, and 140,000 tons of French merchant ships. The United States is vitally interested in seeing that none slips away—perhaps to join the axis.

In addition to this activity, war has come to St. Lucia proper. On March 9 an axis submarine sneaked into Castries harbor and shelled two freighters tied up at the dock. The sub then sailed out of the harbor's mouth.

But war is nothing new to St. Lucia. This island was discovered by Columbus in 1502. In 1605 Sir Oliver Leigh arrived with 65 adventurers and tried to settle here, but they were attacked by man eating Carib Indians and sailed away with only 20 survivors.

In 1635 the British again tried to settle and were again driven off by the Caribs. In 1650 the French took over and from then until 1803 possession of the island seesawed back and forth between the French and the English.

It was in Gros Islet bay, where the naval air station now is, that the British Adm. Rodney anchored 36 ships in a line on Apr. 5, 1782 to await the battle which broke the power of the French in West Indian waters. On April 12 he sailed out against 35 ships under the French Adm. De Grasse.

Instead of sailing proudly along in a single line, firing broadsides in the custom of the day, Adm. Rodney smashed into the French line of battle, split up the line, and destroyed 17 ships to establish himself as a great naval strategist.

1,500 BRITISH MINERS STRIKE FOR MORE PAY DESPITE WAR CRISIS

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, May 24.—A survey showed today that there are many coal miners on strike demanding higher pay in various parts of Britain. One unofficial estimate placed the figure of idle miners at 15,000—this at a time when the coal shortage is so acute that government authorities are considering coal rationing as well as a reorganization of the entire industry.

Most of the strikes are "unofficial" and do not have the sanction of the miners' local unions. The chief reason for the miners' difficulties appears to be the feeling, especially among the younger workers, that mine wages should be comparable with those paid to young men and women working in government war production factories.

Addressing the Communist conference in London today, Arthur Horner, president of the South Wales Miners' federation, warned that "there is danger of a grave disturbance in this fundamental war industry."

American Ambassador John G. Winant will address 450 miners' delegates at Durham on June 6. He will, it was said, give them a "pep" message on war needs.

LABOR 'FROZEN,' 40 HR. WEEK GONE IN NEW ZEALAND

Government Gets Power to Control Workers.

BY QUENTIN POPE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, May 24.—New Zealand's wartime production drive moved into high today as national service department chiefs won powers to keep war workers at their benches for any daily period essential for defense output.

In addition, while congress committees debated the issue, socialist New Zealand imposed a limitation on double time pay for any nationally important work.

The manner in which the Nipponese threat has swept away social privileges won by workers here is shown sharply in a flock of wartime orders covering labor organizations, which have been pouring from government offices. All nationally important industries are now listed in an order to freeze existing labor forces, which once might have caused discontent owing to the attraction of highly paid munitions work.

Miners Work Saturday.

The traditionally turbulent miners in the future will work on Saturdays in order to stepup coal output and provide power for defense plants. Persistent late comers and absentees lacking reasonable excuses face heavy wage deductions. In addition, 21 year old girls are now being drafted into essential employment in industrial plants.

The cherished 40 hour week is now described by Supply Minister Sullivan as gone overboard. Sullivan cited industries which are working 52 and even 75 hours weekly.

"No Room for Comfort."

For a large scale defense works program begun after Pearl Harbor, the government slapped a ban on the building industry, enrolled engineers and artisans up to retirement age, and drafted them for work. Necessary materials and privately held plants were taken when suitable for the program.

To compensate workers for their loss of freedom of movement among jobs, the government has decreed a minimum working week.

Prime Minister Peter Fraser defined the wartime work program as one in which there is no room for comfort. The workers' peacetime objective Fraser called attainment of the highest standard of living, in which he said New Zealand had set the world an example.

Labor unions always sought to win the worker "his full share of the fruits of his toil, and leisure to enjoy them," but the demands of war meant it was no longer possible to share the fruits of toil, he said. Beyond the minimum needed for existence and for efficient production, the whole industrial output must be destined for war purposes, and the individual's material well being must be sacrificed in the interest of the common good, Fraser said.

PILOT PREDICTS ATTACK ON JAPAN FROM CHINA BASE

New York, May 24 (AP).—Capt. Harold Sweet, veteran commercial pilot, who returned today from the western Pacific by Clipper, said he believed a blow would be made at Japan thru China and at Japanese shipping in the China sea from air bases on the China coast.

"I think the drive on China will dry up as soon as we begin sinking Japanese boats in the China sea, which will be very soon," he asserted. "I believe that is why the Japs are so desperately trying to drive up into China thru Lashio and along the coast."

He said he believed a Japanese invasion of India or Australia was unlikely. He likened the Jap drive to "a skyrocket that has reached the top of its flight and will come down as fast as it went up."

LITHS MOBILIZE 100,000 STRONG IN CHICAGOLAND

Active in All Branches of War Effort.

ters in New York. Kasimir P. Gugis, Chicago attorney, is national treasurer. Its president is Fortunatus J. Bagocius of Boston. He reports that the alliance has purchased $77,000 in bonds and subscribed for $50,000 more. The alliance has more than 400 lodges, 40 of them in and around Chicago.

This organization maintains fraternal insurance as part of its social work, and it is organizing a fund to keep up payments for members in service. Three directors live in Chicago—Treasurer Gugis, Dr. Stephan Bizis, medical examiner, and Miss Euphrosine Mikuzis, 2121 North Western avenue, the only woman member of the board.

All Groups in Council.

About a year and a half ago the Lithuanian American council was formed in Chicago. It embraces all groups, Catholics, liberals and Socialists. Editor Simutis is president, the secretary is Pius Grigaitis, editor of Naujienos [Daily News], and the treasurer Michael Vaidyla, editor of a weekly paper, Sandara [Unity]. Its aim is to foster Lithuanian culture, keep organizations intact, help Lithuania region its independence and aid in America's war activities.

Another active organization is the Lithuanian Catholic federation. Editor Simutis is its national secretary. It has 55,000 members in the United States, of which 15,000 are in the Chicago branch in which 140 Catholic societies are federated.

Legion Post on Job.

Darius-Girenas post of the American Legion, whose members are of Lith stock, is active in promoting war activities. The post is named after the two Chicago Lithuanian aviators, Steponas Darius and Stasys Girenas, who in July, 1933, flew from New York across the Atlantic and crashed in Germany, only 500 miles short of their goal of Kaunas, Lithuania. There is a monument to the flyers in Marquette park. Lithuanica avenue is named after their ill fated plane.

Twelve Lithuanian Red Cross production units in Chicago have enrolled about 2,000 women. More than 2,000 other Lith women are active in neighborhood and other Red Cross units in the city. In addition the women have formed classes in first aid, nutrition and home nursing. These groups have raised about $6,000 for the Red Cross.

Give Blood Bank Unit.

Mrs. Josephine Dauzvardis, wife of the Lithuanian consul in Chicago, is prominent in the Red Cross work. It was largely due to her efforts that most of the Lithuanian units were organized. She is a member of the public relations department of the Chicago chapter of the Red Cross.

The Lithuanian Housewives Radio club Red Cross unit gave to the Red Cross a mobile blood bank unit to be used in the Chicago area. President of the club is Mrs. Sophie Barcus. Many Lithuanians are wearing the bronze pin indicating they have given at least a pint of their blood.

Active in Their Churches.

Chicago Lithuanians have 12 Roman Catholic churches, two national churches and one Evangelical Lutheran church. Oldest of the churches is St. George's in Bridgeport. Its pastor is the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Michael L. Krusas. It was founded 50 years ago. Each parish is active in war work. Each has its own school, with a combined enrollment of about 3,000 pupils. The Marian fathers established a boys' college in Hinsdale in 1925 and some 10 years later a Lithuanian clerical seminary. St. Casmir academy, at 2601 West Marquette road, has 600 students. There are two Lithuanian hospitals, Holy Cross and Loretto.

The Lithuanians are great lovers of music. The larger Lithuanian choruses in Chicago are Birute, established in 1907; Pirmyn, which placed first in the 1941 Tribune Musical Festival; the Knights of Lithuania chorus, and 12 parish choirs. The Beethoven Conservatory of Music was established in 1915 by Prof. Anthony S. Pocius. There are several bands and symphony orchestras.

The first Lithuanians, the Spokevicius and Liutkevicius families, settled in Chicago in 1870. A wave of immigration started in the '80s and was running high at the time of the world's fair in 1893. By 1910 Chicago had become the largest and fastest growing Lithuanian center in America. Some Lithuanian leaders say it is possible Chicago now may have more persons of Lith blood than Kaunas, capital of the old country.

Liths settled at Bridgeport, along Archer avenue, and pushed on to Brighton Park. They formed large colonies near Halsted and 33d streets and elsewhere in the old town of Lake. They also settled near Danville, and some of the towns in that area have had Lithuanian mayors.

Today many Lithuanians are employed in the steel mills, machine shops and other heavy industry plants. Many work in the stockyards. Others are carpenters and garment makers. The Liths contribute in a big way to the production of war supplies.

The Dal, which sailed 7,000 miles from Poland to Chicago in 1934, in the Museum of Science and Industry yesterday after formal presentation ceremony.

RUSSIA TO FREE MORE POLES FOR SERVICE IN ARMY

CAIRO, May 24.—Gen. Wladislaw Anders, commander of the Polish forces in Russia and the middle east, said here today that difficulties attending the release of Polish prisoners in Russia for service in the Polish army are believed to have been cleared up by Polish Premier in Exile Gen. Wladislaw Sikorski's recent visit with Joseph Stalin. Therefore Gen. Anders expects to find his Russian section of the Polish army much augmented when he returns.

Poles are being gradually moved into the middle east since this eases the problem of supplying them with food and arms from British and American sources.

"The Poles know that if Germany wins there will never be a Polish nation again," the general explained.

POLES GIVE BOAT SAILED ACROSS SEA TO MUSEUM

Sloop Is Dedicated as Freedom Symbol.

The Dal, a 27 foot one masted sloop which sailed 7,000 miles from Gdynia, Poland, to Chicago in 1934, became a museum piece and a symbol of freedom yesterday for thousands of Poles.

With a colorful parade and dedication ceremonies, members of the Polish Roman Catholic union presented the tiny vessel to the Museum of Science and Industry in Jackson park. Until last year the sailboat had been moored at 55th street and the Outer drive, suffering more damage from Chicago weather and vandalism than during its 89 days of passage across the Atlantic ocean.

The Dal was renovated several months ago by the youth department of the Polish Catholic organization.

Pay Homage to Yachtsmen.

At the presentation ceremonies, speakers representing the army, navy, and Chicago's Polish citizenry paid homage to the two Polish yachtsmen, Lieut. Andrew Bohomolec and Lieut. George Swiechowski, who sailed the Dal to Chicago.

Rear Adm Wat. T. Cluverius [retired], in the main address of the program, declared that the Dal will stand as "an expression of a nation that quickly learned seamanship in its fight for freedom." He said that many seamen of the little Polish navy had escaped when the Nazis seized their nation and are now serving in the allied fleets.

"We are still on the defensive," he said, referring to the American fighting forces, "but soon we will go forth and then we will give a good account of ourselves.

"The Poles always have fought for liberty. We are proud of them and of other foreign born who came to us and helped build our community. Together we are all Americans."

Praises Polish Naval Force.

Adm. Cluverius asserted that the Dal was a forerunner of the modern "Polish navy which gave such a good account of itself against superior fleets."

Among the other speakers were Brig. Gen. Joseph E. Barzynski of the 6th corps area ordnance department, Dr. Karol Ripa, Polish consul general in Chicago, and Anthony Czarnecki, former Chicago collector of customs.

Sea Scouts who helped repair the yawl for the museum marched in the parade with an all-girl drum and bugle corps and several troops of Boy Scouts.

U. S. 'BORROWS' BUSES IN WEST TO MOVE TROOPS

Los Angeles, Cal., May 24 [Special].—The army today "borrowed" a large number of buses from three local and San Diego transportation companies in order to expedite a troop movement.

Greyhound Bus lines, Santa Fe Trailways and Tanner Motor Tours were asked by army authorities to supply the buses quickly.

The army's request was met with promptness, resulting in a complete disruption of bus schedules.

Nearly 1,000 persons were stranded at the San Diego bus terminal.

A high army official said the buses would only be needed a short time.

U. S. WAR OUTPUT HAS INDUSTRY OF NAZIS ON SPOT

Admit They Can't Meet Needs, Says Writer.

[The terrific impact of the war on Germany's production machinery is told in the following dispatch by Edwin Shanke, a member of the former Wide World and Associated Press bureau in Berlin who recently reached Lisbon, Portugal, with other American newspaper men and diplomats after five months of internment in Germany.]

BY EDWIN SHANKE.

LISBON, May 24 [Wide World].—Nazi leaders are crying desperately for greater war production in the face of a deteriorating economic situation and an increasing flood of American armament for the united nations.

Some German economic authorities say that the chances for such an increase are slim.

"With Germany arming itself to the hilt for a new blow this spring and men changing their work clothes for field gray uniforms, firms which heretofore have barely been able to operate on the present basis of man power distribution naturally face a serious problem and even a shutdown," one German economist said.

"If the manufacture of armaments is expected to be increased despite such a situation, then the job seems to be one of making the impossible possible."

Six Measures Decreed.

The Nazi drive to intensify production has been marked by the following measures:

1. Extreme exploitation of all labor reserves including those of the occupied countries.
2. Closing of more factories unnecessary in the war effort.
3. Concentration and rationalization of war production in selected factories.
4. More restrictions on civilian goods.
5. Improved organization within factories.
6. The marshaling of propaganda machines to force people to new efforts and the use of the entire Nazi party machinery to locate and use every person capable of working who is not efficiently employed.

The objective in general is a greater saving in labor, raw material, transport, and energy.

The gaps in Germany's raw material supply virtually are the same today—and as serious—as at the start of the war. They cramp her production potentials.

"Ersatz" Drive Fails in Metals.

Her ersatz program under the four year plan has not found any replacement for vital metals such as copper, tin, tungsten, manganese, and chrome needed to harden steel, or for leather, lumber, drugs, and textiles. The fat shortages remain a headache.

Petroleum products, high speed lubricants, and rubber are inadequate.

Germany's tremendous plan for ersatz products so far has kept the air force supplied with fuel and the motorized army equipped with tires.

But it is a question whether Germany can continue to keep pace with military consumption.

The man power and transportation bottlenecks are playing havoc.

The mining of iron and coal, the chemical industry, the processing of coal for synthetic gasoline, and the manufacture of synthetic TNT and artificial rubber now in mass production have more or less reached their limits, a German economist said.

"A sudden increase in output is to be as little expected here as in the development of power," he added.

A 24 hour, 7 day week working schedule in all vital war plants has put the German industrial machine to terrific strain. Yet Germany neither can afford nor has she the capacity in the present stress of the armaments race to retool or make extensive repairs.

German hopes that the Ukraine would solve many supply problems were dispelled by the Nazis' own admission. They found the Ukraine mines and industry wrecked and admitted that nothing much productive could be expected from the Ukraine this year even in foodstuffs.

THE QUESTION.

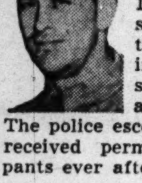
When you were younger did you ever want to run away from home?

WHERE ASKED.

La Grange and Burlington avenues, La Grange.

THE ANSWERS.

Saranda Gosda, student, 129 Ravine road, Hinsdale—I was just a little older than my sister, the baby of the family, but she was larger than I. Being the baby she would get her way most of the time and if she didn't she was big enough to fight for it. Every time I'd lose an issue I'd threaten to run away.



Frank Chaloupka, deputy sheriff, 1808 South 58th avenue, Cicero—My father wouldn't permit me to wear long pants, and being tall and thin I couldn't think of a situation worse than that. Three other boys in short pants felt the same way about it. As a protest we left home. The police escorted us back home. I received permission to wear long pants ever after.

Lois Martinek, student, 4117 Prescott avenue, La Grange—I thought I had been reprimanded too much for having stayed out late the night before. I threatened to go away for good. I made the threat more realistic by staying at a friend's house that night. I didn't realize the seriousness of the offense until the next day.

L. L. Lipps, railroad agent, Cedar Rapids, Ia.—Running away was a threat I used constantly when I was young. My father would always thwart my plans by helping me pack and offering to open the front door for me. When my threats failed to bring the desired effect I quit making them.

Will Bergstrom, office boy, 3320 Le Claire avenue—When we first moved from Texas to Chicago I didn't like the city. No one would comply with my wish to go back so I started walking toward what I hoped was Texas. Before I was very far out of the city I was homesick for my Chicago home so I turned back.

Laurel La Vigne, student, 630 North Brainard avenue, La Grange—Whenever my mother went out of the house and left me with some one else I rebelled. One night I expressed my rebellion by smearing cold cream all over her good dresses. I packed a few clothes in a doll trunk so I would be ready to leave if she should disown me.

RENEW PLEDGES TO U. S., BROOKS ASKS VETERANS

Senator Is Speaker at 2 Chicago Ceremonies.

As the nation at war prepared to honor its dead of previous wars in Memorial day ceremonies next Saturday, United States Senator Wayland Brooks yesterday asked all veterans to dedicate themselves anew to their country.

Sen. Brooks, a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, spoke before an audience of several thousand persons who attended the annual exercises of the 5th division of the Cook county council of VFW, at 639 North Sacramento avenue.

Dedicate Plaque to Veterans.

The ceremony took place before a plaque dedicated to all veterans of the World war from this area who lost their lives. It is an annual observance held by the division on the Sunday preceding Memorial day.

"As men who have served our country against the enemy on foreign shores," Sen. Brooks said to the 1,400 VFW members present, "we know the strain of facing a well armed, vicious enemy.

"We know how essential it is to have a united nation producing at its maximum capacity to provide and deliver the weapons of war."

Veterans know by experience the full sorrow and suffering that war always brings, the senator continued.

"We must dedicate ourselves anew to the service of the country in any capacity where we can again assist in the winning of the war," he said.

Hope of Lasting Peace.

"We must all pledge ourselves again to the hope we may help the United States triumph to such an extent that we may truly have a lasting peace."

James M. Woods, commander of the 5th division of the VFW, was in charge of the ceremony. As taps were played before the plaque, the Henry A. Honack post fired a military salute.

Among other speakers was Judge Matthew Hartigan.

Earlier in the day Sen. Brooks addressed a large audience, including man invalid veterans, at the unveiling of the George Dilboy Memorial on the grounds of Hines hospital in Maywood.

Dilboy Killed in Action.

George Dilboy was a Greek-American hero who fell in battle near the village of Belleau, France, on July 18,1918, while engaged in action above and beyond the call of duty.

Supreme Presidenct Van A. Nomikos of the order of Ahepa, the Greek society which helped raise the fund for the memorial, unveiled the monument.

The immortal words of Lincoln's Gettysburg address were read in the People's Church of Chicago, 941 Lawrence avenue, by Capt. Thomas Ambrose, one of the four surviving G. A. R. veterans in Cook county.

Capt. Ambrose, 93 years old, will be grand marshal of Chicago's Memorial day parade. Legionnaires of the Advertising Men's, Commonwealth Edison and North Shore posts attended the service at the church.

Gov. Green last night addressed an audience at the dedication of a service flag at the Irving Park Lutheran church. He warned that those on the home front must not fail the men who are on the front line.

Two colored men were injured and 15 other passengers were shaken up yesterday when a south bound street car in Indiana avenue was derailed at 18th street.

MEXICANS CROWD CAPITAL PLAZA IN ANTI-AXIS RALLY

MEXICO CITY, Mexico, May 24 (AP).—From president to peasant, approximately 100,000 Mexicans demonstrated against the axis today at a massmeeting in the capital's great central plaza. They paid homage to 21 men lost in axis submarine attacks on two Mexican tankers. President Manuel Avila Camacho was cheered when he appeared on the national palace balcony.

The 22 survivors of the tanker Potrero del Llano, sunk off Miami Beach, Fla., May 13, were given places of honor while the body of one of the 14 men lost in that sinking, Rodolfo Chacon, lay in state below the central balcony. Seven men were killed in the torpedo attack on the second tanker, the Faja de Oro, off Cuba last Wednesday.

With Mexico on the verge of declaring war on the axis, German, Italian, and Japanese property in the capital was guarded by 800 police on emergency duty.

Many German, Japanese, and Italian business houses were painted with slogans "Down with the Axis!" and "Down with Hitler!" despite the police guards.

BRITISH POUND AXIS AIRPORTS, SHIPS IN LIBYA

CAIRO, Egypt, May 24 (AP).—Axis airports, motor transport, and shipping in the Libyan area were heavily attacked by British bombers and fighters yesterday in a burst of widespread raiding, the RAF reported tonight.

This increased scale of air activity in North Africa was said by observers to coincide with efforts of both the British and the Germans to build up strength for the next desert campaign.

The British reported shooting down six German and Italian fighters over Libya and Malta at a cost of four missing RAF planes.

[The Italian high command announced that the RAF had suffered heavy losses in Cirenaica, putting the British losses on Friday and Saturday at 33 planes in Libya alone. The British, however, have reported only eight missing planes for those two days, four on Friday and four Saturday.]

Claim 15 Planes Downed.

BERLIN, May 24 [from German broadcasts]—(AP).—Fifteen British planes were shot down yesterday in a series of big dog fights over Marmarica in Libya, the Germans said today, and one German plane was lost. German artillery shelled British motor transport concentrations southeast of El Mekili, a high command communique added.

SMEARERS RELY ON NEW DEAL TO PROTECT THEM

Heavy Pressure Exerted to Stave Off Probe.

some charges aired by the administration organs. To his colleagues however he recognizes an obligation to expose the furthest reaches of the conspiracy to assassinate character in promotion of political objectives.

If he should yield to the pressure to drop the matter the chances are that the administration will be able to head off the threatened investigation. If he gives his consent to the investigation the administration will be up against a hard fight to prevent it.

The administration's fear of an investigation is well understood. For one thing the newspapers and persons involved in the aspersion of Sen. Walsh are top-notch favorites of the White House. Furthermore, any investigation of this particular smear would be bound to open the way to revelation of the whole skein of relationships between the administration and the persons and agencies engaged in the campaign to smear and purge all prewar noninterventionists.

The purge was launched last February by Edward J. [Paving Blocks] Flynn, chairman of the Democratic national committee, in which he said that "no misfortune except a major military defeat could befall this country" comparable to the election of a Republican congress.

Flynn Involved a Scandal.

Flynn, however, has been under a cloud for several months. He had no sooner touched off the purge than he found himself involved in the scandal of the paving of a courtyard on his country estate with paving blocks owned by the Bronx borough government of which he is political boss, and laid by New York City employés.

He made restitution and was whitewashed by a Bronx grand jury, but whether even with the support of President Roosevelt he can retain his chairmanship of the Democratic national committee is open to grave doubt.

With Flynn in eclipse, Charles Michelson, press agent for the Democratic committee and ghost writer for Flynn and innumerable Democratic bigwigs, has emerged as the President's chief purger.

Michelson recently called for the defeat of all prewar noninterventionist candidates for congress in a statement blaming the Republicans for the war, for Pearl Harbor, for the depression, and for all other misfortunes of the nation in the last quarter of a century. Michelson accused the Republicans of defeating the President's defense program, notwithstanding the statement of Speaker Sam Rayburn [D., Tex.] that "congress has given the President every law and every dollar he has asked for defense purposes."

Following Michelson's proclamation of the purge, the New Republic and the Union for Democratic Action put forth their blacklist of noninterventionists and conservative members of congress. Marshall Field was linked to this purge agency thru Kenneth Crawford, Washington correspondent of his New York newspaper PM, who is a director of the union. Field's PM, an administration organ, also was involved in the smear of Walsh.

Also prosecuting a purge of prewar isolationists along parallel lines are the Council for Democracy, which is staffed and financed largely by Henry Luce's Time-Life-Fortune publishing enterprise, and the Rev. L. M. Birkhead's Friends of Democracy. Specializing on the purge of the prewar noninterventionist press are Archibald MacLeish and his Office of Facts and Figures which includes numerous Communist fellow travelers.

Would Expose Pals.

A senate investigation of the Walsh smear would expose numerous close friends of the administration. Among them are Marshall Field, who publishes two administration organs, and Dorothy Schiff Backer, publisher of the New York Post.

Then there is Walter Winchell, the gossip columnist who wears the uniform of a lieutenant commander of the navy but by White House favor has successfully resisted all efforts to force or shame him into active service. Winchell wrote and broadcast that the name of the "Sen. X" begins with the 23d letter of the alphabet. There are several senators with names beginning with W.

Another close friend of the President involved in the Walsh smear is Morris L. Ernst, counsel for the New York Post. Sen. Clark told the senate that Ernst tried to interest Mr. Roosevelt in developing the smear but "to the credit of the President" failed. Judge Samuel Leibowitz was accused in the senate of subornation of perjury to obtain the accusation smearing Walsh.

Mrs. William H. Ford pointing to picture of her son, Kenneth, in the rotogravure section of The Sunday Tribune.

Three Chicago families yesterday found visual proof that their sons are with United States forces in Australia thru pictures published in The Tribune rotogravure section.

Kenneth Ford.

The first to identify her son, Staff Sergt. Kenneth Ford, was Mrs. William H. Ford, 1473 Catalpa avenue, wife of a detective attached to the Rogers Park station. Sergt. Ford, a former employé of the Fairbanks Morse company, has been in the army since November, 1940.

Marching along an Australian street immediately in front of Sergt. Ford is Corp. Morton Bernberg, according to the identification of his mother, Mrs. Margaret Bernberg, 6347 Lakeview avenue. Bernberg, 23 years old, is a graduate of Senn High school and has been in an anti-aircraft coast artillery regiment for a year.

Five members of Pvt. Edward Sotola's family recognized him marching on an Australian dock. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. James Sotola, 1526 South Kilbourn avenue, and has been a member of a field artillery regiment for 13 months. All three families have had cable messages from their sons since they arrived in Australia.

LA GUARDIA INDIFFERENT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 24.—Revelations that the New York axis of long standing—vice and crime—had been joined by a third partner, the character assassins, apparently have failed to ruffle the usually highly emotional Mayor Fiorello La Guardia or officials of his law enforcing agencies.

When asked about possible action against those responsible for the attempted smear of Sen. David I. Walsh [D., Mass.], an assistant in the office of District Attorney Frank S. Hogan sidestepped the issue by declaring his office had no knowledge of any contemplated action and, besides, he did not even know whether his office had jurisdiction in case some action should be taken.

Police Unperturbed.

Existence of the "house of degradation," an alleged nest of spies and perverts, in Brooklyn apparently caused no surprise in the police department, altho it was not spotlighted until Leonard Lyons and Walter Winchell, gossip columnists, reported that the name of a national figure would be introduced in connection with it.

Even after Majority Leader Alben Barkley [D., Ky.] rose in the senate and branded the attempted smear of Sen. Walsh a "diabolical conspiracy" and exonerated Walsh on the basis of an investigation by the department of justice, the New York Post, which printed the original charges, repeated them and launched an attack on the FBI.

No Cleanup Demanded.

La Guardia's indifference to the latest revelations of crime, vice, and degradation in a city long notorious as a breeding place of corruption comes as no surprise. No demands for a cleanup have been made and none is expected.

The history of the newest partner of the vice-crime axis goes back to District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, who succeeded in breaking up a notorious New York vice and blackmail ring when he sent Charles [Lucky] Luciano to prison in a cleanup campaign which won nation-wide approval. After Dewey left the scene to become the Republican candidate for governor, La Guardia's commissioner of investigation, William B. Herlands, brought forth a report on vice which the mayor hailed as evidence that the vice rings had disappeared.

This report was made in July, 1941, but the ink was hardly dry before a wave of crime broke out in Harlem which included murder and mugging [the art of maiming without murdering holdup victims].

Police Fixing Charged.

A newspaper campaign against vice was launched in which charges were made that La Guardia's police were being fixed. Threats of a citizens' investigation were quieted when 15 police lieutenants and two sergeants of the vice detail were returned to the ranks. Protests against conditions had been made by vice crusaders, civic leaders, and even school teachers who were alarmed by the delinquency among pupils.

Army and navy intelligence agents descended on New York because of the large number of soldiers, sailors, and merchant seamen visiting the city daily. The existence of waterfront dives and their danger as spy hangouts was publicized. Attention was called to the dime a dance joints lining midtown streets. Navy shore patrols were increased, especially along the Broadway sector where street walkers swarm nightly.

Presence of the big navy yard in Brooklyn has caused federal officials to expand their activities there. But the laxity in Mayor La Guardia's police administration was brought to light when John Harlen Amen, special prosecutor, uncovered widespread police graft.

Samuel Marcus, veteran vice crusader, complimented Amen for his work, but attacked La Guardia, charging that the graft had existed in the police department thruout the mayor's three terms.

N. Y. Papers Dodge Story.

One conspicuous feature of the exposure of the smearing conspiracy has been the treatment accorded the sensational revelations by the New York press. Despite its far reaching significance, the story generally was considered a one day affair.

None carried an editorial tho United States senators saw fit to characterize the affair as a "diabolical conspiracy" aimed at maligning all who sought to block the entrance of the United States into the war before Pearl Harbor.

New York papers reported that the FBI had cleared Sen. Walsh's name and printed liberal quotes from the speeches of Senators Wheeler and Clark. Except for a few isolated instances there was no mention of the story thereafter and no apparent attempt to follow it up locally.

This hush-hush attitude of the New York press has been commented on widely for several days. Some observers traced it to the desire of New York publishers not to further "embarrass" the Post's publisher, Mrs. Backer.

Observers tonight also recalled the relative treatment accorded to interventionist and noninterventionist groups before Pearl Harbor. The former, which blossomed like hot house flowers in the center of internationalism, had no difficulty in getting their views set before the public, while the latter virtually had to jam Madison Square Garden before their rallies were publicized in the press here.

SAMPLES STOLEN FROM AUTO.

Charles W. Bange, a salesman of novelties, reported yesterday to police the theft of two cases containing sample gifts worth $200 from his automobile in front of his home at 429 Wrightwood avenue.

Memo FOR MEMORIAL DAY TRAVELERS:

THIS YEAR Memorial Day falls on Saturday, May 30. That means a long week-end holiday. Coupled with the fact that tires and gasoline are rationed, it probably means a record-breaking demand for train accommodations.

Furthermore, thousands of our armed forces will be on furlough or leave. Additional thousands of civilians will be traveling to their homes or away on holiday visits.

And this year the railroads must handle the huge volume of holiday travel while meeting the extraordinarily heavy demands placed on their services by military and war-business traffic.

So if you are inconvenienced in any way please realize that these are unusual times but that the Pennsylvania Railroad is making every effort to handle the expected holiday rush.

Here are a few suggestions to help make your holiday trip a little pleasanter:

1 If possible, start your trip on Wednesday or Thursday to avoid the peak rush on Friday.
2 Plan to return on Monday or later in the week.
3 Whether you're going Pullman or Coach buy your tickets in advance and avoid standing in line at station ticket windows. Buy round trip tickets. You save time and money.
4 If you're going Pullman, please accept whatever accommodations are available. And if you decide to postpone your trip, please cancel your space at once so that it can be assigned to others.
5 If you're going coach, be sure to get to the station well in advance of your train's departure time. It's "first come, first served" for seats.
6 Travel "light"—take as little luggage as possible. Excess luggage only adds to the discomfort and confusion of already crowded trains.
7 Get complete information about train schedules well in advance.

THERE is much additional information in the records of World War I that shows the bravery and courage of Douglas MacArthur. He fought side by side with his men. He was twice wounded in action. He was gassed. For extraordinary gallantry under fire, he received thirteen decorations and seven citations for exceptional valor.

In a letter to Gen. Pershing, Maj. Gen. Charles T. Mencher said, "The record represents the unremitting endeavor of a very brilliant and gifted officer who has, after more than a year's full service in France without a day apart from his division, filled each day with a loyal and intelligent application to duty such as is, among officers in the field, without parallel in

MAP FINAL WEEK OF CAMPAIGN IN HIGH COURT RACE

Both Sides Seek to Swell 6th District Vote.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Dixon, Ill., May 24.—Both Republican and Democratic forces in the 6th Supreme court district plan a final week of organization work to get out the vote for the June 1 election, in which Justice Elwyn R. Shaw [D., Freeport] is seeking a second term against Circuit Judge William J. Fulton [R., Sycamore].

Leaders of the G. O. P. in these 12 northwestern Illinois counties believe that the voters of the district will reassert their usual Republicanism by electing Judge Fulton. The Shaw people, while making no directly contrary predictions, say much depends upon the potency of a bi-partisan committee which is recruiting support for the justice.

Founded by Group of 10.

Organized as the Unified Voters' club, admirers of Shaw's judicial record in both parties have been working in his behalf since January on this premise: "Judge Shaw has kept himself and his judicial work entirely out of politics, he has made a good judicial record for nine years, and at the age of 53 should be kept in office for another term."

In describing formation of this organization in the speech he made to the Democratic nominating convention, Justice Shaw said that it was the work of 10 of his friends—eight Republicans and two Democrats—who "had little idea of the size to which their organization would grow." Before the April 11 convention it had a membership of more than 2,000, the judge continued, which since had been increased.

The committee works out of Freeport, where Shaw seems strongest of any large community in the district. His friends say he will carry Stephenson county, of which Freeport is the seat, as well as Whiteside county, where he was born. They also forecast a good vote for him in Winnebago county [Rockford] and in Jo Daviess county [Galena].

Republican leaders are politely disbelieving when this forecast is repeated. They grant Shaw's popularity in Freeport, his home; privately many say he will beat Fulton there. They don't admit that he is likely to carry Stephenson county, however, or any other. Paul C. Rosenquist, state tax commissioner and Winnebago county chairman, is particularly confident of a big Fulton majority in his county.

In the east portion of the district—in Fulton's home county of De Kalb, and in Kane county—Republicans think they will roll up totals for Fulton which will be memorable for a Supreme court election.

In the April primary Kane county cast almost 10 times as many Republican as Democratic votes, the score being 20,520 Republican and 2,710 Democratic votes. Winnebago, the second largest county, was about four to one Republican, and McHenry county, third highest, was more than eight to one for the G. O. P. None of the 12 went Democratic and the over-all G. O. P. preponderance was 76,766 votes.

Conducts Quiet Campaign.

Justice Shaw's campaign has been a quiet one, with his meetings principally arranged with a view of meeting the workers—the people who keep in contact with the voters. When he speaks to them Shaw keeps generally to the theme he outlined to the nominating convention that the Illinois Supreme court justices do not act as politicians in their deliberations in Springfield but only as strict, impartial interpreters of the law.

"We do not have one brand of justice for Republicans and another for Democrats," Shaw told the convention. "We do not consider the rights of one political leader superior to those of another, and we make no distinctions between white and black, rich and poor, Catholic or protestants.

"Unless a man can be elected to the Supreme court, as I was nine years ago, free to serve with these principles in mind, he might better never be elected at all.

"Each member of the court, and I have served with 11 of them, has regarded himself as a high priest of the law, with the bar of justice as his altar. Those who seek to change this position of the judges are not serving the interests of the people of Illinois, but only some selfish desire of their own."

Opponents Praise Fulton.

Judge Fulton takes considerable satisfaction in his campaign from the support being given him by his three opponents for the nomination at the 6th district Republican convention in Oregon—former Judge Franklin J. Stransky, Savanna; Frank Maynard, Rockford, and David R. Joslyn, Woodstock. Stransky paid high tribute to Fulton's judicial ability at a recent meeting, and the others have assured him of their active aid.

Fulton has been over the district thoroly since his nomination, speaking here and there in his modest way. He stresses the importance of the two-party system and says that Republicans, by casting a large vote, can point the way for success of the state ticket next November.

Generally, the judge adds a kind word for Sen. Wayland Brooks [R., Ill.] at this point, praising his record and noting that the eyes of the country will be turned upon Illinois this fall when Brooks goes before the voters.

Stresses Importance of Post.

In stressing the importance of the post he now seeks, after 19 years on the Circuit bench, Fulton says he appreciates the responsibility toward which his party has pointed him.

He adds that on the Circuit bench a judge may take the position that if he errs, it will be corrected by the Appellate court, or if not there, by the Supreme court. The latter tribunal, he says, is almost the last word, since few cases go on from there to the United States Supreme court.

He closes by saying that if he is sent to the Supreme bench he will be fair and impartial and will give to the job the best that is in him.

FATHER DIVINE OPENS HIS NEW $60,000 HEAVEN

New York, May 24 (AP).—Sitting in a red plush chair beneath a picture of himself labeled "God" in gold leaf, Father Divine opened a new "heaven" today for his Harlem followers with a "call to the colors."

Responded his sisters and brothers, rosebuds and crusaders:

"We're so glad, Father darling."

The Negro leader tapped a brass clip bearing the initials "U. S." on his lapel. His voice rolled out to the 1,500 followers there:

"I now call on those who are lame, halt, and blind—socially, financially, or politically—to sit down at my communion table. I am sure I have hundreds of thousands of followers who will not ignore my call, or my call to the colors."

The followers shouted with joy, and then sat down to a turkey dinner in the $60,000 five story community center, which will be used as a day nursery, restaurant, home for the aged, and training school.

WE'RE GOING BACK TO BATAAN!

THE TWO RUSSIAS.

Soviet Russia is two separate and distinct entities. It is on the one hand a nation, all the elements of which are imbued with sentiments of intense nationalism. Russia, the nation, has been mobilized to throw back the invader, her traditional enemy, the Hun. Stalin's army is fighting Hitler just as the czar's army fought the kaiser, only more effectively. In Russia's fight to survive as a nation lies the great hope of the world for early peace.

On the other hand, soviet Russia is the agency of revolutionary communism. It aims at the overthrow of government after government, by force, if necessary. It is determined to destroy the economic order based upon rights of individuals such as prevails in the United States and the British empire, and the replacement of it with the Russian collectivist system.

Russia, as the international revolutionist, has been continuously active in the United States. When the United States recognized Russia in 1933, one of the solemn undertakings of the soviet was that it would refrain from carrying on its propaganda in this country. It failed utterly to keep its covenant. Secretary of State Hull warned Russia of "serious consequences," unless the soviet government ceased to follow the "policy of permitting activities involving interference with the internal affairs of the United States." The propaganda work was extended after they promised to quit it. They publish newspapers and magazines here, which are dominated by international revolutionary headquarters in Russia. They have been able to place employés in the government. A Communist party was organized in the United States and the Presidential nominee of the Communists, Earl Browder, was discovered to have been making trips to the home office of revolutionary communism in Russia, using a false name in his passports.

Russia might have prevented the outbreak of the European war by standing firm with France and Britain against Hitler. Instead, on Aug. 22, 1939, Stalin and Hitler made a deal, the terms of which included the dismemberment of Poland and Russia's neutrality in the war. It is generally recognized that the soviet-German agreement was the determining factor in starting the war. It is an axiom of communism that wars are followed by revolutions. Russia could see the success of her long time purpose to bring about a Communist revolution in the mutual destruction of the capitalist powers. War as such helped her in her main purpose.

When Hitler struck at the Ukraine, however, the age-old intense nationalism asserted itself again in Russia. We all thrill at Russian successes. The United States is striving to bring every possible facility of war to the aid of Russia in the valiant fight she is making against our common enemy. At the same time, we must not forget that the long time purpose of the soviets is to overthrow the American government, and that there are Communists even now at work here with that objective.

In the period before the Russians became our allies communism made considerable strides here. THE TRIBUNE opposed the progress of agents of the Russian revolutionists and the fellow travelers as effectively as we knew how. We welcomed in this fight to save our government and our way of living many organizations and individuals in this country. Some of them now seem to have used the cloak of a noble and patriotic cause to mask their bigotry or adherence to the tenets of fascism. Those who attempt to identify us with such fakers or with the crackpots have motives which do not bear scrutiny.

The specter of revolutionary communism hangs over Europe. We are determined to do all we can to see that it doesn't happen here. We shall not be deterred by dirty insinuations.

"MODEL EMPLOYER."

Because of alleged fear of sabotage, the city has laid off a crew of AFL auto mechanics getting $1.12½ an hour and turned their work over to members of another AFL union, the construction machinists who get $1.62½ an hour. The incident is typical of union negotiations with governmental agencies. There is even a name for it. It is called "making the government a model employer."

As this racket—for it is a racket—works in Chicago local governments are found paying considerably higher wages than members of the same unions get for exactly the same work for private employers. As one instance, elevator operators in public buildings, on the whole less courteous and efficient than those in privately operated office buildings, get a higher wage scale than the unionized operators in the private buildings. This comes about because the politicians who negotiate the wage scales for the governments are threatened with, and are afraid of, political reprisals, and because the politicians are spending somebody else's money.

Because their jobs are so obviously more desirable than those held by other members of their craft, the union workers concerned are subjected to endless extortions, both in the way of political contributions and services and, in many instances, of extortionate union initiation fees and dues. The continuance of this racket does nothing to enhance public regard for the unions involved and it is a constant reproach to the politicians who put up with it.

100 YEARS IN TEXAS.

The Dallas Morning News celebrated its 100th anniversary April 11 by issuing a special 144 page edition. It may strike some people as remarkable that Texas had a newspaper in 1842, but it must be recalled that from 1820 on there was extensive colonization under the leadership of Stephen F. Austin and that six years before the first date of publication Texas had declared its independence and had fought a victorious war to confirm its sovereignty.

The News was first published in Galveston and did not establish itself in Dallas until 43 years later. It had been publishing for three years before the republic of Texas was granted statehood. Its format, of course, has changed greatly in 100 years, but it has never lost the vigor and independence that are part of its frontier heritage. Now the oldest business institution in Texas, it has the solid claim on its following that newspapers enjoy which grow up from the beginning with their section and community.

ISLAND OUTPOSTS.

The elaborate diplomatic negotiations pursued to insure that the French Caribbean islands of Martinique and Guadeloupe will not be used against us raise a question about the permanent status of these and other islands that flank us and our sea communications in both the Atlantic and Pacific. The United States has consistently disclaimed a policy of imperialism and our relations with the Filipinos have proved our sincerity, but there are realities in the modern world to which all other great powers do not close their eyes, and certainly we are justified in insisting for once that our interests be safeguarded.

We are seeking to immunize the French Caribbean possessions and to establish temporary military protectorates over such "Free French" possessions in the Pacific as New Caledonia and the New Hebrides. The policy looks no farther than the duration of the war, whereas we have no assurance that the future may not bring new threats to our safety.

Our present relationship with Vichy France is delicate and there may be no disposition to disturb its equilibrium, but after the war, when the French collaborationists have gone, France will be deeply indebted to us for her restoration as a free and independent nation. We might then urge our need for the Caribbean Islands that flank us, as well as the Marquesas and Society Islands. None of these French islands in the Pacific is of any economic importance. They have been so neglected under the French colonial policy that their inhabitants in recent years have frequently expressed their desire to have us take them over.

We shall certainly have no scruples about stripping Japan of the great Micronesian island group that forms a series of stepping stones in the Pacific. Japan acquired these islands under mandate and violated the proviso that they were not to be fortified. They have given her a great advantage in the Pacific war and we must take them to draw her fangs.

We already have good grounds for requesting such British Pacific possessions as guard our vital sea routes, for Britain has told us that the defense of the Pacific is our responsibility. In the Atlantic and Caribbean the system of leased bases has not been wholly satisfactory. It would simplify the problem if the islands were transferred.

The possession by the United States of the French, Japanese, and British islands would promote our security and could endanger no other nation. The bases from which hostile planes or submarines could strike at us should be in our hands.

THE WHITEWASH IS GETTING THIN.

Ed [Paving Blocks] Flynn's golfing partner and political Man Friday, District Attorney Samuel J. Foley of the Bronx, reached the conclusion that his coat of whitewash which his grand jury applied to the Democratic national chairman wasn't sticking any too well. The grand jury had been forced by publicity to investigate the theft of city owned paving blocks, which later were laid by city labor in a courtyard in Flynn's country estate. Flynn made restitution after the graft was exposed and the grand jury brought in the strange report that altho the crime had been committed, no one was indictable for it.

Much light was thrown on the incident when one of the grand jurors made an affidavit that Flynn's district attorney, Foley, had instructed the jurors that an indictment could not be voted if allegedly stolen property had been returned before the grand jury indicted. That is the old pickpocket's defense of offering to return the victim's wallet if he will refrain from testifying in court and has no standing whatever in the law.

When the affidavit was made public Mr. Foley called his grand jury back into session. There was no further attempt to investigate Flynn. Instead, the grand juror who spilled the beans was, according to members of the New York Citizens' committee, threatened with citation for contempt or criminal prosecution in an effort to force him to withdraw his statement.

Foley's first coat of whitewash couldn't conceal Flynn's venality and the second only served to wash off the first. In the words of Paul J. Kern, who was fired from his New York City job by Flynn's ally, Mayor La Guardia, for exposing the scandal, the net result of the whole proceeding is to establish in Flynn's borough of the Bronx that stealing from the city is not a serious offense but exposure of the theft is.

MORE HATE DEBATE.

[Birmingham Age-Herald.]]

The continuing debate as to whether it is necessary to hate to fight a war effectively received new fuel recently at the Institute of Education by Radio, held at Columbus, O. Norman Corwin, writer-producer of the "This Is War" series which filled all major networks for half an hour each Saturday several weeks, told assembled radio men that radio's job was to "indoctrinate the people" with the knowledge of what they are fighting for and why. Mr. Corwin, mentioning the launching of several destroyers, said they were not built by radio commentators. Mr. Corwin, perhaps, failed to see that what a people fight for is not "indoctrinated" by a highly dramatic radio play either. While Mr. Corwin's plays, which were intended to "indoctrinate," did not deliberately promote hatred, they did not avoid situations and dramatic presentations which offered some persons an easy opportunity to hate.

Arch Oboler, another radio writer director, made no bones about what he thought. "Anger is what the people want," he said, "and they want hate, the hate of a determined people who are going to kill. . . . The public says: Make us angry. We like it."

Mr. Oboler seems undesirous of distinguishing between hatred of oppressive ideas and hatred of men. The counter-argument, of course, is that we must hate such ideas, but we must not permit ourselves the frailty of hating men, however provoked we may be.

Father Edward J. Flanagan of Boys' Town said: "We must not permit ourselves to be smeared with the same moral filth we are criticising in our enemies."

Father Flanagan's comment is one of deep wisdom. The comments of Mr. Corwin and Mr. Oboler are largely of emotion. These are, certainly, emotional times, but we know, too, the eternal prevailing triumph of wisdom.

Pierre Laval says he doesn't believe his accession to power has created a favorable reaction in the United States. That's probably true. In fact, some of us love him almost as little as the French do.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

Reg. U. S. Pat. Office

WORDS FOR SAILORS.

Gob: This slang word for enlisted men came into general use during the Great War, replacing "bluejacket." It seems to be going out of fashion in This War. Its origin is uncertain, but it's a safe guess that the Irish "gob" for "mouth" lurks in the background. Maybe it implies that the gob is a gabby guy about his adventures; maybe it suggests that he is a tough mouthful.

Yeoman: An old English word with various meanings, some of them associated with the tilling of the soil. It began life as "attendant" or "retainer." It also has military meanings; see Gilbert and Sullivan's opera, "The Yeoman of the Guard." In the U. S. navy, a yeoman is a petty officer with clerical duties.

Coxswain: It comes from "swain" and "cockboat." A sailor who has charge of a ship's boat and crew and usually steers.

Boatswain: "Swain" formerly meant a servant or knight's attendant. A warrant officer of importance in naval service; he has direct charge of work under the general supervision of the officer of the deck or executive officer. Rigging, anchors, cables, cordage are, or used to be, his special field.

Quartermaster: A petty officer who attends to the helm, binnacle, signals, etc., under the master or navigator; navigating equipment such as log line, lead line, sounding machine, etc., are in his province. This according to an up-to-date dictionary and a naval glossary of 1927.

Ensign: This lowest junior officer rank came into the U. S. navy after the Civil war. The word is taken from the old-school army vocabulary. The ensign replaced the midshipman, who was pushed back into the naval academy.

Commodore: The rank is obsolete. It existed in the U. S. navy until 1899. A commodore was an officer commanding a squadron, division, ship of the first class, naval station, etc., whose rank corresponded to that of a brigadier general in the army. The word lingers in the merchant marine and yacht clubs.

Admiral: This is one of the few great naval words of exotic origin. It comes from Arabic, and its native form was "amir-al-bahr"—commander of the sea. Its firm hold in most European languages suggests the maritime power of Saracens, Moors, and Turks in the Mediterranean from the rise of Mohammedanism until the battle of Lepanto in 1571.

WOES OF A PARENT.

For people whose sons
Are collectors of guns,
My sympathy's deep and abiding;
Son of a gun!
The guns of my son
Are seldom, if ever, in hiding!

His themes of discussion
Are "flintlock," "percussion,"
And "derringer"—all, I confess,
Beyond me. He'll say,
"This dates from the day
Of the hard-riding pony express."

In living room, hall,
On table or wall,
Are barrels, and hammers, and sights;
I don't understand
How with gun in one hand,
He gets all his homework done, nights!

Be that as it may,
This one thing I'd say:
(His pleasure I'd not be deriding)
But—for people whose sons
Are collectors of guns,
My sympathy's deep and abiding.

Casual.

Roll Call for the Home Guard.

We old guys registered the other day.

You know our neighborhood. Ritzy, shirt-front buildings overlooking the park. On the wrong side of the street is the garage where the Valentine's day massacre occurred, night clubs, and stag hotels. It is a cross section of Chicago from penthouse to poverty.

In the registration line was a workman liquored up and loquacious, a banker with limousine and chauffeur, a cripple on crutches, two bums from the flop joint, a splay-footed guy with one leg sticking out at right angles, an old gent carrying a cane, a bulbous nosed bird with a proboscis like a pomegranate, an invalid in a wheel chair, myself and my ulcer.

That is selective service in the old men's class. Not worth a dime a dozen for war, but what a swell bunch of air raid wardens, fire extinguishers, and listening posters we'll make! Sciolist.

A SUSPICIOUS CHARACTER.

I wouldn't say a thing I thought would fool ya,
But this man's actions were, at best, peculiah;
The truth of what I say there's no denying,
Since multitudes of folks on him were spying.
His unique crime, e'en tho it him befitted,
Was one that seldom ever is committed;
He shunned the newsstand just as leaves shun dead vines,
And never paused to look upon the headlines.

The Red Badge of Wartime.

Have you noticed how the women are wearing red this spring? Red hats, red blouses, red purses, red shoes, red suits and coats. Nail polish like bright flower petals. Color like flame on mouths that must keep smiling. Every woman you see is wearing a bit of red.

Red, for anger. The crimson mist before the eyes, the surge of indignation that pulses thru the veins, the pounding wrath that fills the heart to breaking.

Red, for courage. Courage to do the small things, the tiresome things; to knit the garments, to wind the bandages, to pinch the budgets. Courage to do the daily drudgery of work, and to wait, wait, wait for word that may never come.

Red, for the blood they shed.
Red, for the brave! Olive Carruthers.

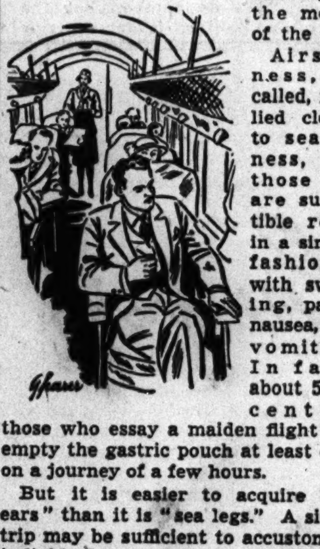
AIRSICKNESS IS UNFASHIONABLE.

AIR travel has become a fixed habit with many Americans and a seasoned addict is rarely ill. With novices, however, the machinery of the ear is subjected to a new experience. This is occasioned chiefly by the motion of the ship. Airsickness, so-called, is allied closely to seasickness, and those who are susceptible react in a similar fashion—with sweating, pallor, nausea, and vomiting. In fact, about 5 per cent of those who essay a maiden flight will empty the gastric pouch at least once on a journey of a few hours.



But it is easier to acquire "air ears" than it is "sea legs." A single trip may be sufficient to accustom an individual to the maneuvers. Recurrence on subsequent jaunts is unusual. With particularly rough weather, however, the symptoms may return in full force.

Common causes include a bumpy condition of the atmosphere or sharp changes of direction, especially quick vertical movements on the part of the plane. We must not minimize the influence of noise and vibration, both of which increase fatigue and sensitivity of the nervous system. Some passengers will complain of illness because of odors from the engines or poor ventilation within the compartment.

How much diet has to do with a typical upset is questionable. On the other hand, trained aviators find that small meals are far more advisable than a large quantity of food imbibed just before the "takeoff."

We are told that on shipboard, passengers must not watch the horizon. This accentuates the up and down, or pitching motions of the vessel. The encountering of air pockets with a drop of 200 feet or more will often produce the same effect. Watching the landscape, then looking at a book, and varying the gaze constantly from one to the other is conducive to dizziness.

Several years ago it was felt that a few individuals were temperamentally unfit to ride on railroad trains. Carsickness was far more common with those who took only occasional excursions. But with the routine use of this type of transportation, all such episodes have well nigh vanished. This is true also of air travel. With the public accustomed to this mode of transport seizures which were fairly widespread a few years ago are now met with infrequently.

While drugs are seldom of value, nevertheless the inhalation of ammonia salts and freeing the mouth from mucus will be helpful. A mouth wash may be employed with advantage from time to time. Stopping the ears to protect the drums from noise is comforting to many. Plugs can be adjusted to the external canal, or the area covered with muffs.

Deafness is quite another matter and depends upon the ventilation of the middle ear during flight. If the Eustachian tube, which leads from the nasal airways to the middle chamber, can be kept open—little difficulty will be suffered. In this connection, swallowing is routinely practiced. The inflation of the tube is quite important as the plane drops in elevation. Sometimes it can be opened by merely closing the nostrils and the lips, then blowing gently.

THE ECONOMICS OF HUCKLEBERRY FINN.

Sparta, Ill., May 20. — Being anti-Marxist and democratist, I naturally like Mark Twain's Huckleberry Finn and do not like Charles Dickens' Cratchitts.

Huckleberry Finn is an autocrat. Democracy, far from eliminating autocracy, recognizes everybody in the rank of an autocrat. Life includes its economy: A human being is known by his economy and we view Huckleberry in the light of his, nobody else's, economy. Huckleberry wasn't created to be housed, clothed, fed by a kindly shepherd. Huckleberry was created to prove the housing, etc., of the shepherd to be superfluous and handicapping baggage. Huckleberry is no recipient of privilege, is instead the dispenser of privilege.

In terms of economy, in terms of that which differentiates humankind from nonhumankind and differentiates one human from all other humans, a Cratchitt makes no impression. The Cratchitts were created merely as stooges for the play of changing moods of a Scrooge economy. The tendency of Scrooge economy is toward Cratchitt destruction, for which a miserly employer is less effective than a kindly shepherd.

FROM A WPA WORKER.

Chicago, May 19.—When I saw Mr. Orr's cartoon of the Communist wolf today I just couldn't resist telling you how much I envy you your freedom to say whatever you think, while the rest of us can only think but dare not say the very same things.

For, alas, I am one of those who, because I have been unable to secure employment in private industry, have been literally forced to accept work on a WPA project. There they would control even our thoughts if it were possible for them to do so. There are so many things I want to say, but dare not. So many things I could say. The inefficiency and waste which are countenanced, the laxity which is condoned, because some one has a "pull."

The release of Browder fills me with dismay. But I dare not express the faintest disapproval. Should I do so it would mean the loss of a position which is utterly repugnant to every fiber of my being, even tho it keeps a roof over my head and supplies me with food. Thank you for saying what I want to but dare not. WPA WORKER.

NEWS FROM AUSTRALIA.

Chicago, May 20.—You can imagine our pleasure at receiving a letter from a family in Australia in whose home our son was billeted for a few days. The letter, dated March 17, might be of interest to other Tribune readers who have boys with MacArthur:

"I suppose you will be surprised to receive a letter from some one in Australia whom you have never met. Your son Ben and his pal stayed with us for a few days and when they were leaving they gave us your address and asked us to write, so that is the reason I am writing.

"We were very pleased to billet your son and his pal and I suppose it is nice for you to know that the American soldier has left behind him an excellent character. We in Australia were very interested in their conversation and seemed to have known them for years. We were told that we would be having them for three weeks and I can assure you that when they came home from parade and said they were leaving after five days we were very disappointed. Of course I have no idea where the boys are but we hope they are both well. We have given them both an invitation back to our home if ever they have the luck to be within range of our city."

GROUCHY TO SAILORS.

Chicago, May 16.—Some citizens are not aware of the respect and admiration our armed forces are entitled to. This afternoon, riding a northbound Halsted street car, a group of sailors weren't quite sure of their stop. The conductor was indignant when he discovered their confusion. After stopping the second time at their request, he ordered them off the streetcar. Only one of the boys voiced a protest.

The least the conductor could have done was show a little more courtesy. I'm wondering what the sailors, who in all probability were seeing our city for the first time, thought about it.

HOW AIR TIGERS FOUGHT JAPS AND BRASS HATS, TOO

Article Tells New Facts About Chennault.

Brig. Gen. Claire L. Chennault's two front war against the Japanese and the Washington burocrats is described in the June issue of the American Legion magazine. The article also discloses new information about the American Volunteer Group, flying for China, which Gen. Chennault organized and trained.

"Shortly after Chennault's arrival in July, 1937, China was attacked by Japan and her force of less than 100 combat planes was soon wiped out," writes William Clemmens under the title, "Can't Hold Those Tigers."

"He pleaded with all the agencies he knew for American planes and equipment. But aid to China at that time was merely a subject for political debate in congress.

Then Comes Lend-Lease.

"Then came the lend-lease act, with priorities for Britain, our army and navy, the Netherlands East Indies, Australia, Belgium, Norway, Sweden, Russia—all ahead of China. Finally, 100 obsolescent Curtiss P-40 pursuit ships, originally allocated to Sweden, were sent to China. He would have to keep half of the planes in the shops to supply spare parts to keep 50 in the air.

"He had no skilled mechanics, no ammunition; high octane fuel was as rare as gold. Worst, China had no pilots to fly the P-40s. In a desperate effort he returned to Washington and last summer obtained permission to recruit pilots from the United States."

Thus Chennault, who was retired as a captain in 1937 because, the record says, his hearing was defective, got a group of young airmen and 200 mechanics to follow him to China.

In mid-January of this year, when the old P-40s had been reduced from 100 to 44, Gen. Chennault learned that 40 Vultee fighting planes were on the docks of Rangoon, the article relates. They were still in the crates in which they had arrived from the United States six weeks earlier.

"But he couldn't have them," the story says. "They were consigned to some one else."

Pleas to Washington were in vain, the Legion magazine writer asserts.

He also declares that Chennault, who was called to active duty and made a brigadier general last April 17, is regarded by many as the most brilliant air strategist of all time. But he had his troubles before he was placed on the retired list in 1937.

Planes as Teams.

"He wrote a textbook in which he described a revolutionary concept of aerial tactics. The traditional method, in which two adversaries fought a dogfight duel, was outmoded, he said. If two planes flew together as a team, weaving their way thru an enemy formation, they could concentrate double fire power upon one enemy plane after another.

"To show air corps officials what he meant by teamwork, he and two of his wingmen preformed banks and dives and even loops while their planes were tied together with 30 foot ropes. But the brass hats viewed this demonstration merely as a stunt."

After his retirement Chennault settled down with his wife and their eight children in Louisiana. His teammates of the stunts, Lieutenants J. H. Williamson and W. C. McDonald, went to China to help train native pilots. They advised Generalissimo and Mme. Chiang Kai-shek to get Chennault as air adviser. Thus the thrilling story began.

TELLS BRUTALITY OF JAPS TO U. S. NURSES, DOCTORS

Samuel Roberts.

San Antonio, Tex., May 24 (AP).—A story of Japanese brutalities in the Philippines, including atrocities upon American doctors and nurses, was related here today by Samuel Roberts, 26 year old navy machinist's mate home on leave.

He said he saw the bodies of doctors, their clothing removed, their hands chopped off and their ears slashed from their heads. Bodies of nurses, he said, showed signs of worse treatment.

"Bodies of two nurses and four doctors were found in one place," Roberts said.

Roberts said he was captured by the Japanese soon after the outbreak of the war and placed in a concentration camp but escaped and made his way to the American forces fighting in the Philippines.

NEW DEAL MOVES TO SOOTHE FARM BELT ON RUBBER

Fears Anger Over Part in Synthetic Plans.

BY CHESLY MANLY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Sen. Joseph O'Mahoney.

Washington, D. C., May 24.—The Roosevelt administration's exclusion of agriculture from the industrial alcohol and synthetic rubber programs has produced such resentment in congress that a national scandal and severe political repercussions are feared by New Dealers.

Vice President Henry A. Wallace, it became known today, has communicated these apprehensions to Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the War Production board, which has charge of priorities for plant construction and the allocation of war contracts. It is reported in well informed quarters that Nelson may soon announce important concessions to agriculture.

Accuse Monopolists.

Members of the senate agriculture committees have accused monopolistic interests in the WPB and the Reconstruction Finance corporation of blocking the use of surplus wheat and corn in the production of industrial alcohol for explosives and synthetic rubber. These charges are supported by evidence taken before a subcommittee headed by Sen. Guy M. Gillette [D., Ia.], which is investigating the exclusion of agriculture from the war program.

Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney [D., Wyo.] charged in a senate speech last Tuesday that 300 corporations have received war contracts aggregating 100 billion dollars, while agriculture and small business have been neglected. O'Mahoney warned that unless we take advantage of new developments in chemistry and make use of our surplus agricultural products, the war will end with the country more firmly in the grip of monopoly than ever before "by reason of the shortsighted, if not selfish, attitude of men in the WPB who are more interested in preserving the opportunity for large aggregations of capital to exploit the people than they are in winning the war."

Little Grain Allotment.

Altho experts have testified that plants for the production of butadiene, the basic ingredient of synthetic rubber, from grain alcohol can be constructed with a smaller expenditure of money and critical materials than plants for the production of butadiene from petroleum products, only 10 per cent, or 80,000 tons, of the $800,000,000 synthetic rubber program, calling for a plant capacity of 800,000 tons a year, is allocated to alcohol. The remainder of 720,000 tons is allocated to the oil industry. And the 80,000 tons of butadiene allocated to alcohol is to be produced by the Carbide and Carbon Chemical corporation, which makes alcohol synthetically as a by-product of the petroleum industry.

Notwithstanding the payment of billions of dollars of government subsidies to farmers to decrease their production, surplus supplies of corn and wheat are so great that there is a serious shortage of storage facilities and large quantities of wheat may be lost for that reason, according to Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard. He told the Gillette committee that the wheat supply is the largest in our history, that we shall start the new crop year July 1 with a carryover of 630 million bushels, and that when this year's crop comes in we shall have a total supply of almost 1½ million bushels, enough for at least two years.

Secretary Wickard urged that at least 80,000,000 bushels of wheat or corn be used to produce 200,000,000 gallons of alcohol, which in turn would produce 220,000 tons of butadiene, enough for 240,000 tons of synthetic rubber.

But the evidence received by the subcommittee makes it clear that the war program not only excludes agriculture from the production of synthetic rubber; it contemplates no expansion of distilling facilities for the production of grain alcohol.

Small Plants Feasible.

The industrial alcohol program calls for at least 275,000,000 gallons in 1942 and 400,000,000 gallons in 1943. This is to be produced by the large industrial alcohol companies, which use blackstrap molasses or raw sugar from the West Indies almost exclusively, and by the whisky distilleries, which use grain. After the war, of course, the whisky distillers will go back to the production of whisky and distilled spirits for beverage purposes, and will not compete with the industrial alcohol industry.

Expert witnesses have testified that small distilling plants located on farms in the grain belt could produce ethyl alcohol for 20 cents a gallon, from corn and wheat costing an average of $25 a ton. The government now is paying 50 cents a gallon for molasses [sugar] alcohol.

The present sugar rationing program is attributed in part to the purchase of 1,200,000 long tons of Cuban sugar cane by the RFC for the production of alcohol. Raw sugar and molasses are brought to the United States in tankers, of which there is such a drastic shortage as to require the rationing of gasoline on the eastern seaboard. After the industrial alcohol is manufactured in the western industrial centers it must be shipped to the great new munitions plants in the middle west, where it is used in making smokeless powder and explosives.

Benefits Pointed Out.

Spokesmen for the agricultural interests contend that grain alcohol and alcohol butadiene plants in the heart of the grain belt would receive the nation's overburdened transportation facilities, eliminate the sugar and possibly the gasoline shortage, assure the farmer a good price for his surplus crops, without handouts from the treasury, and provide ample production of synthetic rubber for our military and civilian requirements at prices below the cost of natural rubber [22 cents a pound] formerly imported from British and Dutch Malaya.

Another argument in favor of a vast expansion of grain alcohol production is that the nation's petroleum resources are not inexhaustible. Ralph K. Davies, deputy petroleum coördinator and vice president of the Standard Oil Company of California, told the American Petroleum Institute in November that the known crude oil reserves are only 20 billion barrels, while the present consumption rate is 1 billion 900 million barrels a year.

Norris Was Rebuffed.

In January and February of this year, Sen. George W. Norris [Ind., Neb.] sought to interest Chairman Nelson of the WPB in the efforts of a group of Nebraskans to build five alcohol plants, each to produce 10,000 gallons a day. The project was sponsored by George E. Johnson, president of the Farm Crops Proceeding association, and Dr. Leon M. Christensen of the Nebraska State university.

Nelson replied to Norris that construction of the proposed plants would require "large amounts of critical materials," that the program to convert whisky distilleries to ethyl alcohol production should furnish enough to meet the requirements of the war effort, and that if any substantial increase should be required the WPB would consider the Nebraska proposal. He suggested that the Nebraskans get in touch with Frazer M. Moffatt Jr., head of the industrial alcohol section of the chemicals division of the WPB.

Program Already Fixed.

Moffatt is vice president of the United States Industrial Chemicals company, Inc., which in the fiscal year 1941 produced 16.09 per cent of the nation's total industrial alcohol production.

When Johnson and Dr. Christensen came to see Moffatt, according to their testimony before the Gillette committee, he told them the alcohol program was completely planned. They said Moffatt told them the proposed grain alcohol plants would use too much critical material. The Nebraskans then went out and took options on the dye vats in old New England textile plants. They rounded up all the critical materials they needed except about 10 per cent. Then they came back to see Moffatt.

"He frankly told us that so far as he was concerned if we needed only 2 per cent of new materials he would not approve a priority for us or a contract allocation for alcohol production," Johnson testified. "At the same time I found out that they were approving a lot of those materials in the larger plants."

"What kind of plants?" asked Sen. Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.].

"Distilleries," Johnson replied.

Plan Called "Workable."

Cy Neuman, president of the Publicker Commercial Alcohol company of Philadelphia, largest producer of grain alcohol in the country, told the committee of his efforts to interest the government agencies in the production of butadiene from grain alcohol. He said he conferred late in April with Leon Henderson, price administrator; Nelson, officials of the war and navy departments; William Clayton of the RFC and Arthur Newhall, rubber coördinator of the WPB. They told him to see Dr. E. R. Weidlein, technical adviser to both the RFC and the chemical division of the WPB.

"To our amazement, Dr. Weidlein said that the alcohol-butadiene buna rubber process was a good one and was workable," Neuman testified. "He indicated that it would take less material per plant, which is what we claim—much less material—and that a plant could be built in much shorter time."

But Dr. Weidlein added that the rubber program, unfortunately, was "all committed for, and then proceeded to jump from one excuse to another for not allowing us to enter the program," Neuman told the committee. He said he finally became disgusted with Weidlein and told him: "I think you are giving me the run around." Weidlein, according to the witness, protested that he was only a chemical adviser and urged Neuman to "go see Jesse Jones."

PEGGY DRAKE.

Hollywood, Cal., May 24 [Special].—Complaining that the scanty clothing she was required to wear during filming of "The Tuttles of Tahiti" indirectly caused her to catch pneumonia, Peggy Drake, young actress, will appear before the industrial accident commission tomorrow in connection with an action against RKO-Radio Pictures, Inc.

Miss Drake, who had the feminine lead in the picture, asserts that she had to walk around barefooted on a cold set and on ground which was dampened, as a result of which she caught pneumonia and was hospitalized for a considerable period of time.

Her action is primarily directed against the studio's insurance carrier.

Mr. W. R. Blend,
Classified Advertising Manager,
The Chicago Tribune,
Chicago, Illinois.

Dear Mr. Blend:-

We have, from time to time, tried out all Chicago newspapers, including the new ones as they appeared, and have periodically and carefully tabulated the sources of our applications. Our checks show beyond the shadow of a doubt that the Chicago Tribune gives us by far the best results per advertising dollar spent.

As a result, we have a fixed policy of dividing our advertising budget in the help wanted columns of all Chicago newspapers so that 90% of it is placed in the Chicago Tribune.

Last year we more than doubled our 1940 Tribune lineage, and in the first three months of this year we have used 10,513 lines in the Tribune as against 6,304 lines in the same period last year.

We are now doing the largest volume of business in our history.

I thought you might be interested in knowing that with the completion of present alterations, our office facilities will have been expanded and improved five times within the past two years. This was made necessary by the steadily increasing volume of applicants.

In the light of our experience we intend, of course, to continue concentrating our advertising effort in the Chicago Tribune, as in the past.

Yours very truly,
MONARCH EMPLOYMENT SYSTEM.
Paul E. Sheldon

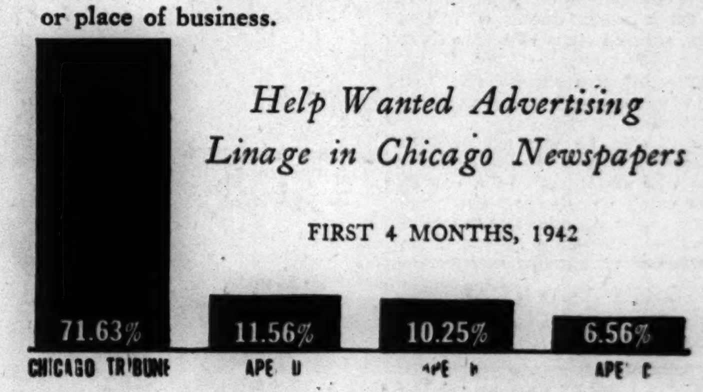
Member Employment Counselors Association of the United States
Member Illinois Employment Board

LONG recognized as Chicago's first Help Wanted medium, the Tribune alone carries the volume of offers necessary to get the attention of workers of practically every type and skill. What is more, it has their confidence—a very real asset with power to transmute casual interest into earnest inquiry and quick response.

Results such as reported above by one of Chicago's largest employment agencies are the answer to why Chicago employers and employment agencies place more than twice as much Help Wanted advertising in the Tribune as they place in all other Chicago newspapers combined.

Because Tribune Help Wanted ads command the largest audience in Chicago and the highest reader-confidence, they can be a real help to you with your employment problems. Cut hiring costs, obviate delays, dissatisfaction and lost man-hours by calling SUPerior 0100—Want Ad-Viser. A want ad specialist will take your want ad and help you with it, if you wish. If you prefer, a Tribune representative will call at your home or place of business.



The Tribune printed more than six times as much Help Wanted advertising during the first four months of this year as the next Chicago newspaper and more than twice as much as all other Chicago newspapers combined. Employers and employment agencies increased the Tribune's lead over the next newspaper from 351% in the first four months of last year to 520% in the like period this year.

5 A. M. AND COWS WON'T WAIT, SO IT'S HEY, GET UP!

Summer Farmers—That's What You'll Face.

(This is the second in a series of articles to give high school pupils a preview of what is in store for them when they work on farms this summer.)

BY WARD WALKER.

"Hey, get up!"

"Huh?" I answered. Thru the half gloom I could make out the figure of Howard Bingham, who with his brother, Harold, runs the Buffalo Creek farm near Wheeling.

"C'mon. Cows are waiting."

At about that point and that time—it was 5 a. m.—I'd have sold this assignment cheap, these days of working on a farm to give thousands of high school boys a preview of what is in store for them on farms this summer.

This was Tuesday, my second day.

Low Point of the Day.

With the din of a flock of birds ringing in my ears, I dressed and hurried to the barn. It was chilly in the predawn and it was, in retrospect, the low point of the entire stay.

By the time the 36 Holsteins were in their stalls and ready for milking, the sun tore loose from a low lying bank of clouds and brightened up the day. With its warmth came a rise in spirits.

That miraculous contraption, the milking machine, pumped its way smoothly thru the herd and by 6:30 all of the foaming warm milk was in cans ready for the dairy pick up.

Again I cleaned the barn.

After breakfast, the straw bedding in the pens of the calves was changed and a fresh supply of cedar chips laid in the stall of Duke, the Holstein bull and ruler of the herd.

May Sun Dries Land.

Howard, the elder of the Bingham brothers, looked reflectively at the blue sky marred only by feathered touches of white clouds.

"If the sun'll hold out thru the day, we may get into the fields with the tractors tomorrow. This May sun can pull up a lot of moisture," he remarked.

He and Harold then sharpened their knives to a surgical edge and went to the pig pen to perform operations on the males in the lot of little pigs bought the day before.

Howard suggested I could put in the morning piling concrete rubble in a muddy low spot of the yard at the rear of the barn.

Odd Jobs Lie Ahead.

"We'll be using the high school pupils on a lot of odd jobs like that," he said.

Some aspects of farming, in fact, most of them, are technical and require long practice, he explained. However, there are hundreds of jobs and chores that must be done that a high school boy can do.

"The two boys we take out here will help our sons hoe out a few thistles and weeds," Harold said. "And they'd better wear gloves."

I found that glove idea was a good one when I was half thru the concrete laying job—soft hands bruise easily. But neither that nor the twinges in unused muscles could take away the beauty of the setting.

From in back of the barn, the high point of the farm, the land rolled in a green slope down a half mile to the creek. Husky young cottonwoods and graceful willows marked its course.

Cattle Used to Planes.

The black and white cattle stood out clean and sharp against the background, paying little attention to the dozen or more airplanes scudding back and forth from a nearby airport.

By noon the job was done.

While passing the horse barn in the morning, I had stopped to scratch the forehead of Judy, the blooded mare of Kentucky racing stock that belongs to Howard's son, Jack.

As I went toward the house Judy whinnied.

Her shyness of the morning had disappeared. She wanted to be petted, and I obliged. Her coat was black and shiny and even I could see she was eager for a run.

But it was either ride horseback or eat. I ate.

Dinner was a clear soup, meat pie, salad, more homemade bread, and all the milk we could drink. Dessert was a magnificent strawberry shortcake.

String Fence Along Creek.

"We'll string a little fence along the creek this afternoon," Howard said. "We run a one strand fence, charge it with electricity, and it does a better job than a woven wire fence."

Most of the posts were already set, but several holes had to be dug with the long handled posthole digger. The rich black loam was easy to handle and the job was child's play.

Posts in, the barbed wire—one of the orneriest inventions of man—was anchored to a post at one end and strung from a roll along the line. Every 200 yards or so the wire stretcher was used—a complicated system of pulleys that gives one man the pulling power of a horse.

The tautened section of the wire was stapled and the procedure continued until the wire was up. Insulators hold the wire to each post and then the wire was hooked to the special power line.

It Worked, All Right.

Holding a blade of grass, I tested it. It worked!

"A horse will try that once and never go near it again," Howard said, grinning at the way I had jumped. "And two or three shocks are enough to teach a cow."

The violets were thick along the creek bank and two or three fish splashed in the fast moving stream. A rabbit watched us for an instant, then bounced haphazardly away.

The sun was warm and I marked the spot for some future day: A lunch, a pole and string as camouflage, and drowsy hours in the deep grass.

But those cows were lowing again. It was 4:30 p. m.

By this time the milking was routine and we whisked thru it without me spilling a drop. Howard consented to let me feed some of the milk to the youngest calf, a sprightly youngster of 5 weeks.

Milk was something the little fellow understood and I think I made a friend there for life.

After a beefsteak supper and a glance at THE TRIBUNE, I was ready for bed. From 5 a. m. to 8:30 p. m. is a long day. Noting my drowsiness, Howard said:

"I don't think we'll call our high school workers at 5 this summer. Six should be early enough."

Nodding emphatic agreement, I stumbled upstairs to bed.

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks department will answer questions about the draft and military service, both in the daily columns and personally, if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are sent with the queries. Persons are asked to keep their letters short because of the volume of mail.]

D. A. writes: "I have been reading about our new gliding army. Do you have to be in the army air corps to get this training or can I enlist for the glider corps? What are the requirements?"

ANSWER: Qualified civilians may enlist directly for glider pilot training with the army air force. Applicants must meet one of the following requirements: 1. Hold or have held a C. A. A. airman certificate with commercial glider pilot rating. 2. Have logged a minimum of 200 glider flights. 3. Hold a C. A. A. private airman certificate or have held one that did not lapse prior to Jan. 1, 1941. 4. Former army aviation cadets who completed their elementary instruction before being eliminated for flight deficiency. Applicants also must make a minimum grade of 110 on their army general classification test and pass a physical examination which is not quite as rigid as the examination given aviation cadets.

J. C. T. asks: "Is there any government agency which would keep up the premiums on my life insurance after I am inducted?"

ANSWER: The soldiers' and sailors' civil relief act of 1940 contains a provision for your protection. The act provides that life insurance of persons in military service, up to $5,000 in face amount, on which a premium was paid at least 30 days before entry into the service, will not be permitted to lapse during the period of service and one year thereafter. The unpaid premiums must be paid with interest within a year after the insured leaves the service. These provisions apply only to companies required by law to maintain a reserve or which collect a premium to cover a special war risk.

C. G. asks: "If I enter the army will my civil service position and rating be held for me until I come back?"

ANSWER: Yes. By order of the President, your position will be filled by another employé only for the duration of the war, or until you are released from military service.

Miss N. L. A. writes: "Before going ahead with our wedding plans, my fiancé and I would like to be informed on the following questions: He is in class 1-B as he is blind in one eye. For how long is this deferment and is it likely he would be taken?"

ANSWER: Under existing physical standards, he will never be given a 1-A classification. If the handicap has not prevented your fiancé from successfully following a useful vocation in civil life, it is possible he may be among the 1-B men inducted next month.

To Miss M. E. B.: Your friend will be given either a 1-B or 4-F classification.

LONDONERS HOLD TWO RALLIES FOR A SECOND FRONT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 24.—Two demonstrations were held in London today in favor of a second front. The Lord Beaverbrook papers started what is called a "first center of public opinion" which packed the Hippodrome. John Gordon, editor of the Daily Express, presided.

The Communist party staged a rival demonstration in Trafalgar square. Among the speakers was Willie Gallacher, sole Communist member of parliament, who said that if a second front had been opened when Josef Stalin first asked for it, the war would probably be nearly over now.

Gordon said of the claim that Britain did not have weapons for a second front: "Lord Beaverbrook blew that sky high. He told us we had them, and nobody knows better." [Beaverbrook was formerly war production minister.] Altho the people trust the government, Gordon said, "it is a bit of a strain at times."

Lord Strabolgi, after paying tribute to the American soldiers who have landed in Britain, stated: "I do not believe that these fine young troopers came to sit down and wait for attacks. They have seen Canadians who have waited for two years and are fed up with it."

TRUCKING HEAD DUE FOR TRIAL ON GOON CHARGE

John L. Keeshin, head of the Keeshin Motor Express company and president of the Sportsman's Park race track, is due in Criminal court today for trial on charges growing out of the beating of a business rival. The trial will be before Judge Julius H. Miner and a jury.

John Gottlieb, also head of a trucking concern, was the victim of a slugging last June 6 in front of his home at 1620 East 50th street. He suffered a broken jaw.

I'm on my way to the Victory Home Center

With our country at war, we women have a big duty in looking after the health of the nation. Planning well-balanced meals is not difficult and costly. The home economist at the Victory Home Center showed me a plan as simple as A-B-C for giving my family meals that have all the vitamins and nutrition they need for good health.

Look at this…a plan of nutritious, healthful meals for the whole week. A different menu for each meal and each day. This chart alone is worth the visit to the Victory Home Center. These girls sure have a knack for preparing meals. And it's not just on paper. The meals they have on display are as tempting and delicious-looking as you've ever seen.

Just imagine! All these electric appliances broken down because women have been careless with them. But, like myself, they didn't know that some of the things they were doing were harmful to their appliances. With the suggestions of this expert, I should have no trouble at all in taking proper care of the appliances we have.

Seeing this man repair appliances reminds me that I have to get my electric mixer fixed. When I think how much time and work that mixer saves me, it's a shame to let it sit there for weeks without having it repaired. But this visit to the Victory Home Center is what I needed to make me do something about it.

Well, I thought I knew all there was to know about doing the family laundry, but the old saying still holds true, "You can learn something new every day". In the few minutes I talked with this home advisor I found out how I can save a lot of time and work, get a whiter wash, and make the family's washable clothes last a lot longer.

Just like every woman I know, I want to do my part to help win the war. This visit to the Victory Home Center is just what I needed. I've learned how to serve my family nourishing, well-balanced meals, how to use my electric appliances properly, and how to conserve them. Yes, I've learned how to make my own home a victory home.

Plan now to visit one of our Victory Home Centers

With America at war, the housewives of the nation have a vital job on the home front. To help you carry out your patriotic duty—of serving the right kind of foods, of getting the most out of the foods you buy, and of conserving your household appliances, we have established Victory Home Centers in our eleven stores.

Set a day aside, right now, to visit one of these Victory Home Centers. Bring along your questions about nutrition, vitamins and electric appliances . . . and let us help you make your home a Victory American home.

W-G-N POSTERS BOOST NAVAL RECRUIT DRIVE

Schedule New Programs on Sailors' Activities.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Posters in W-G-N studio windows bearing the words, 'World's Greatest Navy, boost the new drice to obtain 10,000 recruits for the navy in the Chicago area as well as give new significance to the call letters of W-G-N. The posters also call attention to the new series of programs W-G-N is initiating in behalf of the recruiting campaign.

Besides two regular navy series which W-G-N will introduce this week, it also will present a special broadcast at 8:30 p. m. tonight of the induction of 100 men into the navy in the Grand ballroom of the Medinah club. These are the first men to be welcomed into the navy since the start of the campaign.

Mayor Edward J. Kelly will speak. Lieut. David N. Goldenson, in charge of navy recruiting in the Chicago district, will be in charge of the induction ceremony. The Navy Pier band, directed by Bandmaster Fred Norton, U. S. N. will play.

Subsequently at this hour on Monday, and at the same time Wednesdays and Fridays, W-G-N will present "Johnny Goes Aboard." This series will trace the career of Johnny Jones, a navy recruit, from the time he signs up until he has completed preliminary training at the Great Lakes Naval Training station, the largest of its kind in the world.

Tuesday evening from 8:30 to 9 p. m. W-G-N will introduce another series titled Bluejackets at Work. This program will take listeners into the various centers of navy activity in this area and give behind the scenes glimpses of navy work.

The first broadcast, Tuesday, will come from the Naval Aviation Training school at Navy pier.

BATAAN STREET FOR MAYWOOD? IT'S SUGGESTED

Bataan street should connect with MacArthur park in Maywood to honor the suburb's many heroes who fought under Gen. Douglas MacArthur in the great battle against overwhelming odds in the Philippines. That is the idea that Vernon V. Smith, village trustee, was working on yesterday.

Altho the village president and most trustees favor naming Maywood park for Gen. MacArthur, rather than a street, it is expected that both proposals will have adherents at the board meeting Thursday.

Smith said that Oak street could be renamed Bataan street. It forms a boundary for the park.

In Chicago the city council committee on streets will be called together this morning by Ald. Bryan Hartnett [12th], the chairman.

"Everybody seems to be in favor of Chicago's naming a street after Gen. MacArthur," Ald. Hartnett said. "I haven't heard any one speak against it yet, but we must consider past experiences of renaming streets which brought complaints from merchants."

AIR HERO IN CITY TO ADDRESS WAR PLANT WORKERS

Capt. Hewitt T. Wheless, an outstanding war hero, will tell workers in aircraft production plants in Melrose Park and Cicero today what a fine job they are doing and that the good work must continue.

Capt. Wheless was awarded the distinguished service cross after he returned to its base in the southwest Pacific a flying fortress that had carried out a bomb attack against a concentration of Japanese transports and engaged Japanese fighters during which the fortress was so badly damaged that it was in danger of crashing at any moment.

Capt. Wheless was reluctant last night to expand on his own part in the air battle. He said every man did his part, that no one got excited, that other flyers are carrying out assignments much more gruelling than his, and that he'd just as soon bomb the Germans as the Japs.

USO FUND DRIVE IN CHICAGO AREA TO OPEN TODAY

Fifteen hundred volunteer workers today will start soliciting funds to make up Chicago's quota of $1,749,432 for the United Service Organizations' war fund of 32 million dollars—the national goal.

Workers in Cook, Lake, and Du Page counties have been organized in six divisions, some of which already have obtained substantial contributions. It is expected large sums will be cleared thru Chicago campaign headquarters in the Field building by the end of the week.

Warm response to the Chicago district campaign is expected by Holman D. Pettibone, general campaign chairman.

30,000 WAR STAMP CORSAGES SOLD; RUSH PRODUCTION

Manufacture of war savings stamps corsages by Chicago artificial flower makers will be accelerated, Harry Perlman of the Illinois war savings staff announced yesterday. He reported that approximately 30,000 of the $1 corsages bearing 90 cents in war stamps were sold last week. The corsage was introduced last Monday as a method of stimulating the sale of war stamps. They are sold by retailers without profit and are manufactured without profit, Perlman said. Inquiries about the plan have come from numerous other cities, he said.

"The Girl Who Stood Alone"

SYNOPSIS.

Just preceding the present war, the lawn mower company in London, where June Clayton works as secretary, has become an armament factory. Thru her failure to destroy some spoiled sheets of a confidential report, Henry and Jacob Ferrer, who have been selling secret information to Germany, steal the report. Jacob escapes with it, but Henry is arrested and claims June aided them. June is questioned by Glenday of the British secret service who, convinced of her innocence, promises to shield her if she will work for him. She quarrels with her fiancé, Ralph Eddis, because she cannot explain her new work, and soon finds herself liking Glenday more than Ralph. En route to her first assignment, Jacob Ferrer forces June to give him a lift, shoots two pursuing policemen, and June narrowly escapes arrest. With a fellow worker, Stranack, she goes to a party at Matarasso's. Matarasso is an Italian, who works with Frank Rawlings, a dangerous German spy in charge of sabotage. Rawlings falls for June, and Glenday orders June to cultivate him. With him she goes for an airplane ride and he takes pictures of cathedrals and a munition factory. He lands her first with the munition films and has a confederate taxi driver pick her up. June outwits the confederate, jumps from his car, and gives the films to Glenday, who substitutes cathedral films. When June gives the switched films to Rawlings, he thinks he gave her the wrong roll. But Matarasso is suspicious and questions her about her connection with Jacob Ferrer. She pretends she is just a silly girl who aided the Ferrers in exchange for small pay. Matarasso, unconvinced, has June followed. In the middle of the night a woman appears at June's home and orders June to accompany her in a covered van to Jacob Ferrer's hideout. June finds Glenday there, handcuffed. Jacob demands June secure Henry's release from prison before he allows Glenday freedom. She realizes she is helpless without knowing the address of Jacob's hideout, but Rawlings calls her the next day and unwittingly gives it to her when he tells her where Matarasso trailed her. She goes straight to the hideout and demands Glenday's release and the return of the stolen report. Threatening him with the police, Jacob is frightened into obeying June's orders. She then tells Glenday she is quitting the secret service. That night she dines with Rawlings, determined to enjoy herself without thought of the service.

INSTALMENT XXV.

MORE WORK.

June forced herself to show conventional interest while she wondered why Glenday had come to where she and Frank were dining.

"Etiquet requires you to go and wish him luck, doesn't it?" she asked. "I have always heard that you people spend half your time being polite to each other."

"He doesn't know I know who he is," Rawlings said. "That's my guess, anyhow. But, hullo — here's something."

The cabaret chorus was on the floor, dancing a song-and-rose number. At points of the song the girls would throw a rose to the nearest man patron.

"That's Gertie—you know her." June recognized the blonde girl she had met at Matarasso's, now arrayed as some kind of vaguely Spanish dancer. "She's making her way to me."

A moment later Gertie tossed her rose. Rawlings caught it with the appropriate gesture, and then appeared to watch the cabaret, while his fingers unwound a wrapping around the stem of the rose.

June was busy with her own thoughts. It was terribly hard not to turn and glance at Glenday's table. Was he alone—or was there a girl with him? Surely not Miss Flinders! She looked up to find Rawlings' eyes fixed on her.

"Bad news?" she asked.

"Yes," he answered. "One of my men has been arrested." Rawlings half turned and looked toward Glenday. "And d'you know who has laid evidence against him?"

"How could I know!" The way he spoke had frightened her. "O, I can guess! The man sitting near us—Glenday, didn't you say!"

Still his eyes held hers. Had she overdone the guilelessness in mentioning Glenday's name?

"The information against Jim Merlett was not laid by Glenday." His voice was cracked and thin as he added: "It was laid by you, June. And you know it."

June was too astonished to be alarmed. It occurred to her that there must be a mistake.

"You'd better read that piece of paper again."

"I don't need to," jerked Rawlings. "Your name was quite unmistakable."

"I've never laid evidence, as you call it, against anybody in my life."

"You're a perpetual riddle to me," Rawlings said unhappily. "In my sane moments I know you're not straight, or you wouldn't have drifted into the 'game.' When a man on my job is fool enough to fall in love, he generally gets what's coming to him. I've tried to keep out of your way—"

"Well, I'll help you in the future. And we can begin now," snapped June. She pulled her cloak about her; as she was gathering up her purse came inspiration.

"O—I've just remembered something!"

The amazingly handsome face looked at her sternly.

"It isn't quite true that I've never laid information against anybody," she went on. "There was that taximan who tried to rob me. I made a fuss about that—if that's what you call laying information."

Instantly his expression relaxed.

"Good heavens! I never thought of that!" He laughed with amusement and relief and got up. "Will you wait here for five minutes?"

"No," said June. "I'm going—good-by."

"Just wait until I've found out on the telephone whether you're telling the truth."

"Good-by, Frank."

"Back in five minutes, darling."

She would let him get out of the dining room and then herself leave the restaurant. There was no need to be badgered any more by Frank Rawlings. He might be fascinating, but she did not want to be fascinated. She certainly did not intend to do any more "cultivating" at Glenday's orders. She would never take any more orders from Glenday.

June half turned and met Glenday's gaze from a corner table. He gave no sign of recognition. If he were there by chance, why had he come to watch Rawlings and herself? Did he hope to discover whether she was in love with Rawlings?

He would not care, she told herself. He was there for some secret service reason, of course. She would slip away now.

Again she was picking up her purse when a woman's voice spoke behind her.

"Don't turn around, Miss Clayton, and don't answer. Rawlings may have a railway cloakroom ticket on him. Get hold of it if you possibly can, and as soon as you leave him telephone headquarters."

June was annoyed, because Glenday had apparently not believed her when she said she would do no more service work. And as for the suggestion that she should turn pickpocket—why pick on her?

Because she was so extraordinarily good at it, Glenday himself had said. Well, if it were true, it was an accidental talent. She did not want to be good at intrigue and spying on people.

She got up. The cabaret had stopped and people were dancing. She made her way along the edge of the floor.

Progress was slow. Before she had covered the distance to the door, Rawlings was on his way back. Well, she would not listen to him.

She did not have to listen, because he did not speak. With one unhurried movement, he took her purse and put it in the pocket of his dinner jacket. Then he took her and wafted her onto the floor. It was difficult not to dance with him—difficult not to be moved by his effortless timing. It was not like dancing with a man—it was like dancing with the very music itself. She found herself wondering whether Glenday could dance.

"How many times does one have to say good-by to you before you go?" she asked when they were back at the table.

"Darling, I've found you're telling the truth and I'm so happy," Rawlings said. "And while we're waiting for our champagne, quail and so on I want to ask a favor of you.

"In the morning the police will call on you to identify Merlett, the taxidriver. They'll put him in line with a lot of other thugs and I want you to pretend not to recognize him."

"Maybe I wouldn't have to pretend if he's in line with a lot of other criminals more or less like him, but here you are sticking up for a man who would have knocked me down if I hadn't managed to trick him. And you told him to do it!"

"I know." His elation vanished. "That's the beastly part of it. I'm muddled enough to want to bash him myself. O, I wish I weren't in love! Can't you let me off? Be unattractive! Be spiteful! Be anything you like that'll make me want to run away."

"You can't accuse me of—cultivating you." The hated word had slipped out. "Or can you?"

"Lord, no! I'm in a perpetual funk that you'll refuse to see me again. All this nonsense is true, you know. I wish I'd never met you. And I can't bear the idea of not meeting you again. I say, June."

"What?"

"You despise me, don't you?"

"I don't despise you," she answered truthfully. "I only despise the horrible crimes you commit. Why don't you stop committing them? You just said you loved me . . ."

"And I say it again! You're so irresistible."

Irresistible! The night she began her secret service career, just an hour before she went to Matarasso's — to that house of spies—Stranack, Glenday's associate, had told her Rawlings was "supposedly irresistible to women." Now this same suave German was calling her irresistible and insisting that he loved her.

Facing him across the table, sipping champagne, feasting on quail and the fancy dishes that came along with it, June thought of the factory Rawlings had bombed; and of the cloakroom ticket for some mysterious bag he might have in his pocket. The receipt Glenday wanted her to get.

Glenday, who never mentioned the word love, had shown up at the Trocadero after she'd notified him that she and Rawlings expected to dine there.

Miss Mary Richie Is Preparing for Wartime Nursing Service

BY JUDITH CASS.

WITH the need for trained nurses so evident, and with the army, the Red Cross and hospitals asking for more young women to take up training, it is interesting to learn of a young woman who soon will be of use to her country in this capacity. She is Miss Mary Ritchie, daughter of Mrs. John Ritchie, of Winnetka.

Miss Ritchie is attending the Yale School of Nursing at New Haven, Conn., from which she will be graduated in June next year. The school accepts only college graduates. Miss Ritchie was graduated at Bryn Mawr before enrolling for nurses' training two years ago, and is at home now on the short five-week vacation that she and other Yale students will enjoy this year. Miss Ritchie's brother, Jack, will not be in Winnetka much either this summer, for he will continue his studies in the summer sessions at Wesleyan college.

Some news that brings the war fronts closer to Winnetkans is that the Rev. and Mrs. E. Ashley Gerhard's son, Ensign Gerhard, is missing. He may be a prisoner of war in Manila. The Rev. Mr. Gerhard, who is rector of Christ church, Winnetka, and Mrs. Gerhard are hoping to have news soon.

The most recent Winnetkan to appear in the army's tan is Lieut. Lynn A. Williams Jr. He is in the signal corps.

William S. Warfield IV., who will be graduated on June 14 from Princeton, probably will enter the navy soon after, for he has been taking a naval course in college. Mr. and Mrs. William Warfield III., and their subdebutante daughter, Hildegard, will go east for the commencement exercises.

The J. Bernard Mullens' younger son, Jay, is stationed at an army air base in Africa. Their daughter and her husband, William H. Mitchell Jr., are in Florida while he trains with the army air corps.

Mrs. H. Hoyt Thompson, who planned to join Lieut. Thompson of the A. V. S. at a western base, is staying in Evanston because Lieut. Thompson has been sent overseas.

S. A. Greeleys Have Two Sons in Service.

The Samuel A. Greeleys have two sons in the service. Ensign Samuel Sewell Greeley recently received a commission as an ensign in naval communications. His brother is Corp. Fred Greeley, U. S. A.

Lieut. Everett L. Millard, back from preliminary training with the navy's armed guard, will be stationed in Chicago temporarily, training crews for merchant ships.

Miss Leslie Robinson, daughter of the Warner H. Robinsons of Winnetka, and Robert Warhover, of Denver, are to be married at 5 o'clock the afternoon of June 2 in the Children's chapel of the Winnetka Congregational church, the Rev. Samuel Harkness officiating. Mr. Warhover, who is completing his senior year at the University of Colorado, will arrive two days before the wedding. Mrs. Ryland Wolcott is planning a buffet supper for him and his fiancée next Sunday, and the Robinsons will give the bridal dinner next Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Richard P. Matthiessen will give a luncheon on the day of the wedding.

Harding Family Going East for Wedding June 13.

Mrs. Charles F. Harding Jr., and her daughters, Mrs. Alexander Spohr and Miss Helene Harding, and son, Magnus, are going east for the wedding on June 13 of Charles Ford Harding III. and Miss Patricia Bolling. The wedding will be a quiet one in the afternoon in the Greenwich, Conn., home of Miss Bolling's mother, Mrs. Reynal C. Bolling. Miss Diana Bolling will attend her sister, and Magnus Harding will be best man. The bridegroom has another year at the University of Chicago Law school. He and his bride will make their home in Chicago.

Miss Virginia Shaw, daughter of the Guthrie Shaws of Rye, N. Y., and granddaughter of Mrs. George A. Thorne of Lake Shore drive, was married to Lieut. Robert L. Shedden, army air corps, last Thursday in St. Paul's Episcopal church, in Albany, Ga. Miss Cherry Shaw was her sister's maid of honor, the bride, a debutante of three years ago, is a graduate of the Westover school and studied landscape architecture at Columbia. Lieut. Shedden, a graduate of Lawrenceville and of Williams college, received his commission last Saturday. He is the son of the John Shephard Sheddens of New York.

The Tower Town Friends of the Chicago Junior school will hear an illustrated lecture by Betty Browning Marshall at 2 o'clock on Wednesday in the home of Mrs. Alden Scott Boyer. Mrs. Marshall, formerly the club editor of THE TRIBUNE, recently returned from an extensive visit in Guatemala, about which country she will talk and show colored movies.

Sally Appeals for Clothing in 3 Needy Cases

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

We can all appreciate the fact that it's pretty difficult to keep your head and your spirits up when your apparel is shabby and seedy looking. A good appearance helps to give confidence, and today we are requesting clothing for a woman who is soon to leave a sanitarium and make a new start in life.

The only clothing she possesses is badly worn and she has no income with which to obtain a new wardrobe. If any woman has simple, tailored dresses or a spring coat, size 40, she would be most grateful for them. Her name will not be given out, but she expects to make her home with a friend in another state and any items offered would have to be mailed to that address, which will be supplied upon request.

Mrs. R. is exceptionally tall and we have found it difficult to locate clothing for her. Deserted by her husband, she has had a struggle to care for her two children and is much in need of dresses and a light coat, size 42, suitable for a woman almost six feet tall.

Altho she is hard of hearing and past middle age, Mrs. R. has work which pays her a very small salary and enables her to support her husband, who is blind. However, her earnings are not large enough to permit the purchase of clothing, and since it is necessary that she present a suitable appearance at her work, she has requested dresses size 34.

Thru the Looking Glass

Having seen demonstrations of the exciting new method of setting hair with a needle and thread rather than the hairpins which may vanish with the war effort, we can report that it works wonderfully well.

The method of stitching curls doesn't limit styling at all. You can have waves, curls, and individual style whims just as always.

To make what used to be known as a pin curl or a row of them, the operator fastens her thread firmly, then stitches each ringlet down smoothly, using a loop stitch, and progressing from curl to curl. To make the ridge that is necessary for waves she uses what might be described as a buttonhole stitch. It gives a nice, unbroken line in a ridge, and the curls are beautifully round. And when it comes to short hair such as grows around the nape of the neck, it's extremely easy to make and hold a curl close to the scalp.

The effect is, if anything, even a little smoother than hair set in the conventional way. And, under the dryer, it's probably a little more comfortable around the edges, where the heat of hairpins was sometimes a little irritating.

With practice an operator can make better time than you'd think with this technique.

Girl Graduate Gowns Marked by Simplicity

BY REA SEEGER.

This year's girl graduates are viewing with approval the dresses and gowns designed expressly for June weeks, proms, and commencement oratory. It's been a long time since these important items have been so provocatively feminine, so fluttery and young without being too adrip with ruffles or extra lace.

Even the mothers are gloating over that greatly desired young look, the demure high necklines, the flattering wide, full skirts, and the many picture book dresses with long sleeves. There isn't a dress with anything that even hints of a femme fatale, yet all of them are smart and sophisticated enough to click with the girls.

The sheers rate first, from yards and yards of ethereal organdies, nets, and marquisettes to dimities and dotted swisses. After these come the lovely dresses of eyelet embroidery, the swank affairs of crisp white piqué, and the unusual models in crinkled white seersucker. Long sleeved dresses are especially beautiful, simply cut, with a wide, wide skirt to accent the demure high neckline of the sheer bodice top and the long bell sleeves gathered into narrow band cuffs. The underslips are more important than ever with these sheer gowns, and are designed and trimmed for that purpose. Lace edged ruffles, great bows of white grosgrain ribbon, insertions of lace bands, tucks, and fine pleated flounces are some of the trim accents.

Even rickrack braid whirls around the best of the graduation dresses this summer with some grand results. One of the most unusual white eyelet embroidery dresses has for its only trim a dozen or so multi-colored ribbon bows scattered over the side front of the wide skirt and a single cerise bow high on the right shoulder. White piqué dresses are trimmed with Irish crochet lace.

Good Morning!

Now there's a girl who can cry convincingly! . . . Jean Parker!

And for about four reels of this picture, Tom Brown who plays her heart, provides her with plenty to cry over. . . .

It's been a long time since we've seen a picture with the Annapolis training school as background, and quite a while since we've—or I've—seen young Tom Brown, who, this trip, impersonates a spoiled young limb with no use at all for the navy. . . . He and Larry Parks, seen as a navy enlistee endeavoring to win an appointment at Annapolis, are rivals for the hand of pretty Doris Henley whom both have loved since high school days. . . .

Doris, whose father had been a navy officer, has declared that she'll wed no man who doesn't take to the seas for his country. . . . Smart aleck Bill lands at Annapolis, planning to resign in a very near future. . . . Paul, the navy enthusiast is his roommate. . . .

The story goes pretty routine after this with Bill being the perfect heel—until light breaks over his ignorance and he sees things in their true perspective. . . . An act of heroism wins him the long submerged respect of his classmates, and as for Doris——WELL. . . !

The slight story is most excellently acted and directed—and it is inspiring as are all pictures localed at the United States Naval academy—for whatever a yarn hasn't got is always amply made up for by the thrilling views of our fine boys who pledge themselves to their country's service at Annapolis.

See you tomorrow.

Danger of Strenuous but Vague Activity in Wartime Is Told

Highlights of the YWCA institute, "Women in a World at War," held at the South Park way center Friday and Saturday, were the discussion on "Women in Defense Industry" by Mrs. Jane Record of the YWCA industrial information service, an inspirational talk by Miss Lilace R. Barnes, president of the Chicago YWCA, and Dr. Irene Meade's lecture on "Mental Health in War Time."

All speakers emphasized the importance and difficulty of women's rôle in this war. Dr. Meade described four stages of war psychology and urged that American women outgrow the second, that of vague, if strenuous activity. To avoid the dangers of nervous tension or breakdown, she said, every one should take time out for exercise and some sort of group recreation. These are basic ingredients of any constructive victory effort, she said.

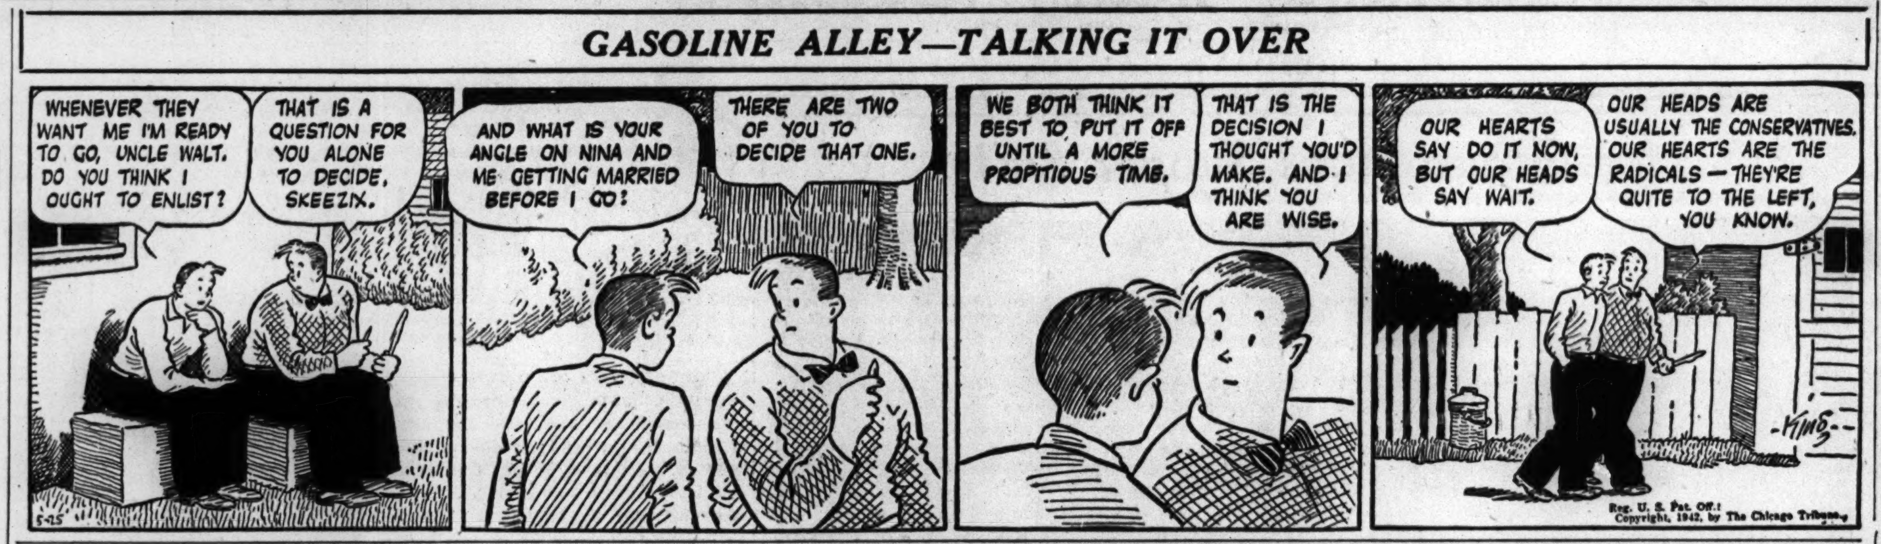
Something of a triumph in makeup artistry was achieved by Jack Pierce for Diana Barrymore's portrayal of Queen Victoria, one of six characterizations she does in her first film role in "Love and Kisses, Caroline." At left she is made up as Victoria; at right as she appears in real life.

GASOLINE ALLEY—TALKING IT OVER



WHENEVER THEY WANT ME I'M READY TO GO, UNCLE WALT. DO YOU THINK I OUGHT TO ENLIST?
THAT IS A QUESTION FOR YOU ALONE TO DECIDE, SKEEZIX.
AND WHAT IS YOUR ANGLE ON NINA AND ME GETTING MARRIED BEFORE I GO?
THERE ARE TWO OF YOU TO DECIDE THAT ONE.
WE BOTH THINK IT BEST TO PUT IT OFF UNTIL A MORE PROPITIOUS TIME.
THAT IS THE DECISION I THOUGHT YOU'D MAKE. AND I THINK YOU ARE WISE.
OUR HEARTS SAY DO IT NOW, BUT OUR HEADS SAY WAIT.
OUR HEADS ARE USUALLY THE CONSERVATIVES. OUR HEARTS ARE THE RADICALS—THEY'RE QUITE TO THE LEFT, YOU KNOW.

Looking at Hollywood

—By John Chapman—

Miss Martha Scott.

Hollywood, Cal., May 24.—Sunday—A touch of work, and the supper and much talk of cameras with the Ray Dannenbaums. . . . Notebook stuff: "Suicide Squadron," British film which Republic picked up, was offered to RKO and other studios here and turned down, principally because it was long and slow. Repub bought it for $150,000 plus a percentage when the gross reaches so much, tightened it up with a pair of scissors [Hollywood's handiest implement] and is on the way to making a fortune with it. . . . The passing of the tramp cyclist, Joe Jackson, reminds me of the time when, for a picture stunt, I got Joe in his tramp outfit to make his bicycle collapse on the traffic-jammed Place de l'Opera in Paris. One of the funniest things I ever saw. Joe couldn't speak French, so the cops didn't worry him; and the cops went out of their minds because they couldn't cope with a breakaway bike and a tramp who wouldn't talk. . . . William Saroyan, in San Francisco, is revising his play, "Afton Water," for the Theater guild. . . . Martha Scott, whose last Broadway appearance was in "Our Town," heads for New York in a fortnight. She'll do some radio and perhaps a play next season.

Monday—Lunch with Bill Saal, Walter Compton, and Sam Abarbanel at Lakeside, and then some freehand golf, and then a gabfest with James Edward Grant and Wallace Ford. Ford, who was George in Broadway's "Of Mice and Men," is talking with the Theater guild about a new play, "Mr. Sycamore." . . . Grant, screenwriter, reminisces about his polo-playing companion, the late Will Rogers. About 1934, when Sunset boulevard wasn't what it is now, the turn past the Rogers place was a good spot for cars to slide off in a rainstorm and bog down in mud. Rogers used to enjoy hitching up a team of horses and pulling people out. After he'd pulled one big limousine out of the hole, the owner, not recognizing one of the hottest stars in pictures, offered Rogers four bits. Will took it, tipped his hat, and said thanks.

Tuesday—Lunch with Screenwriter Richard Macaulay, now a lieutenant in the air corps. . . . In the evening we crash the Robert Sisks' box at the ball game and watch the Hollywood Stars nose out the Sacramento Solons—thanks, in part, to Babe Herman, who bats a sacrifice fly when needed.

Wednesday—Desk work . . . and a human interest story. Five years ago Edward Arnold bought a seeing eye dog for Earl Hauck, a blind man. Hauck and his dog are now employed on the Metro lot—teaching Arnold how to play a blind detective in "Eyes in the Night." . . . In the evening to see "Bitter Sweet" at the Philharmonic, and find that the Noel Coward nosegay holds up very well. Muriel Angelus does excellently by the rôle for which Ziegfeld imported Evelyn Laye. Tonight's production is clean and handsome, and a surprise hit is Corinna Mura, a Texas Spaniard, who manages to throw in a couple of Flamenco songs without disjointing the smelling-salts plot.

Thursday—To Paramount for a call on Preston Sturges, and then into the hills for a call on Rudy Vallee at his astonishing house, which used to belong to Ann Harding. Rudy, one of my favorites, is in his second rôle as a "straight" comedian and is doing okay. He's playing a rich jerk in "Happy Go Lucky"—the kind of fellow who doesn't realize how lucky he is to have Mary Martin on his hands. . . . In the evening to see 20th-Fox's "The Magnificent Dope" [original title, "Magnificent Jerk"; title change courtesy of Hays office]. It's a very funny picture in which Don Ameche tries to teach Henry Fonda how to be a success. Henry gets so good he takes Lynn Bari away from Don. This is handsome Miss Bari's first A picture and she rings the bell. She is believable and gay in her rôle and she shouldn't be the queen of the B's any longer.

Friday—At lunch with a dozen newspaper and publicity men, I start an argument which goes on four hours. George M. Cohan and John Barrymore are both reported critically ill. Which story is the more important—which should have the bigger headline? I argue for Cohan on the basis of accomplishment, influence and lasting importance in show business. Others argue for Barrymore, saying he is better known, particularly in small towns, because of movies, radio and colorful pranks. What would you say?

Saturday—Follow-up on Priscilla Lane's elopement with Lieut. Joel Howard, a bombardier: Priscilla won't live in Hollywood any more except when she's making pix. She and hubby have leased a house at Victorville, near his station. . . . At Paramount, Veronica Lake is excited over the first studio shots of her 7 month old daughter, Elaine. Baby looks nearly as big as her little mother already. . . . To the G. Pelton ranch after filing a dispatch, and in the evening to the Frank Willards' party for Billy De Beck.

The Evils of Thumbsucking Exaggerated

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Thumbsucking is one of those habits that worry some parents and not others. It is a subject about which, in the past, pediatricians have held one opinion, and dentists [especially orthodontists] another. Children's doctors and psychologists have been what we might call liberal about the habits, ignoring too much [in some people's minds] the effects on teeth and shape of lips. Dentists have, on the whole, been apprehensive about those effects, and very sure that the harm done to the position of the teeth and shape of mouth is permanent.

In the past, when I have written in the more liberal way about the thumbsucking habit, I always have received some letters from dentists condemning that viewpoint and citing "horrible examples." It is again interesting to hear that a doctor who is in the department of orthodontics in Bellevue hospital, New York, in view of extensive experience, takes the liberal view.

The gist of what Dr. J. H. Sillman said in his address to the group of pediatricians in the annual meeting of the Medical Society of New York follows:

The heckling and mismanagement of adults was blamed by Dr. Sillman for the fact that what is a normal, physiological aspect of finger-sucking and thumbsucking is often turned into a harmful habit.

He explained something that I have observed so often myself: That a finger [or some other object] popped into a baby's mouth serves a definite purpose. In early infancy, he says, the child has an urge to bite on the overlying gum, but because the gums are not in contact, the necessary stimulation is made possible only by something inserted between the gums. [And what more convenient or more exactly right in hardness and softness than a finger?]

"This urge to bite usually passes uneventfully before the age of three years," he said. "During this time, interference by heckling adults is likely to create suckers from nonsuckers, or to accentuate the force of sucking and imbed the habit. Under such conditions, displacement of the teeth will occur."

Dr. Sillman explained that normal thumbsucking, up to the age of four, is not dangerous, and that dental protrusions so caused normally correct themselves. Dr. Sillman made serial studies of 50 children from birth to five years of age.

Is the intelligence test a permanent guide to a child's mental limits? How can the teacher hold the interest of children in studies? Answers to these and scores of other problems are given in "Talks with Teachers," new 28 page booklet by Gladys Huntington Bevans. Get your copy today at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 5 cents. Postpaid, 7 cents.

Service Council for Girls to Hold Bridge Benefit

The Service Council for Girls will give a bridge tea at 1:30 o'clock today in the Women's University club, 410 South Michigan avenue, as a benefit to raise money for a summer camp and activities program for 30 young women who are under the organization's supervision. The service council is the Protestant Big Sisters. Mrs. Albert Held and Mrs. G. Hanly Nippert will preside at the tea tables.

Stage Note

With all the good will in the world toward the work of local playwrights, the Uptown players, directed by J. Bradley-Griffin, produce scripts by Chicago authors from time to time. Last week-end, on Friday and Saturday, the Civic theater housed the première performances of "His Honor, Father Time," by Clarence M. Shapiro, midwest talent scout for M-G-M pictures.

Nothing could be more agreeable than to report that a creation of genius was unveiled. This was not, however, quite the fact. As a piece of dramatic craftsmanship, "His Honor, Father Time" proved to be repetitious and poorly organized, and its lines labored for laughs with a fierce earnestness which seldom stopped pounding away at an alleged joke until it had been driven six feet underground. At least these things were true of the first act, which exhausted a patience I have trained to be reasonably Spartan.

The plot, which might have been a workable conceit if it had been treated with fantasy instead of with the piledriver technique, depended upon a static freezing of time and space, in which a man of 70 saw himself pass in review at the ages of 6 months, 10 years, 20, and 40. What the play needed was a bit of the gossamer delicacy and poetic imagination of "On Borrowed Time." Instead it had puns, wisecracks, and a generally cheap literary style. C. S.

Contract According to Culbertson

[Copyright: 1942: By Ely Culbertson.]

In a recent duplicate game a four heart contract was fulfilled with two overtricks at no fewer than eight tables. Only at one table did an inspired opening lead and subsequent good defense result in defeating the contract.

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
4 hearts	Pass	Pass	Pass

At eight tables West selected the "normal" lead of the diamond queen and, after that, there was no chance to defeat the contract. All declarers covered with the diamond king and East, on lead with the ace, would have had to lay down the club ace to take a second trick. The various Easts could not be blamed for preferring to return a diamond, hoping for a club lead thru dummy. Obviously, however, declarer ruffed the second diamond, drew trumps, and threw off his losing clubs on dummy's spades.

At one table West took a different view of his opening lead opportunity. He looked with extreme disfavor on the lead of a six card suit, even tho it was headed by the "safe" combination of Q J 10. This particular West was not looking as much for safety as for a constructive and bold attack. To that end, he hit upon the club six. Dummy's jack lost to East's queen, and East now made a very fine and sound play. He laid down the diamond ace! He recognized that West's opening lead probably was a doubleton, not a singleton. Hence, if the club ace were played immediately, and a third club led for West to ruff, declarer might easily be able to discard a diamond, and it was not at all inconceivable that this might be his only diamond.

Admittedly, other combinations of cards would have made East's choice of defense turn out badly, but the fact was that East did visualize South's precise holding. After cashing the diamond ace, East cashed the club ace, then led a third round of clubs. As may be seen, South now was helpless to avert defeat. He could not shut out West's guarded heart queen. If South ruffed with the heart jack, West would overruff; if South ruffed with the king, West's queen would be preserved for future use.

Inflection Is the Basis of Voice Interest

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

What did you say? How did you say it? It's too bad that not all of us have had the experience of having our voices recorded, so that we may know how pleasant, or unpleasant, our tone of voice sounds to others.

By training your ear, however, to pick up your own voice inflections, you often can be a good judge of the kind of voice personality you possess. Try a voice inflection test. Say to yourself, in as many different voice tones you can think of: "I went shopping today." The first time you say this sentence, emphasize "I." The second time, "went." The third time, "shopping." The fourth time, "today."

Emphasis of the "I" implies that you, and no one else, went shopping; of "went," that you are slightly annoyed that you are being questioned as to whether you have yet done your shopping; of "shopping," that you are specifying exactly what you did today; of "today," that you have completed your shopping and are glad of it. So much for what you say.

As to how you say it, just how DO you say it? Do you say it in a meaningless tone of voice, a happy tone, a discouraged or disgusted tone, or a monotonous one? If in a meaningless tone, no one would be likely to sit up and take notice of the fact that you went shopping. If you say it in a happy tone, you'll probably get a happy response from the one who hears you say it.

When you send in that recipe to the prize contest, be sure it's one which doesn't call for an unusually large proportion of sugar, or for some ingredient which is expensive or hard to get these days. We want our prize winning recipes to be practical, and attuned to the times. No more very rich, sweet, fancy pastries. We'll wait for those until after the war.

"That $5 prize was a life saver to me and my family," one prize winner wrote me recently. "You've no idea how far I made it stretch in buying the family groceries!" Another winning cook wrote that she'd given her money to the Red Cross; a third, that the $5 had gone into a defense stamp booklet.

Yes, there are more prizes, one every day until further notice. And yes, you may send in as many recipes as you like. "If at first you don't succeed," you know the rest. But please don't send more than one recipe at a time. We don't like to get recipes in batches, as it complicates our system of sorting, checking and testing.

Any good recipe which you like a lot and use frequently will be considered, provided it is written clearly and full directions are included. Every prize winner is thoroly tested, so that we have no hesitation in recommending them to readers, and we get hundreds of letters from cooks who have used them with success. At present we're making up a booklet of recipes which have been prize winners so far in our contest. Publication and price of the book will be announced later.

Here are a few good, simple, and practical recipes which came near to winning prizes. We hope the cooks will try again, for they are definitely on the right trail. We'll call these "honorable mentions."

Garden Fresh Sandwiches.

½ pound aged cheese
½ pound raw cabbage
3 raw carrots
½ cucumber [optional]
Mayonnaise
Bread slices

Grind cheese, cabbage, carrots and cucumber. Mix with mayonnaise [you may want to add some salt to the vegetables] and spread on bread for sandwiches.—Mrs. W. D. Burks, 821 S. Harvard-av., Villa Park, Ill.

Favorite Sugar Saving Chocolate Sauce.

⅔ cup dark corn sirup
1 square unsweetened chocolate

Heat ingredients over low burner until chocolate is melted, stirring frequently. Use more sirup for a very sweet sauce, less for a more chocolatey one. Serve hot or cold over ice cream.—Mrs. H. W. Dressel, R. No. 1, Dundee, Ill.

Prune Pudding.
[Serves four to six]

1 cup stewed prunes, chopped
½ cup prune juice
⅛ teaspoon salt
¾ cup hot water
½ cup white sirup
2½ tablespoons cornstarch mixed with
½ cup cold water
2 tablespoons lemon juice
¼ teaspoon cinnamon

Mix prunes with juice, water and salt in saucepan. Add sirup and simmer five minutes. Add smooth cornstarch paste and stir rapidly into prune mixture. Cook and stir constantly until thickened and clear. Remove from heat, add lemon juice and cinnamon. Chill. Serve with whipped cream.—Mrs. Virginia C. Bibb, 3335 Carson road, St. Louis county, Mo.

And Miss Kathleen M. Hempel, Elkader, Ia., sends in an excellent idea for a sugarless dessert. She calls it "Fruited Rice," and makes it by combining cooked, fluffy rice with mixed canned fruits, then chilling the mixture. "Pass thick cream and cinnamon with it," she directs.

How about your best recipe?

Physician to Speak.

Dr. Raymond W. McNealy, chief of the surgical staff at Wesley Memorial hospital, 250 East Superior street, will appear as guest speaker at 1 o'clock today before a meeting of the women's auxiliary board.

TODAY'S PRIZE RECIPE

Mrs. Robert H. Albrecht, 2147 N. Lawler avenue, Chicago, is today's winner of the recipe contest and receives $5 for her stuffed flank steak recipe.

Send in your favorite recipe, and tell the interesting things about it, whether it's old, one of your originals, or a particular favorite in your household. Give complete directions, with ingredients listed first, and level measurements. Address Recipe Contest, Chicago Tribune. Perhaps you'll win one of the prizes.

Stuffed Flank Steak.
[Serves six.]

1½ pounds flank steak
2 cups soft bread crumbs
2 tablespoons melted butter
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon chili powder
2 green peppers chopped
1 medium onion chopped
1 cup canned tomatoes well drained

Spread steak with dressing made by combining ingredients in the order given. Roll up and place in heavy skillet or Dutch oven, brown in fat, adding just enough water to keep meat from sticking. Cover closely and simmer an hour and a half, as for a pot roast. Replenish water, if necessary. Uncover and continue roasting until well browned, about 30 minutes longer. Small, whole onions may be roasted with the steak, if desired.

[Send in your favorite recipe.]

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MACKAY.

Military Title Usage.

Coming to the rescue of bewildered secretaries, the army public relations department outlines the various military titles in this way: All titles precede the name. For example: "Dear Lieutenant Jones," not just "Dear Lieutenant." "Dear Private Jones" is correct. "Dear Corporal Jones" is right. "Dear Sergeant Jones" covers staff, technical and master sergeants. "Dear Lieutenant Jones" covers first and second lieutenants. "Dear Captain Jones" for all captains, "Dear Major Jones" for all majors, "Dear Colonel Jones" for lieutenant colonel and colonel, and "Dear General Jones" for generals, brigadier generals, major generals, and lieutenant generals.

A warrant officer is addressed as "Mr." in a letter. A chaplain is addressed as "Dear Chaplain Jones," and not by military equivalent.

Addressing an envelope, the full military title is used: "Brigadier General Jones."

Answer Tomorrow.

Something to pucker your brow over: A man wired his banker one word: SEND. The banker wired back for more explicit information. The customer complied with another one word telegram: MORE. Whereupon the banker sent him the exact sum which he requested. What was it? [The answer will appear tomorrow.]

Mostly Personal.

Housecleaning: Here's a note from a gentleman which should rate an answer. He postscripts to an item from the column: "Do you really believe that children care for father or mother any more?" . . . I'd like to tell him about the plucky girl, on a scholarship, who quit school and went to work when her two brothers enlisted, just so she could take care of mother . . . and here's a suggestion from Dorothy Seipp for a name for the one from whom you take dictation—"Adolf" she suggests and adds, "I call mine hubby." . . . And here's a letter from Notre Dame offering the word "spook" for the man you work for but who is not your employer . . . and, mislaid, in this file is a perfectly fascinating announcement of a debate: "Resolved: Pigeon Flying Downtown Be Banned for Duration" and I wish I had gone . . . and under this pile of letters, clipped together, any number of diagrammed and excellent responses to the mathematical problem of a week or two ago . . . AND a dog-eared memorandum reminding me uncomfortably that I never did find the address of the reader who wanted to know about the Human Engineering Laboratory . . . I do wish he would write again.

Church's Part in War Effort to Be Topic of Presbyterians

Milwaukee, Wis., May 24 [Special].—Coöperation by the Presbyterian church of the United States in the war against the axis will be discussed on Tuesday by the 154th general assembly of the church, in session here. The 900 commissioners, representing 2,000,000 communicants and as many more who attend Presbyterian churches, are expected to increase the number of Presbyterian chaplains with the armed forces from 150 to more than 300. Also, the assembly will act on recommendations to step up evangelistic work among young men in war service.

"We have no exact record of the number of young Presbyterians who have gone to war," Paul Patton Faris of Philadelphia, head of the Presbyterian information bureau, said today, "but the number exceeds 100,000 and may be twice that figure."

During the five days the assembly has been in session, the first two days informally, a number of commissioners have advocated all-out coöperation in the war.

Women in War Work

By India Moffett

[The Women in War Work department reports on women's activities in war and defense work and will answer questions of women wishing to take part in these activities.]

Instructions in care of clothing and in making new garments out of old ones will be given at the clothing clinic which the Washington park district consumers' information center of the OCD will present at the Hall branch library, 4801 South Michigan avenue, at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon. The program will be the first in a series of Monday clothing clinics.

Even civilian clothing left by men entering the services may be made into women's and children's suits, says Mrs. Katherine Gilmore, sewing instructor who will lead part of the clinic. Old clothing and old hats will be remade and the finished garments will be modeled.

Mrs. Lovonia H. Brown, chairman of the information center, has made arrangements for a group of community merchants to discuss proper care of clothing. G. W. Washington, a shirt manufacturer; Clarence Ward, owner of a cleaning business, and John B. Knighten, proprietor of a general merchandise store, will be these speakers. Mr. Knighten's subject is "Merchandising and Shortages of Materials for Clothing During War Periods."

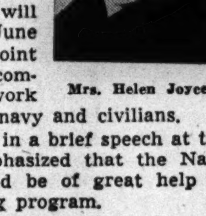
All equipment and most of the materials to be used in the sewing demonstrations are being lent or donated by community merchants and manufacturers. Women who work at the center will supply incidental materials.

Each Thursday afternoon, consumers' information discussions are held at the center's headquarters in the library. Next Thursday "What We Have Met in the Market Place Since May 18" will be the subject. Mrs. Brown is making arrangements for a speaker from the OPA to take part in the meeting. The public is invited to attend these meetings and to join in the discussions.

Dr. John A. Wieland, state superintendent of Public Instruction, urges all unemployed women and girls who are eager to serve their country, to go to their nearest hospital or medical center for information on the many kinds of paying jobs now open to them.

A survey of jobs available in this field will be completed by June 4 for a free job clinic to be held in Chicago that evening at the Merchants and Manufacturers club, Merchandise Mart. The clinic will be open to the public.

Mrs. Anne V. Zinser, general chairman of the women's executive committee, announces that her group is now organizing committees in every town and county in Illinois to interpret the survey findings locally. Their purpose is to help girls to get jobs by making detailed and pertinent studies of positions held by women in the nation's major industries. They have found 655 kinds of work that women do in the transportation, insurance, banking and finance, food products and radio fields.



Mrs. Helen Joyce.

Mrs. Helen Joyce, president of the Navy Mothers club, was the only woman invited to attend Mayor Kelly's navy recruiting drive conference in city hall recently. The mayor met with 80 civic leaders to make plans for the drive which will be started June 1 and to appoint a contact committee for work between the navy and civilians.

Mrs. Joyce, in a brief speech at the meeting, emphasized that the Navy Mothers could be of great help to the recruiting program.

"After all," she said, "it is these women who can influence our boys' attitude toward the war."

She will work on the contact committee, whose members include Bishop Sheil, Sheldon Clark, and Britton Budd.

The Navy Mothers will meet on June 1 at 7:30 o'clock in the Sherman hotel to discuss their part in the recruiting drive.

The Recreation Center for Service Men has been granted a permit by the Grant Park recreation committee to use the park for outdoor activities this summer. Soft ball, volley ball, tennis, badminton, and horseshoe courts will be reserved for men in uniform between 12:30 and 5:00 o'clock Saturdays and Sundays and from 6:00 to 9:30 o'clock thruout the week. The Center will provide all athletic equipment.

In addition to this program, the Center has organized dancing classes for the service men every Wednesday, Thursday, and Saturday night from 9:30 to 10:30 o'clock and square dancing parties are held every Thursday night at headquarters, 1249 South Wabash avenue. The nurses training classes at St. Luke's, Henrotin, Michael Reese, and Children's Memorial hospitals and the YWCA provide partners for the boys.

Jewish Group Meets.

The Chicago Women's division of the American Jewish congress will install Mrs. Robert L. Aronson as president at its annual business meeting and spring musical at 2 o'clock today in the Palmer House.

The Housewife

We receive many requests for information on keeping silverware free from tarnish. One of the best methods is to put away in a special, "tarnish preventive" chest those pieces of silver you do not use every day. We saw such a chest recently and were told it had space for 132 pieces of flat silver and that the blue and white fabric with which it was lined was chemically treated to protect them from tarnish. This chest is made of wood and its cost is under $4.

Men, Can You Pass This Test of Chivalry?

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Recently, in this column, we published an article by Carl Post, who expressed his opinions in reference to what men desire in women. The other day there gathered a group of lovely feminine radio and theatrical personages who took him to task for some of the views he expressed.

They told Post what WOMEN really wanted of a MAN, as follows:

1. Chivalry may be dead, but it's really the little things that open the floodgates of a woman's affections. Do you always walk on the curbside? Do you hold her chair while she's being seated? Do you invariably compliment her upon her appearance? Do you chew gum, noisily, in her presence? [This last is the cardinal sin.]

2. When out in company, do you tell a good story with great zest, when the check arrives?

3. Do you try to impress her with a thoro and understanding knowledge of the town's good restaurants, and then take her to a place where the food is cheap and bad, but BAD? And then top it off by trying to impress her with the artiness and quaintness of the joint?

4. And do you tell her that Judith Anderson was too, too overwhelming in Macbeth, and then take her to a neighborhood movie?

A few don'ts were added for men's guidance:

1. Don't be afraid to talk sports with a woman. It would surprise men to realize the vast knowledge some women have about baseball, golf, basketball, etc.

Don't be afraid to take your wife or sweetheart with you when shopping. The well dressed man is one whose clothes have been chosen by a woman! [The Merchant Tailors' association says this is so. Women have a talent for taste in dress.]

3. Don't think that the darkness of a movie house is an invitation for petting. That is taboo! If you can act the gentleman in a cinema, you have passed the acid test.

Back Yard Show.

Inspired by the Hollywood Victory caravan's recent show, a dozen youngsters on South Hamilton avenue put on a backyard variety show for the benefit of navy relief. Ranging in age from 6 to 12, the young Thespians called themselves the Hamilton Avenue Hams. Every day after school they met for rehearsals, to make posters, and to figure out whose mother was most likely to contribute her rationed sugar to make fudge to be sold. They finally arrived at a well balanced program, even to cautioning the cast's saxophone player to brush up on "Anchors Aweigh." The big day finally came, and chairs borrowed from all over the neighborhood filled the yard. At 10 cents for grown-ups and 5 cents for children, $8 was cleared. The performance went off without a hitch, except that the saxophonist overslept and never appeared. The young patriots' names: Helen James, Carol and Bobby Schuldt, Billy, Jackie, and Nancy Kerr, Dickie and Bill Leahy, Johnny Daines, Alice Williams, Patsy Lampkin, Wilbur Fisher, and Robert Landon.

Culinary Observation.

Edith Thomas writes:

"Having unearthed the following recipe, kept as a souvenir of World War I., I'm sending it along for those who think they are having a tough time on sugar rations. It might stop their grousing. We ate wartime foods in those days and we did not need or have rationing cards.

"Loyalty Pudding: 1 pound potatoes, 4 tablespoons milk, 3 ounces sugar, 2 beaten eggs, 2 ounces butter, ½ pound seedless raisins, a little nutmeg."

Kitten Saga.

We were reminded of Bella Sidney Woolf's descriptive terms for Siamese cats when we heard the other evening about six new kittens that belong to Oga and Aga, royal temple Siamese who in turn belong to Mrs. Bradley Davey. Mrs. Woolf once wrote: "A Siamese cat comes within the category of sumptuous things like orchids, caviar, peaches, marble halls, pearls, and translucent jade."

Mrs. Davey is temporarily calling the kittens after the days of the week, and to identify them for feeding and cod liver oil dosages, she has put a spot of paint on the back of each one, starting, appropriately enough, with blue for Monday.

SOX LOSE, 6-2, 14-0; CUBS WHIP PIRATES TWICE

TIGERS POUND GROVE AFTER BEATING LYONS

Fans Jeer Play of South Siders.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The largest crowd of the Chicago American league season—19,198—showed up yesterday at Comiskey park to see the Sox play the Tigers. These splendid sportsmen and sportswomen, perhaps, had been deceived into hopefulness by the Sox' recent seven game winning streak, or the previous Sunday's dramatic victories of Ted Lyons and Johnny Rigney, or the fun-packed performance in Comiskey park Friday night. Whatever lured them, they were furnished a fine dish of tripe yesterday, in many courses.

It wasn't so much that the Sox lost two, the first, 6 to 2, to Tommy Bridges and the second, 14 to 0, to Rookie Hal White. It was the way they lost 'em. Instead of being refreshed by a rare baseball holiday, a Saturday off, the Sox all afternoon appeared to be groping about in a piteous state of befuddlement.

The Fans Become Critical.

If it weren't for the lads' unimpeachable reputations for sobriety, one might have suspected some of them were intoxicated. It got so bad halfway thru the second encounter that those fans who were hearty enough to stick it out became rather cruel in the way they gave the fellows the bird.

Bridges outpitched Lyons in the first game but Ted's chore was complicated by support that was ragged, mechanically and mentally.

The victory was the fifth this year for Bridges, whose only defeat of the season was at the hands of the Sox here on April 22. It was Tommy's 176th success in the American league and his 27th over the Sox. Lyons was trying for his 248th American league victory, but was obliged to accept his 224th defeat, his 36th at the hands of the Tigers.

Moses Does All Right.

The Sox used three pitchers in the second game, Orval Grove, Buck Ross, and Pete Appleton. Appleton, making his 1942 debut, was all right in his one inning, the ninth.

Tho shut out, the Sox made 10 hits in the second game, one in each inning except the ninth, when they made two. One of the bright spots in the second game was Wally Moses' hitting. He had a perfect showing at bat, with four singles and a walk.

The result of the unfortunate afternoon was that the Sox spent Sunday night in the American league cellar, even as they had been lodged in the cellar the previous five Sabbaths of the 1942 season. And on this sixth Sunday night they started on a seven city tour.

FIRST GAME

The Sox gave Lyons a run in the first inning, which, obviously was more than they were able to do in Detroit on April 23 when Ted went all the way to be beaten, 9 to 0.

But if Lyons got any encouragement out of this rousing first inning tally it disappeared in the Tigers' second. This second started with York bouncing to Lodigiani, who, tho he had plenty of time, made a careless heave to first which pulled Kuhel six feet off the base. Radcliff fouled to Lodigiani, then Higgins walked. Tebbetts lined a single to center and Hoag tried to give the ball the old Fancy Dan treatment with one hand. The ball rolled far past him, York and Higgins scoring.

The Tigers accomplished the win-

White Sox—Present and Past

Myril Hoag, White Sox outfielder, after being tagged out by Catcher Birdie Tebbetts of the Tigers in the fourth inning of yesterday's second game in Comiskey Park. Hoag tried to score on Dario Lodigiani's infield tap. The Sox lost both games, 6 to 2 and 14 to 0.

Still a favorite with the fans is Zeke Bonura, who played with a soldier team in Wrigley field yesterday which lost to the Kansas City Monarchs, 3 to 1. The former Sox and Cub first baseman, now a soldier, is stationed in Louisiana.

Monarchs, Plus Paige, Beat Stars, Minus Feller, 3 to 1

BY HOWARD MARTIN.

Dizzy Dean's All-Stars, minus Bobby Feller, suffered a 3 to 1 defeat at the hands of the Kansas City Monarchs, plus Satchell Paige, yesterday in Wrigley field. The game between Dean's team of former major and minor leaguers, now in the army, and the Negro club, of which Paige is the big attraction, drew a crowd of 29,775.

Feller, who had agreed to pitch for the Dean All-Stars, sent his regrets earlier in the day because he had been called back to duty by the navy, but Diz reported he would turn over to the navy relief the sum the former Cleveland pitching star would have received. Feller, had he appeared, would have assigned his share of the proceeds to the same cause.

Dizzy Hurls an Inning.

Since Feller was absent, Dean pitched the first inning and retired the three men who faced him. He then made way for John Grodzicki, who last year had a trial with the St. Louis Cardinals. Johnny yielded one run in five innings, then Al Piechota, an ex-Yankee farm hand, came in to be the losing pitcher.

And now for Satchell Paige, who for the last dozen years has been blinding batsmen with his speed. Age has taken a little zip out of his fast ball, but he still has plenty of cunning to go with what remains of his swift. Only two hits were made by the Dean All-Stars while Mr. Paige operated for six innings.

No Trouble for Paige.

Both of the singles off Paige were of the scratchy variety and they accounted for the All-Stars' run in the third inning. Joe Gallagher, former New York Yankee, beat out a tap to third base. Grodzicki bunted safely and, when Paige's throw hit the runner in the back, Gallagher reached third. Emmett Mueller, former Philadelphia National leaguer, forced Grodzicki, and Gallagher scored the All-Stars' lone run. Score:

TRIALS START IN NATIONAL PGA TOURNEY TODAY

More than 100 to Tee Off in Medal Play.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Atlantic City, N. J., May 24.—The 25th annual tournament of the Professional Golfers' Association of America will open tomorrow morning on the interesting yardage of the Seaview Country club in a true wartime atmosphere. A field of more than 100 of the best play-for-self swingers in the game will begin the seven day argument for the only established national professional show in golf this year.

Eighteen holes of medal play will be conducted tomorrow, followed by 18 more of the same on Tuesday. Out of this preliminary competition will come the 31 qualifiers who will vie with Victor Ghezzi, defending champion, in the match play rounds, opening Wednesday. Ghezzi is exempt from the qualifying test, but he will work tomorrow and Tuesday in an effort to win the Alex Smith memorial medal trophy.

Abandon 18 Hole Matches.

The pattern of the 1942 tournament has been revised so that all man-to-man competition, from Wednesday thru Sunday's championship match will be fought over the 36 hole route. The 18 hole matches, which in the past have proved disastrous for many of the game's greats in the early rounds, have been abandoned.

The wartime complexion of the tournament is reflected in several ways. Not the least of these is the fact that Champ Ghezzi and a number of other competitors will be in the uniforms of the armed forces. Vic, who won last year's title in a dramatic 38 hole final with Byron Nelson, is now a corporal in the army signal corps, stationed at Fort Monmouth, N. J. He will tee off in good company tomorrow afternoon, being paired with Craig Wood, present National Open title holder, and Corp. Ed [Porky] Oliver of Fort Dix, N. J., the central figure in the 1940 National Open case at Cleveland.

Hogan Has Pain in Wrist.

All the boys are ready except Ben Hogan, head man in the money winning and Vardon trophy leagues for the third straight year. Hogan this afternoon was forced to quit play because of the pain in his left wrist, a pain particularly aggravated at the top of the back swing. Whether this ailment is the result of the constant practice and tournament competition in which Hogan has indulged for the last couple of years was not known. He left the club to have X-rays taken of the injured member.

Happiest entry in the lists was the name of Walter Hagen, five times winner of the championship and winner of the 22 consecutive PGA matches before Leo Diegel tripped him in the third round of the 1928 tournament. Hagen, who will be 50 in December, hasn't played in this company since the 1940 meet in Hershey, Pa., when he qualified by holing a 100 foot chip shot on the 36th green and then went to the 36th hole of a third round bout with McSpaden, after having defeated Ghezzi in the second round.

Ghezzi Does Quite Well.

The sideline sympathy expected to be directed at Ghezzi, because of his absence from tournament play and because he had to put his title up against such a fast group, was little in evidence tonight after the big boy shot two rounds of 67 and 68. In the morning he teamed with Wood in a match against Gene Sarazen and Dick Metz. The latter pair won on the final green with a best ball of 64, having a best ball of 30 on the back nine. Corp. Ghezzi had a 32, four under par, on his own ball on the front side.

Mexican Soccer Team Ties All-Stars, 3 to 3

New York, May 24 (AP).—Mexico City's Atlante soccer team opened its tour of the United States today by holding the New York All-Stars, an outfit made up of the best in the Metropolitan Professional league, to a 3 to 3 deadlock.

In the Wake of the News

BY ARCH WARD.

EARL MARTINEAU, former All-America back at Minnesota, who now is an assistant to Fritz Crisler at Michigan, expects to be called to the marine reserve within a couple of weeks. . . . Martineau served with the marines in the last war. . . . While calling on several badly burned sailors from a torpedoed ship in New Orleans, Bob Hope was stopped by one of the injured men who asked, "Haven't you a lot of money?" . . . Bob nodded. . . . The sailor added, "Then why don't you get your hair cut?" . . . Joe Stydahar and Bob Snyder, Chicago Bear veterans, are helping Coach Clark Shaughnessy install the T formation at the University of Maryland. . . . John Krisko, Ohio State golfer, is quite a handball player, too. . . . He played in only five matches during the last season, but took all five to capture the university championship. . . . The first contingent of cadets will arrive at the University of Iowa's preflight naval base May 28 for their physical toughening up program. . . . The Iowa school and one at the University of North Carolina will be the first of four to open. . . . Telegraphic meets may be the answer to high schools' transportation problems. . . . In sports which do not involve physical contact, athletes can remain on their own fields and wire results to a clearing house. . . . The emphasis on competitive sports by Lieut. Comm. Tom Hamilton of naval aviation has the indorsement of an overwhelming percentage of those charged with the responsibility of hardening the nation's youth. . . . Pancho Snyder, manager of the Jersey City baseball team, is 49 years old, but he still goes behind the plate for part of a game. . . . The Cleveland Rams have signed George McAfee's old roommate at Duke university, Duke Jacobs, despite the fact that Jacobs, because of injuries, never has played in a varsity game. . . . Made in America.

Beyond the arctic circle,
Thru northland's frozen floes,
The products of America
Go forth to fight our foes,
And in the Libyan desert,
Amid the shifting sands,
They know "Waltzing Matilda,"
Turned out by Yankee hands.
The Aussies way down under,
And the do or die Chinese,
And the loyal Filipino
In his home across the seas,
Are buoyed by flying fortresses
That span the outstretched deep,
And the unexpected antics
Of the effervescent jeep.
In Iceland's isle, so far remote,
And stranger still, Cathay,
The tools "Made in America"
Are there to save the day.
The good old cans of pork and beans
We missed from the home town mart,
Have rallied on the Russian front
To play a valiant part;
And in embattled Britain
When rampant death rode high,
Hope rose with every added wing
That cleft the troubled sky.
Our goods now go to all the earth
Where man to freedom clings,
And hearts fight on with faith renewed
That "Made in America" brings.

135 COMPETE IN HALE AMERICA TUNE-UP TODAY

Army of Stars to Play at Olympia Fields.

Golf, a comparatively young sport in our land, for all that it has seen three wars, today begins the job of making its contribution to the nation's armed forces with the local qualifying rounds of the Hale America National Open tournament. While 68 other centers thruout the country will be conducting similar 36 hole medal play trials leading to the main event at Chicago's Ridgemoor Country club on June 18 to 21, immediate local interest today will attach to Chicago's own show over the No. 1 and No. 4 courses at Olympia Fields.

The largest, and certainly one of the strongest, regiments of seekers after places in the biggest war relief tournament in golf history will tee off at Olympia, beginning at 8 a. m. and noon. This group will consist of 135 players—54 professionals, 80 amateurs, and one unclassified player. It is meet that Olympia Fields should be the site of this first test, for normally, it would have been the huge south side plant's turn to be the stage for the National Open qualifying rounds, since canceled by the United States Golf association.

Places at Stake.

They'll be swinging for 40 places, these 235, but not in the tournament proper. There is another stop on the way before they can consider themselves members of the championship ensemble. If they finish in the first 40 today, they will be eligible for the 54 hole sectional examination, set for June 5 and 6 at the Medinah Country club in the Chicago area.

Out of today's local rounds will come 522 players, who will join with the 74 players exempt from today's exercise because of their participation in the national PGA tournament opening this morning in Atlantic City. If all of these draw the proper passing grades in the 54 hole rounds set for any two days in the period of June 5, 6, and 7, then they will enter in the 72 hole competition at Ridgemoor, along with a number of players who have been exempt from all qualification tests because of their records or recent performances.

Look Them Over.

And if you're interested as to why certain parties in the ultimate field at Ridgemoor should be given a pass from the earlier workouts, just consider their names: Robert T. Jones Jr., Craig Wood, Walter Hagen, Gene Sarazen, Byron Nelson, Ben Hogan, Victor Ghezzi, Lawson Little, Marvin [Bud] Ward, Denny Shute, Henry Picard, Paul Runyan, Sam Snead, Horton Smith, Jimmy Demaret, Lloyd Mangrum, Harold McSpaden, Chick Evans, Jock Hutchison, and Herman Barron.

LANDIS, LEAGUE CHIEFS, ACT ON 2 PROBLEMS TODAY

Baseball's advisory council will meet in Commissioner K. M. Landis' office at 11 o'clock this morning to study the feasibility of changing plans for the All-Star game in New York and the game which is to follow the next day in Cleveland between the winner and a picked service team. The other parties to today's conference will be Will Harridge and Ford Frick, presidents of the American and National leagues, respectively.

The eastern All-Star game was scheduled for the night of July 6, which made it possible for players participating in Chicago and St. Louis the previous day to reach New York in time.

But night games in the east have been banned, and if the game were to be held in the daytime on the same date it would be questionable if men playing in the west could make the trip in time.

Another problem to be ironed out is a request from the Office of Defense Transportation to arrange daily game times so homeward-bound fans will not add to clogged transit facilities at peak traffic hours.

LEE WINS, 7-5; PASSEAU, 11-4; NO. 6 FOR EACH

Bill Forced to Go 10 Innings.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 24.—Jim Wilson's Cubs, much to the discomfiture of Uncle Frankie Frisch's Pirates, ripped the latter wide open this afternoon to acquire a double triumph with which to decorate tomorrow's Chicago homecoming.

Bill Lee [above] and Claude Passeau, who pitched the Cubs to a double victory in Pittsburgh yesterday.

The Pirates, who not long ago were challenging the league leaders, faded out, 7 to 5, in a 10 inning first game and collapsed so completely in the other affair that the Chicagoans had a gay old time accumulating the bulky end of an 11 to 4 score. The double success gave the Cubs an even break for their twelve battles on tour, and while the feat didn't lift them out of seventh place, they are only one game behind the first division.

Altho Bill Lee, registering his sixth victory, wasn't quite himself he was strong enough to hold out over the distance against a parade of Frisch's pitchers, the last being Truett [Rip] Sewell, who was charged with the beating.

Passeau Gets No. 6, Too.

After Lee had completed his job, Claude Passeau was brought in and his sixth achievement of the season would have been easier accomplished if some of his fellow workers had kept themselves out of the error column.

The Cubs captured the first decision only after a tight ninth inning squeeze in which the winning run was cut down at the plate after a blunder by Lou Stringer. Phil Cavarretta started the 10th by walking, but was forced by Bill Nicholson's intended sacrifice. A tap by Dom Dallessandro caromed off Sewell's glove for a single and Nicholson reached third, whence he scored on a wild pitch. Then, with two out, Peanuts Lowrey singled to center, scoring Dallessandro with the extra run.

Pirates Collapse in Sixth.

All of Passeau's difficulties in the second struggle came early. Five hits mixed with a pair of errors gave the enemy its four runs in the second and third. But happily enough, the Pirates blundered two of these runs back into the laps of the Cubs in the third. The two needed for a tie were earned legitimately in the fourth.

Then the Pirates fell apart in a big way in the sixth and the Cubs rushed five runs across the plate before Lloyd Dietz could straighten out a bad situation willed him by Ken Heintzelman. Thereafter it was simple, especially for Passeau, who gave up only three hits in the last six innings.

FIRST GAME

The Pirates were the first to score in the overtime battle. Van Robays doubled to center in the second inning, scoring DiMaggio and Fletcher. Bill Lee tied the game in the third inning with a single that scored Lowrey and McCullough. McCullough had doubled on top of Elliott's fumble on Lowrey's roller to get the two runners in the scoring zone.

There was no further scoring until the seventh, when McCullough hit another double. Lee singled again. Hack hit into right field for a double

TWO JUVENILES SHARE LINCOLN FIELDS INTEREST

Littletown, Occupation Display Speed.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

The business of hunting for good juvenile prospects has begun again at Lincoln Fields. Last year this search brought out Alsab and the year before Whirlaway.

During the first week of the present meeting, two youngsters have attracted attention. There is little liklihood that either one is a Whirlaway or an Alsab, but the fans have some fun speculating about them anyway.

These two are Occupation, owned by John Marsch of Chicago, and Littletown, property of Charles Nuckols of Versailles, Ky. Occupation won Saturday in the first start of his career, scoring by eight lengths in the time of one minute for five furlongs. This equalled the best time made during the entire meeting but was a second slower than the track record. Littletown did his good work on Tuesday, leading all the way and winning by three lengths in 1:00 1-5.

Sire Is Well Known.

Occupation is a son of Bull Dog, the stallion which has produced quite a few horses noted for speed. Among his recent contributions was Our Boots, winner of the 1940 Belmont Futurity, now a contender in the handicap division.

Littletown is a son of Jamestown, which has sent some sons to the races with the same speed that characterized his own career. His most famous offspring is Johnstown, champion 3 year old of 1940.

Littletown, which was intended for the Saratoga sales, shipped so poorly that Nuckols decided not to send him into the ring last summer. Accordingly he was sent home and prepared for the races by Trainer Bob McGarvey. Now Nuckols is mighty glad he wasn't ready for the auctioneer's hammer at Saratoga.

Joliet Is Big Test.

The battle for juvenile supremacy at Lincoln Fields will come to a head on June 6 when the Joliet stakes is run. Both Occupation and Littletown will be pointed for this event. The stake closed with 60 nominations.

The main event this week will be the Francis S. Peabody Memorial handicap next Saturday. This is a race of a mile and a sixteenth carrying a purse of $5,000 in added money. There have been 22 nominations, including Signator, winner of Saturday's Crete handicap, Technician, Equifox, Liberty Flight, Bulldinger, and other good ones.

KNOX PLAYS GOLF WHILE BASEBALL AIDS WAR EFFORT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 24.—Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox was among the missing yesterday as the Washington Nationals and New York Yankees played a benefit game for the army and navy relief fund before a pitifully small crowd of 9,320, netting only $9,825.26 for widows and orphans of service men.

Knox, it was disclosed today, chose instead to play golf at fashionable Burning Tree country club and when asked why he didn't attend the benefit game replied that the exercise would do him more good, according to witnesses.

Altho Washington is the center of official direction of the war effort, the slim attendance at yesterday's game indicated a deplorable lack of interest, sports writers commented today.

The highest ranking official reported present was Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson, who tossed out the first ball from the presidential box. Accompanying him were Maj. Gen. Irving J. Phillipson, director of army relief; Assistant Secretary of War John J. McCloy; Rep. Andrew J. May [D., Ky.], chairman of the house military affairs committee, and ranking army officers, including the adjutant general and a deputy chief of staff.

The total paid admission included the ball players, reporters, ground crew and concession workers, who were willing to pay their share. In contrast to Washington's contribution of $9,825.26, a similar relief game in Brooklyn produced $60,000.

Baratka Seeks 2d Victory Over Bolden Tonight

George Baratka, newest challenger for a shot at Tony Zale's middleweight championship, will attempt to score his second victory over Nate Bolden and his seventh in a row in a 10 round bout in Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street, tonight. Baratka, who conquered his Chicago rival in the same arena on May 4, is a rugged, aggressive fighter, but if Bolden is in form he may gain revenge this evening.

If Bolden wins he will beat the jinx Cleveland fighters appear to hold over him. In 52 starts since turning professional in 1937, Nate has lost 14 decisions of which five were dealt him by foes from Ohio. In addition to Baratka, his conquerors from Cleveland include Jimmy Reeves, Jimmy Bivins [twice] and Joe Maxin.

Vince Calzaretto, Palos Park light heavyweight, and Luther Brent, who went to a draw two months ago, will renew their feud in a six round semiwindup. Al Cooper, Rock Island, Ill., heavyweight, and Tommy Blue, Cleveland 175 pounder, each will make his Chicago debut in four round preliminary events, the latter against Johnny Turner and Cooper against Harold Lang. Willie Ross, once a promising lightweight prospect, will open a comeback campaign as a welterweight in five rounds against Frank Petroff.

George Zaharias, veteran Colorado heavyweight wrestler, who has not appeared in this town in several years, will return for a bout with the Swedish Angel in White City, 63d street and South Park avenue, tonight.

Trout Make Guide's Face Red in Rain

BY BOB BECKER.

When a brook trout will take a fly, and when they want nothing but bait of some kind, is a puzzler that apparently not even the most experienced fishermen can solve, judging by our experience on a trout stream in Sawyer county a few days ago. Pete Peterson, Hayward, Wis., trout guide, warned us against visiting the stream he had picked out for us because in his opinion the weather was so adverse.

When we met Pete one overcast morning, we had to admit that it looked anything but promising for fishing. A chilly wind was blowing out of the northwest and a misty rain was blurring the windshield of the car. It looked as if it might pour most any minute. Pete said he never did have much luck on the stream when weather was cold and rainy and he wanted us to postpone our trip. But after a conference, we closed our ears to his plea and away we went for the trout water.

Pete Still Discouraging.

After a hike which Pete said was only a half [?] mile thru second growth timber, over a couple of low hills and thru a swamp, we came to the stream. Pete again sounded a discouraging note to us and to Fred Scheer, our fishing partner—that we needn't expect much. The fish undoubtedly [said Pete] would be 'way down and our flies wouldn't interest them.

It was decided to test bait fishing against fly fishing on the first attack against the brook trout. So Scheer rigged up his outfit for worm fishing. We put together our 8 foot bamboo rod, tied on a 7½ foot leader, and put on a hairfly [Coachman]. And then we went to work. If there ever was a day when trout were not rising this was it. The air was cold. And there was no reason why a fish should want to come near the surface.

The Coachman Takes a Ride.

But we didn't go very far along the stream until we saw the flash of fish below our fly and zing!—we had the first one, a 10 incher. From that time on the Coachman stirred the trout from their lethargy. We fished the fly slowly and as deep as it would run without a split shot on the leader. From one swell pocket where there were many old cedar snags in the water, we took three trout in about five casts.

SLOVAKS DEFEAT SPARTAS, 1-0, IN PEEL CUP FINAL

Matevich Scores Only Goal on Penalty Shot.

BY OFFSIDE.

The Slovaks, best amateur soccer team in Illinois, yesterday whipped the Spartas, best professional team in Illinois, 1 to 0, in the final of the Peel cup series in Sparta stadium before a crowd of 3,000.

The Slovaks' youth and speed, as exemplified by Pete Matevich, star inside forward, were too much for the Spartas, and it was a foregone conclusion that sooner or later the two hard pressed defenders assigned to the task of guarding Matevich would make an error and either let him get by for a score or foul him in the penalty area to set one up.

The latter occurred, and Joe Silovsky, Sparta goalie, had no chance of stopping the drive Matevich blasted into the net on the penalty shot awarded him by Referee Fred Linstow six minutes before the final whistle.

Linstow, referee in the game last Sunday which ended in a riot, exercised firm control over yesterday's game, chasing Frank Tomecek and warning both teams that the same treatment would be meted other offenders. Lineup:

Mt. Prospect Bike Race Won by Lueschen

BY RITA FITZPATRICK.

The days of real sport are back again.

At least they were yesterday in Mount Prospect where the residents forgot about tire shortages and gasoline rationing and treated themselves to an old-fashioned Sunday outing. Several hundred thick, they lined Busse avenue and Elmhurst road to witness a revival of that long-winded sport of the '90s, amateur bicycle racing.

Altho it was the sixth annual 48 mile handicap race sponsored by the Edison Park Wheelmen club, the event had a special wartime significance for the contestants and spectators whose enthusiasm evinced a new interest in a pastime that had nearly faded from the American sporting picture.

Average 25 Miles Per Hour.

The racers circled a 16 mile route three times in a little over two hours, averaging 25 to 26 miles an hour. Sixty-five in all, they ranged between 14 to 40 years old, few of them veterans of the wheel but all trained to an endurance capacity that left them smiling and hardly winded at the end of their little jaunt.

"These youngsters trained as much as 60 miles a day for several weeks before this race," Robert Daly, the race director and one of two middle-aged men in the Edison Park Wheelmen club, explained. "They are hard riding, clean living kids who don't have time to smoke or drink if they want to keep in front and they all want to be champions."

Sune Bergman of 6219 North Hermitage avenue crossed the finish line first. Gunther Lueschen, 3619 School street, of the Edison Park Wheelmen, who started from scratch, captured first place and the Edison Park Wheelmen trophy for the best time of the race in two hours, two minutes and 30 seconds.

Commissioner Gives Trophy.

Bergman was awarded a three foot bronze trophy by William Busse of Mount Prospect, county commissioner.

The following contestants won trophies, respectively, for places:

Sune Bergman, Descamps club; George Hensel, unattached; Dick Sorenson, Racine, Wis.; Pierre De Vise, Belgian American club; Bob Jackson, Edison Park Wheelmen; Dan Smith, unattached; Carl Duschak, Racine, Wis.; Billy Sullivan, CYO; Elmer Baker, unattached; Frank Schott, Edison Park Wheelmen; John Vrtis, unattached; Dick Daly, Edison Park Wheelmen; Raymond Dickow, Descamps; Arthur Henke, Descamps; Frank Greco, unattached, and Frank Brilando, Barrett.

The following won trophies, respectively, for time:

OBEDIENCE TEST GETS DOBERMANN READY FOR ARMY

BY BEN MARKLAND.

Duke of Schroth Valley, a highly trained Dobermann-Pinscher, was awarded a silver medal at the conclusion of the dog obedience events held yesterday in the Lake Shore Athletic club. The medal signified that he had successfully completed all the routines designed for testing dogs on their ability to serve as master companions and guards.

Sometime this week Duke will start applying his knowledge—like a man just leaving college or a soldier who has gained officer's rank. He will join his owner, Pvt. Henry G. Schmidt, at Fort Warren, Wyoming, to become a sentry aid.

Bulldog Wins in Class B.

Under the handling of Ludwig Gessner, who has been training the dog since Pvt. Schmidt joined the army, Duke passed the trailing test held in conjunction with the show, thus proving his ability to follow a scent and adding to his value as a sentry helper. In this test he was taken into a field thru which a stranger had passed more than half an hour previously. Duke followed the man's trail for a quarter of a mile.

Duke's success was the most significant of the trials, which were sponsored by the West Point Training club for the navy relief fund, but a bulldog won the open B class to provide another highlight. The massive "sourmugs" usually are rather easy going in temperament, but yesterday's winning specimen proved that these friendly dogs have the ability to assimilate almost any type of training. The dog, named Bradford, is owned by Leroy Pape of 7000 South Shore drive and handled by H. E. Crebs, Oak Lawn.

Corgi Takes Novice Honor.

Two other unusual breeds which competed and won yesterday were the Welsh Corgi and the Chesapeake bay retriever. Winner of the novice B class was Windrush Redwing, Corgi owned by Mr. and Mrs. Gerald E. Murphy, Glenview, who scored 93.5 of a possible 100 points. Second in the same class was the Chesapeake, Prince of Cocoa King, owned by William Wrigley, 1500 Lake Shore drive.

NOVICE A—Won by Duke von Mehren, German shepherd owned by Edward J. Midden, 7019 Driving Park road, Chicago; Little Brown Jug, bullterrier owned by Emily West, Wadsworth, Ill., second; Stonewall of La Salle, German shepherd owned by C. J. Wirtz, 3642 New England avenue, third; Heather Lassie II., collie owned by R. B. Wiley, Aurora, fourth.

NOVICE B—Won by Windrush Redwing, Welsh corgi owned by Mr. and Mrs. Gerald E. Murphy, Glenview; Prince of Cocoa King, Chesapeake Bay retriever owned by William Wrigley, Chicago, second; Breite von Rupprechtheim, Dobermann owned by Rupprechtheim kennels, Indianapolis, third; Rudolpho Corazon Colorado, cocker spaniel owned by Mrs. Daisy P. Huntley, Davenport, Ia., fourth.

OPEN B—Won by Bradford, bulldog owned by Leroy F. Pape, 7000 South Shore drive; Oren of Pontchartrain, Dobermann owned by Fred Sheppke, Terre Haute, Ind., second; Daryl of Grettamarc, German shepherd owned by Arthur E. Schwind, Palos Park, third; Dahey von Motzeck, Dobermann pinscher owned by Mrs. G. R. Roderwald, 4209 North Kedvale avenue, fourth.

TRACKING TEST—Passed by Ch. Yaboo of Tulgey Wood, boxer owned by Warren A. Peterson, 1021 Granville avenue; Daryl of Grettamarc, German shepherd owned by Arthur Schwind, Palos Park; Duke of Schroth Valley, Dobermann pinscher owned by Pvt. Henry G. Schmidt, Fort Warren, Wyo.; Ch. Gessner Jacky von Hahn, Dobermann pinscher owned by Ludwig Gessner, 7418 West Higgins road, and Zoe of the Hacienda C. D. X., Dobermann pinscher owned by Mrs. Stanley D. Heyard, Des Plaines.

to score McCullough. With two out, Cavarretta singled to score the two other Cubs.

Fletcher opened the ninth with a walk and Johnny Barrett doubled as a pinch hitter. The Pirates scored one run on an infield out and tied the game when Stringer fumbled on an easy force play. Rikard tried to score on the error, but the winning run was nipped at the plate and the game went into the extra inning.

SECOND GAME

Passeau would have dodged a two run second inning in the second game if Cavarretta hadn't dropped Hack's throw of Van Robays' grounder after two were out. DiMaggio pushed Van Robays to third on a single and merely as a matter of safety Lopez was awarded intentional passage. The scheme didn't work. Heintzelman singled to right to drive in the first two runs.

The Cubs' two run affair in the third began with a pass to Hack with one out. Merullo singled to put Hack on third and a single by Cavarretta sent Hack home. Wasdell fumbled Cavarretta's hit and Merullo crossed the plate with the tying run.

Coscarart's triple opened the Pirates' half of the third, after which there was a pass to Elliott and singles by Fletcher and Van Robays for two runs. The Cubs bounced back with a pair to tie it, 4 to 4, in the fourth. Lowrey and McCullough launched the drive with singles. Passeau fanned and Hack was thrown out by Martin, scoring Lowrey who had taken third on McCullough's single. Merullo's single sent McCullough across the plate.

The Cubs Move Ahead.

The explosion in the sixth began with McCullough walking and Fletcher fumbling on Passeau's bunt. Hack tried to sacrifice but forced McCullough at third. The bases were filled on a pass to Merullo. Passeau hiked home on a single by Cavarretta and when Nicholson singled, Hack and Merrullo counted. Dietz relieved Heintzelman and Dallessandro singled, Cavarretta scoring. Nicholson counted later on an error by Coscarart.

The Cubs nicked Dietz with four hits in the eighth. Cavarretta doubled and was driven in on Nicholson's single. Nicholson scored the final run with the aid of singles by Stringer and Lowrey.

Camp Grant Is Out to Check Great Lakes

BY JOSEPH MORANG.

Up to a late hour yesterday the Great Lakes baseball team owned a winning streak of 11 straight games and 14 victories in 18 starts. Camp Grant's record for the same span and against much the same type of competition was five straight and seven out of eight.

But the Warrior nine feels it is every bit as good as the bluejacket squad and that it expects to return to Rockford with a score of sailor caps as its share of the double header activities Wednesday in Wrigley field, when the soldiers play the midshipmen and the Cubs meet the Cincinnati Reds in a program for the joint benefit of the Army and Navy Relief societies.

There is no doubt Camp Grant has a right to ooze confidence. The Warrior pitching, shaky early in the season, now is of a high caliber, as shown by the fact that in Camp Grant's last five games its hurlers yielded a total of only 14 runs.

Leader of Camp Grant's attack is Pvt. Eddie Zydowski, 6 foot, 190 pound catcher, whose home is at 5717 Meade avenue, Chicago. Zydowski, who has been in the army four months, played with Tulsa of the Texas league last year as a Cub farmhand. His batting average at Camp Grant is a neat .521.

Zydowski's battery mate is Pvt. Joe Rogalski, 29 year old right hander from Ashland, Wis. Rogalski is a veteran of Texas league, American association, and International league campaigning, his best year being 1937, when he won 17 and lost 16 for Beaumont in the Texas league.

ning run soundly enough in the third. With one out, Cramer got the second of his series of four straight singles and scored on McCosky's double.

The Tigers concluded their scoring with three runs in the fifth. Bridges opened with a single and advanced on Bloodworth's sacrifice. He scored on the third of Cramer's singles. McCosky lined to Appling but York walked. Radcliff singled to left and Cramer stopped at third and York at second until they saw Kennedy fumble the ball, whereupon Cramer scored and the other runners moved up. Higgins bounced to Lodigiani who promptly revealed he had no idea of the number of outs by trying to make a play on York at the plate, whereas a toss to Kuhel would have retired the side. It was a skull lapse of the type seen regularly in the majors only by persons who follow the Sox. York scored.

It should be said in fairness to Lodigiani that he came out of his daze sufficiently in the sixth inning to drive in the Sox's second run.

SECOND GAME

The Tigers made three runs in the second game before the Sox could get a man to third. York opened the second inning with a single, went to third on Radcliff's single, and scored on Higgins' grounder to Kolloway. Two runs in the fourth were fuzzy. With one down, York reached first on Lodigiani's fumble, Radcliff singled, and Higgins walked to load the bases. McNair grounded to Lodigiani whose throw to Kolloway forced Higgins, but Kolloway made a low throw on the try for a double play, York scoring the third of his five runs in the game which tied the American league record. Then Tebbetts singled, scoring Radcliff.

In the fourth the Sox got a man to third on a walk, Kolloway's single, and a force out. This apparently stirred up the Tigers for they went to work for three more runs and knocked out young Grove in the fifth. With one down Cramer singled and went to second on McCosky's single. Both runners kept going when Hoag failed for the second time in the afternoon to accomplish a fancy one-handed pick up. York walked, loading the bases, then Grove passed Radcliff, forcing Cramer across the plate. Higgins singled to left, scoring McCosky and York. Ross replaced Grove and disposed of McNair and Tebbetts.

Tigers Keep on Scoring.

The Tigers made three more in the sixth on such items as Bloodworth's double, McCosky's walk, singles by York and Radcliff, and a wild pitch by Ross. Radcliff drove in his third and fourth runs with a single with the bases filled to start the five run eighth. Then Higgins drove in his fourth and fifth runs with a double off the left field wall. Ross' second wild pitch and an infield out brought Higgins the rest of the way.

PLAY INDIANS TODAY

There has been some bragging among crash customers of Wrigley field about how they actually are going to pay their way into Wrigley field on Wednesday, the occasion being the army and navy relief double header. The White Sox entourage will beat them to the privilege this afternoon inasmuch as the Sox will play for the same cause in League park, Cleveland, also with the pass list suspended. Bill Dietrich is scheduled to go after his fourth victory and probably will be opposed by Chubby Dean.

OLD FITZGERALD

"Kentucky's Best Bourbon"

THIS is a renowned whiskey that you may buy with pride. Three generations ago Old Fitzgerald was revered by critical judges as a great name amongst great whiskies. Today increased age and original character set it apart from other fine Kentucky sour-mash Bourbons.

32 BODIES FOUND IN FLOOD'S WAKE; SOME IN TREES

Honesdale, Pa., Split in Half by Raging Torrent.

Honesdale, Pa., May 24 (AP).—This débris strewn area of eastern Pennsylvania counted at least 32 dead today and fears for the safety of scores of others rose in the wake of one of the most disastrous series of flash floods in the section's history.

Twenty-four victims have been found and identified in this mountain community of 5,687, which was literally split in half by a roaring wall of water from a mountain stream which struck early Saturday.

Eight other bodies within a 100 mile area have been recovered, but there still are many unaccounted for.

Dead Wedged in Trees.

Some of the dead were found wedged in trees which had been submerged by the flash floods. One was lashed to a tree—the futile attempt of Miss Gertrude A. Baleser, 55, to save herself when the Lehigh river swept four cottages from Adams Island near Allentown.

Thruout the stricken district the picture was the same—homes twisted from foundations, operations drastically curtailed at many industrial plants busy with war orders, thousands turning to emergency relief agencies for shelter and food, volunteers wading thru mud and débris left by the receding waters in the search for bodies.

Rivers Rise Swiftly.

Torrential rains in the watersheds of the Susquehanna, Lehigh, Schuylkill, and Lackawanna rivers started them climbing swiftly toward the banks late Friday.

But it was the rampaging mountain tributaries which did the heaviest damage. Coming up without warning, the narrow hill channels molded them into irresistible walls which swept away virtually everything in their path.

Communication and transportation thruout this region was makeshift at best. Dr. A. C. Voight of Hawley, seven miles from here, was forced to travel 85 miles by back roads to reach Honesdale.

Landscape Scattered.

"It looked as if some one had picked up every bit of the landscape and redistributed it with abandon," Dr. Voight said.

Shattered buildings and parts of household furniture — beds, tables, stoves—embedded in mud told the mute story of this community's tragedy.

Most of those killed were trapped as they slept. Their houses along the banks of Lackawaxen river were toppled into the swirling current.

One eyewitness told of screams which came from houses as they were smashed into the swirling river.

Lodged crazily along the banks were a gasoline station and an automobile. Where they came from no one knew.

800 to 900 Homes Hit.

Between 800 and 900 homes here felt the full effect of the water. Some riverwise veterans smashed out the panes from lower story windows to let the current sweep thru instead of spending its full force against the foundations.

At Hawley food stocks were swept away, and until emergency rations were trucked in by volunteers from Wilkes-Barre and Scranton today, hundreds went hungry.

At Easton, on the Delaware river, thousands lined the banks today when word came that two huge loaded gasoline tanks had broken loose upstream. Authorities feared they might jam against bridge piers and catch fire. They finally were caught on a projection above the city.

Among the industrial plants affected was the Bethlehem Steel corporation's four mile long unit at Bethlehem where the power plant was disabled.

"It's a job of health and restoration now," Lieut. Leroy V. Greene, selective service liaison officer attached to the governor's office, said.

AUTO HITS ARMY AMBULANCE; 3 YOUTHS KILLED

Des Moines, Ia., May 24 (AP).—Three persons were killed and three critically injured today in a head-on collision of an automobile and an army ambulance here.

The dead were Richard K. Gray, 19 years old, of Norwalk, Ia., driver of the automobile; Virginia Grafton, 18, and Gerald Arthur Rounds, 18, both of Des Moines.

Two Fort Des Moines privates, Russell F. Johnson, 27, of Detroit, Mich., driver of the ambulance, and Edward Nakagawa, 22, a Japanese, and Geraldine Titus, 17, were in a critical condition at a hospital.

Sergt. E. C. Faber of the state highway patrol said the speedometer of the automobile was jammed at 72 miles per hour.

Condition of Barrymore Is Reported Unchanged

Hollywood, Cal., May 24 (AP).—John Barrymore "spent a restful night, but on the whole his condition is unchanged since yesterday," a bulletin from Hollywood Presbyterian hospital said today. Dr. Hugo M. Kersten, the actor's physician, said Barrymore's temperature and respiration were unchanged from yesterday. Barrymore, who is 60 years old, is suffering from pneumonia and liver and kidney ailments.

GAS RATION LAID TO IGNORANCE OF U. S. CONDITIONS

Senators Knock Plan of 'Executives.'

Washington, D. C., May 24 (AP).—Administration talk of extending gasoline rationing to the whole country brought a protesting outcry from Capitol Hill today. The War Production board has ordered the Office of Defense Transportation to prepare plans for nation-wide gasoline rationing as a tire conservation measure.

Sen. Joseph O'Mahoney [D., Wyo.] told reporters that "perhaps the principal source of this trouble is that congress has surrendered, too much of its authority to executives who don't understand conditions in the country."

Sen. Edwin C. Johnson [D., Colo.] asserted that "it will be hard to convince the people in the oil producing states that they can't have gasoline."

Tire Saving Questioned.

Johnson said that persons who advocate gasoline rationing as a means of conserving rubber should remember that tires deteriorate about as fast when unused as when driven moderately.

"A new tire will last about two years in service, or two years in storage," he said.

O'Mahoney said that "I've been discussing this matter with the motor transport division of the Office of Defense Transportation. The original orders of this division apparently were issued without the slightest comprehension of their effect on the entire area west of the Mississippi river."

On the other hand, Sen. Homer Bone [D., Wash.], chairman of the patents committee which has spent weeks investigating the problems of synthetic rubber, said that "extension of rationing finds its justification in the saving of tires, and the apprehension of what is to come."

Guayule Outlook Dark.

Meanwhile, it was disclosed that government experts have told congress the nation cannot count on guayule plants, chief hope of domestic production, to yield any substantial amount of natural rubber within the next two years.

This disclosure, made in testimony taken by a senate appropriations subcommittee, was coupled with the assertion that to meet military requirements at least 30 per cent natural rubber must be combined with any synthetic rubber that may be manufactured under a new expansion program just launched. The program envisions the production of 1,000,000 tons of synthetic rubber by the end of 1943.

There had been hope in some quarters that production from guayule, which the department of agriculture was authorized by congress to plant experimentally on 75,000 acres, would supplement dwindling military stocks of raw rubber and might even provide some for civilian uses later.

Long Range Plan Urged.

C. M. Granger, in charge of the guayule planting for the agriculture department forest service, told the subcommittee that under favorable conditions he believed the plant could be made to produce 1,300 to 1,600 pounds of rubber per acre annually.

"Unfortunately," he testified, "it is quite out of the question in the next couple of years, thru the use of this shrub, to make a very large impression upon our rubber shortage."

Granger also commented on the need for extending plans for production of rubber in this hemisphere beyond wartime.

"If the Japs are kicked out of the East Indies they may apply the scorched earth plan there so that there will undoubtedly be an acute shortage of natural rubber for a great many years to come," he asserted.

FIRMS TO OFFER MILK DRIVERS 3 DELIVERY PLANS

Reductions Must Be Made by June 1.

Three plans for a 25 per cent reduction in milk deliveries which has been ordered to begin June 1 by the Office of Defense Transportation will be submitted by the Associated Milk Dealers, Inc., to representatives of the Milk Wagon Drivers' union tomorrow in the dealers' organization offices at 309 West Jackson street.

One plan calls for a combining of milk routes and every other day delivery. The second would provide delivery six days a week instead of the present seven. The third, now in force in Baltimore, Md., calls for a combining of three routes with an every other day delivery schedule and three men working.

None of the three plans, according to Paul Potter, executive secretary of the Associated dealers, would call for the layoff of milkmen which is feared by union officials.

Two Men on Each Truck.

"One plan," said Potter, "is to put two men on each truck delivering milk and cream to the homes. They would deliver two days' supply to one of the two men's routes on one working day and do the same on the other's route the second working day. One man would make all the deliveries, while the man whose route was being delivered would collect bills from his customers.

"A second plan would call for a six instead of seven day week combination horse and gasoline drawn delivery, with a combination of routes. Under the plan already in effect in Baltimore, three routes are combined and two of the three trucks used. Two men do all the delivering on the three routes, while a third, on foot or by bicycle, does the collecting.

"Any of the plans would save at least 25 per cent of the rubber which is the reason for the reduction. It is thought the Baltimore plan curtails use of the rubber one-third."

Union Leader Offers Plan.

Potter said a suggestion made by James G. Kennedy, president of the union, that the problem could be solved by the distributors by stopping wholesale deliveries to stores, was not a solution. Kennedy said this would cut off 500 large trucks and save 25 per cent in tires.

"The milk companies would be foolish to take the wholesale store trucks out of service for they are the only ones eligible for new tires," Potter continued. "But no matter what plan is adopted there is no immediate danger of milkmen losing their jobs. Unless some further federal order changes the companies' plans, all Chicago's capable milkmen will be needed."

ATTACKER BITTEN BY WOMAN MAY LOSE RIGHT HAND

Vernon Anderson, 29 years old, 2258 North Monitor avenue, may lose his right hand as the result of a severe bite on the little finger by a 20 year old girl he dragged into a lot and attempted to rape early Sunday morning.

Anderson, who told Sergt. Walter Scully of the Cragin station he had served a prison term for rape in Wisconsin, seized the girl as she alighted from a Fullerton avenue street car at the end of the line. She screamed and sank her teeth deep into his finger as he pulled her into the lot and threw her to the ground.

After he had been captured by two motorists who heard the girl's outcries, police found the bite on his finger so serious they took him to County hospital for treatment. He was then taken back and locked in a cell. Later infection developed. He was removed to the Bridewell hospital, where physicians said blood poisoning might necessitate the amputation of his hand.

CANOE CAPSIZES; 1 YOUTH SAVED; SECOND DROWNS

John Valline, 21 years old, 815 South Ashland avenue, was drowned in the Fox river at St. Charles yesterday despite repeated dives by Capt. Charles Dittman of the Army Air corps, to save him. Capt. Dittman, who lives in La Grange, is stationed at Chicago airport.

He was on the river in a motorboat, when a canoe in which Valline and Carl Bua, 21, of 1122 South Hermitage avenue, capsized.

Capt. Dittman said he heard the cries for help from the two youths, neither of whom could swim. He headed his motor boat to the overturned canoe and dove in. He seized Bua and took him to the motorboat and then started diving for Valline, but failed to bring him to the surface in time to save his life.

Police Recover His Taxicab Before He Reports It Stolen

When Robert Williams, 4250 Haddon avenue, walked into the Desplaines street police station yesterday to report the theft of his taxicab and $19 by two robbers, he learned that Sergt. Edward Dooley of the detective bureau already had arrested Frank Lisciandrello, 24, of 1033 Sedgwick street, at Huron street and Hudson avenue in the stolen cab.

Washington, D. C., May 24 (AP).—"Duration dormitories," temporary in structure, but affording essential accommodations, will be built soon in crowded war work areas, the federal public housing authority disclosed today.

It was said the dormitories have been designed to help solve the transportation problem caused by restrictions on tires, gasoline, and automobiles and to conserve building materials.

Dormitories would be provided for unmarried men, for unmarried women, and, in a few instances, for small families.

Each dormitory would be composed of two to four sleeping wings. Dining facilities would be in a central building, which also would have a lounge, library and writing room, game room, and auditorium.

Each dormitory also would have an infirmary.

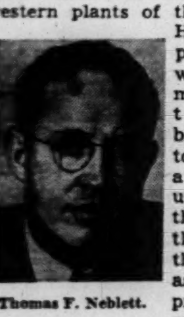
UNIONISTS VOTE FORCED DUES AT INT. HARVESTER

Maintenance Clause Wins, 9,703 to 1,000.



Thomas F. Neblett.

Unionized workers in eight midwestern plants of the International Harvester company by an overwhelming vote of more than nine to one have bound themselves to pay union dues and abide by union rules for the duration of the war or lose their jobs, Thomas F. Neblett, principal mediator for the War Labor board, announced yesterday.

The results of the referendum conducted under government supervision showed that of the 17,155 union members in good standing and eligible to vote, 9,703 favored the maintenance of membership principle and 1,000 were opposed.

First Referendum of Kind.

The referendum was the first ever held in this country on the controversial union security issue, which may be tested in the courts, and the first ever conducted by the government among union members exclusively to poll their desires.

By this decision the unions can force the company to discharge any of their members who fail to pay their dues or who refuse to abide by union rules.

The clause was the sole issue in the secret balloting and was accepted recently under strong protest by the International Harvester board of directors. Majority acceptance of the clause by the union workers was necessary to make it effective.

Neblett said that the unions permitted any member to withdraw before the voting and a few exercised this privilege. The union maintenance requirement will apply to those who voted against the proposal as well as the majority and to any workers who join later.

May Affect Other Disputes.

Neblett indicated the union security policy of the WLB may be applied in other labor disputes involving closed shop demands. This policy has been assailed by officials of the Inland Steel company, Chicago, who contend it forces workers to remain in a union. Inland Steel has indicated it may carry its case to the courts.

Declaring the closed shop controversy "a fake issue," Neblitt said the Harvester settlement may foreshadow the end of this issue.

"The real issue," he said, "is whether employers are ready to grant full recognition to bona fide labor unions and whether the unions will rise to meet increased responsibilities."

Grain Prices Sink to New Lows for Year

BY PHILIP WARDEN.

Wheat, oats, rye and soy bean prices sank to new lows for this year last week, but at the week-end the vast industrial consumption of grain in wartime once more had staved off a substantial break in the markets, according to grain dealers.

Congressional attempts to solve the critical storage problem and dispose of some of the surplus wheat sent prices tumbling, but they rebounded almost as rapidly as industrial consumers appeared in the market.

Wartime Need Is Vast.

Fred S. Wallace, chief of the Agricultural Adjustment administration, told state AAA chairmen what wartime means to the farmers as follows:

"A ship sailed for Ireland the other day. It was just an average cargo ship. It carried dried eggs, dried and evaporated milk, cheese, canned and cured pork, lard, flour, and canned vegetables. In that ship was the production of these foods for one whole year from 3,800 average American farms.

"The next time another 35,000 ton battleship goes to sea, just remember that it took 42,000 acres of land to launch it. That's just the amount of land required to feed the workmen who built it. It took another 169 acres of flax to produce the oil to paint that battleship just one coat—and battleships need paint continually.

Much Cotton Is Used.

"Each time that battleship fires one of its 16-inch guns, it will be stuffing a bale of American cotton down the wide-open mouth of Hitler. Powder comes from cotton and alcohol. It takes 5 bales of cotton and the alcohol from an acre of sugar cane or 7⅓ acres of wheat to fire that gun five times.

"It takes the annual food production from 155 acres to give wings to one American bomber. It takes the food from 71 acres to start a heavy tank rolling."

Thus, while the markets were under the tremendous pressure of having more than a year's supply of wheat on hand and little space in which to store the new crop, the unprecedented rate of industrial consumption of grain must be given full consideration, it was said.

DAY by DAY on the FARM.

By GAIL COMPTON

Test of the Market

May 24, 1942.

TWENTY of the fat steers from the feedlot were shipped to the stockyards and sold the other day to test the market. Along with them went four Guernseys that had been rejected by the dairy.

The steers hit an active market and were sold for $13.65 a hundredweight. The Guernseys went for $11.25 a hundred. Nineteen of the white faces sold in one lot, while one was cut out and sold at $1 off because it was staggy.

The 19 steers averaged 1,209 pounds each and brought a total of $3,131.31. The staggy feeder went at $12.65, weighing 1,250 pounds. It brought $158.12. The four Guernseys averaged 862 pounds and brought a total of $388.12. The gross receipts were $3,677.55. Deducted from this was $35.30 for yardage, insurance, trucking, commission and feed.

More Weight on Others.

The farm manager is planning to hold on to the steers remaining at the farm. While at the market he watched heavy cattle of 1,400 pounds bring top prices, so he plans to put a little more weight on the rest of the steers before selling them.

The steers that were sold were part of 66 head purchased in April, 1941. When the feeders arrived at the farm then they weighed an average of 596 pounds and had cost $12.50 a hundredweight. They hailed from Oklahoma, where they had been pastured on the winter wheat ranges.

They were allowed to run on pasture at the farm all summer and went into the feedlot in the fall. While on pasture they were fed a few oats plus some concentrate.

The new bunch of feeder cattle at the farm represents quite a difference. There are 70 of them averaging 400 pounds each. They cost $15.50 a hundred and came from northern Texas.

Gain Faster, Cheaper.

Altho the manager is unable to figure his profit or loss on last year's feeders until he sells the remaining 46 head, he believes that if the market continues stable he will realize a better profit from the new feeders. This is because they have a more attractive weight and can gain faster and cheaper on pasture than the others. The new cattle also show much more quality and promise to feed out better than the ones just sold.

The 19 pigs that have been following the fat cattle in their lot will be fed some additional corn now that 20 of the steers are gone. The hogs, when sold, will represent a good part of the final profit from the cattle deal as most of their 250 pounds is free pork. The pork and manure are two factors that often turn the color of the balance sheet from red to black for many feeders.

No More Steel for Civilians, Weir Asserts

Ernest T. Weir.

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 24 (AP).—Industry can have as much steel to build war weapons as it needs, but civilians may as well decide now that steel for them is out for the duration, Ernest T. Weir, chairman of the board of the National Steel corporation said today.

Weir told correspondents on the National Association of Manufacturers "production for victory" tour that there is no actual shortage of steel for tanks, airplanes, guns, battleships, and freighters. The industry is producing to more than 99 per cent of capacity at present, he said, and is ready to go far ahead of its present production schedule.

Allocations Cause Difficulties.

Any difficulties war industries are experiencing in getting steel, Weir said, is due only to the allocation system which is gradually replacing War Production board priorities in Washington.

Weir said he could assure the rubber industry that plenty of steel would be available for building new butadiene and synthetic rubber plants. He said there would be no shortage in this structural steel and that a new low alloy-high tensile steel has been put into production to cut down existing shortages in hard steel needed for armor plate in tanks and warships.

He told correspondents that the steel industry is in the peculiar position of wanting structural metal itself to expand its own plants but that it is running into difficulty in getting its own requirements approved at Washington.

SHIP SHAPES LAG

The supply of structural shapes for shipbuilding has not kept abreast of the increased supply of steel plates, and the structural shapes are "coming to the front as a factor in shipbuilding," the magazine Steel reported yesterday.

"Since plate supply has been lifted to meet requirements of shipyards, shape supply has not kept pace with plate fabrication," the publication said. "The WPB has ordered curtailment of other shape uses to increase the supply for ships."

Demand for steel is outrunning the best efforts of the industry and the war requirements are crowding out nearly everything else, Steel reported.

ANTI-INFLATION PLANS TRIP ON ELECTION BOGEY

Politics Keeps Move from Fulfilment.

BY JOHN FISHER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 24.—Altho some highly optimistic statements have been made about licking inflation in this war, it is apparent that congress and the administration are still in the "growing pains" stage of the anti-inflation program, according to observers here.

Most congressmen, especially those with the administration's tag on them, would give most anything if the anti-inflation program, including drastic taxes and rationing, could be postponed until after the fall elections. But since that can't be done, they are crossing their fingers in cautiously voting for new taxes which they wishfully hope could be made painless.

Actions Not Yet Final.

It must be noted that all of the recent actions of the house ways and means committee in jacking up taxes are "tentative" and not final. There may be many changes before the tax bill emerges in final form. For instance, only on May 13 the committee voted to reduce income tax exemptions from $750 to $500 for single persons and from $1,500 to $1,200 for married couples, but there already is sentiment among committee members to leave exemptions where they are, fearing that the prospective burden on the "little fellow" is becoming too drastic.

Since the reduced exemptions were voted, the treasury has proposed new tax measures which have altered the situation, including the proposed head tax of $5 or more and a compulsory deduction of 10 per cent of taxable income as advance payment for taxes. Neither has been acted upon by the committee, but it has boosted the normal tax rate from 4 to 6 per cent and voted painfully high surtaxes.

Sales Tax Possibility Grows.

It is becoming more and more apparent that a sales tax may be pushed thru as the tax bill is still about 1⅓ billions below the treasury's goal of 8.9 billions in new levies to be enacted this year. New Dealers within the administration, who need not stand for reëlection are harshly criticizing congress for not being bolder. These New Dealers have tossed aside their agitation for raising the living standards of the "masses" and are urging more drastic steps than the President and others of political minds have believed feasible.

There must necessarily be a reduced standard of living, they argue, and therefore more severe taxes, freezing of wages, and over-all rationing of available supplies. The New Deal economists have even talked among themselves of rationing consumer income as to what portion may be spent for commodities and entertainment and what must be saved. This has not reached the point of practical application, however.

Two Points Ignored.

Little or nothing has been done so far about two of the principal points in the official administration anti-inflation program enunciated by Mr. Roosevelt on April 27, and this is attributed to lack of stimulus from the White House itself. These points covered "stabilization" of wages and farm prices. No one is clear on what the President meant by stabilization of wages, because he vigorously opposed legislation to freeze wages and has not issued any clear-cut directive to the National War Labor board regarding wage policy.

Within the last week, William H. Davis, WLB chairman, said consideration is being given to a "standard wage," such as adopted by Canada, where the standard is $25 a week and raises above that level are barred, but anyone making less than $25 is allowed a pay boost.

Oil and Mining Industry 1941 Profits Are Largest Since 1937

Domestic oil and mining industries last year had the largest combined profits since 1937, which was the best year since 1929, a survey disclosed yesterday. Higher rates of taxation in 1941 kept profits from exceeding those of the former years.

Petroleum output in 1941 set a record at 1,405,218,000 barrels, against 1,351,900,000 in 1940 and 1,279,200,000 in 1937. In 1929 production was 1,007,000,000 barrels, a high at the time.

Consumption of oil last year was 1,478,697,000 barrels, an increase of 12 per cent over 1940, in sharp contrast with the gain of only 4 per cent in domestic production of crude oil.

Profit Rises 42 Per Cent.

Thirty companies in the oil industry had combined net profit of $513,695,933, against $362,233,131 in 1940, a gain of nearly 42 per cent. Since this was achieved despite higher taxation, the rising profits reflected improvement in the demand for oil industry products. In 1939 the same companies earned $311,054,390, compared with $295,330,767 in 1938 and $542,653,274 in 1937.

In 1937 prices of crude oil registered a postdepression peak of $1.16 a barrel and the retail price of gasoline in 50 cities reached a high of 14.6 cents. These figures declined to 95 cents and 12.6 cents, respectively, in 1940, however, so that it required an increased production to improve the industry's earning power.

Mining Companies Gain.

Thirty-one mining companies had combined net profit of $282,834,742 in 1941, a gain of not quite 8 per cent over earnings of $261,996,401 in 1940. Profit was $226,317,215 in 1939.

Deliveries of nonferrous metals in 1941 soared to a level substantially above all past records in execution of the early munitions requirements and in preparation for the greater war program to come.

The total of 1,545,848 net tons of copper delivered to consumers was 54.3 per cent above 1940, while domestic production of 1,065,667 tons was only 31,957 tons higher.

Zinc production attained new highs of 1941, and prices were not far from the averages of 1937 and 1929. Altho lead production surpassed recent years, it was far short of 1929 results, and prices were below the peaks of 1937 and 1929.

The issue will not be sold for cash, but offered in exchange on a par for par basis to holders of series G 1942-1944 bonds of the HOLC, which have been called for redemption July 1, and holders of series S notes of the RFC which mature July 1.

Series G bonds being called total $875,438,625, and the series S notes outstanding total $275,868,000.

BOARD TO FIX U. S. PAY POLICY URGED ON F. D. R.

Washington, D. C., May 24 [Special].—President Roosevelt will be asked this week to create a four-member board to determine federal policy on wage increases offered voluntarily by employers or negotiated with labor unions without recourse to the National War Labor board, it was learned today.

Likely members of the board, if the President adopts the suggestion of his inter-departmental committee on wage stabilization, are William H. Davis, NWLB chairman; Leon Henderson, federal price administrator; Paul V. McNutt, War Manpower commission chairman, and Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins.

In creating the new board, the President is expected to issue a directive asserting that the national policy and the government's effort to avert inflation requires that general wage increases proposed by any large scale employer should be reviewed in advance by the government.

The President already has announced that he will do everything in his power to prevent a general wage boost by any financially able concerns if such an increase would cause dissatisfaction among employés in other plants in the same industry who then would press for a similar general wage raise.

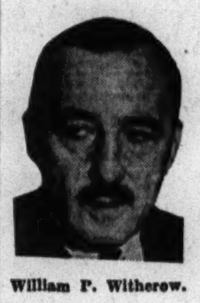
PACIFIC COAST'S WAR PRODUCTION RECORD LAUDED



William P. Witherow.

Smooth relations between labor and management, ingenious application of mass production methods, effective use of women workers and a driving zeal for victory have sent war production on the west coast leaping forward at an "astonishing" rate, William P. Witherow, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, reported yesterday.

Witherow, also president of Blaw-Knox company, Pittsburgh, large makers of industrial machinery, arrived in Chicago after a tour of west coast arms plants with nine other production experts and manufacturers.

With other leading industrialists, he will participate tomorrow in an all day Men at Work conference in the Stevens hotel sponsored by the NAM and the Illinois Manufacturers association.

HOWARD PLANT TO EXPAND; GETS NAVY 'E' AWARD

Frank E. Howard, president of the Howard Foundry company, was notified yesterday by the war department that approval had been given to a $1,500,000 expansion of the company's plant on Bloomingdale road for the production of airplane castings.

Yesterday on the 25th anniversary of the company, Howard was notified by the navy department that its plant on Bloomingdale road, one at 1700 North Kostner avenue, and a third in Aurora had been awarded the navy "E" pennants for excellence in war production. All plants are working 168 hours weekly.

OIL RATIONING IS OPPOSED BY MIDWEST GROUP

Strives to Clarify Shortage Claims.

Frank Phillips.

The petroleum industry committee for district No. 2 yesterday declared its opposition to rationing of petroleum products in the middle west.

The committee, appointed by Harold L. Ickes, petroleum co-ordinator, and headed by Frank Phillips, asserted:

"The committee definitely opposes the rationing of gasoline or any other petroleum products of the middle west at this time. We believe it is our responsibility to the people of the middle west, in view of the seriousness of the situation, to make clear to the public and to all concerned in government, the reasons for these unwanted developments."

Seek to Clarify Situation.

Explaining that the oil industry wished to clarify any public misunderstanding as to the responsibility for this enforced pertroleum scarcity, the statement said:

"Petroleum Coördinator Ickes has on many occasions clearly stated there is no shortage of petroleum or its products. Rather, there exists a shortage of normal petroleum transportation facilities to the east and in the Pacific northwest due to the war. The committee fully agrees with this statement, and stresses that these curtailing or rationing actions might properly be called 'transportation' and not 'petroleum rationing.'

"It is the unanimous opinion of the committee that the principal motivating reason on the part of the several governmental agencies is to conserve rubber now on civilian cars and trucks. If the use of rubber on automotive equipment must be further conserved, why not label the action 'rubber rationing' and set up machinery thru the several state governments to curtail car and truck mileage rather than thru the curtailment of gasoline sales.

Expects Effect on Public.

"This will immediately bring to the public a fuller realization of how serious the loss of our natural rubber supply sources in the southwest Pacific really is, and stimulate responsible government authority to launch immediately an adequate synthetic rubber production program.

"Distances, unlike in the densely populated east, are great in the middle west. The middle west is the bread basket of the world and the farmer must get an unrestricted supply of petroleum products to produce and market his production."

The committee has asked federal consideration of its statement.

JONES CLARIFIES REPORTS ON 1943 RUBBER OUTPUT

Washington, D. C., May 24 (AP).—Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones said today he believed the United States could produce 300,000 to 350,000 tons of synthetic rubber during 1943. He was commenting on an Associated Press Dispatch from Akron, O., yesterday telling how leading manufacturers of rubber products view the rubber supply situation.

This dispatch said those hearing the manufacturers gained the impression "that Jesse Jones' estimate of 800,000 tons of synthetic rubber for 1943 is not only impossible but fantastic." Jones said this statement "is itself fantastic, and untrue."

"At no time," he said, "have I stated that 800,000 tons of synthetic rubber could be produced in 1943. I have stated that our objective was to build facilities sufficient to manufacture 800,000 tons of synthetic rubber a year, and that we expected to have the plants completed by the end of 1943. This does not mean that we would manufacture that much rubber in 1943."
